BRITISH REBUFF PEACE TALK

CHARGE SECRET U. S. DEAL TO AID EMPIRES IN WAR

Blamed for Efforts to End Neutrality.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Sensational charges, linking the Roosevelt administration with the British and French governments in secret understandings relating to American aid in the European war, will figure in the debate on the neutrality repealer. Discussion of the repeal bill will begin in the senate next Monday. These plans were disclosed today by leaders of the noninterventionist group.

Anthony Eden.

Meanwhile Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, was admitting that the modification of the administration bill voted by the committee yesterday is intended to exempt Great Britain and France from the Johnson act. The Johnson act forbids extension of credit to governments who are in default of payment of debts to the United States.

Traced to Eden's Visit.

According to the noninterventionists, the understanding with the British dates back to the visit to Washington last year of Anthony Eden, now a member of the British cabinet. Eden, it is alleged, carried back to London the assurance that the Roosevelt administration would procure the repeal of the neutrality act prohibiting export of American arms, ammunition, and implements of war to belligerents in order to aid Britain and France in a war with the dictators.

While Eden was in Washington he conferred with the President, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and other higher ups in the administration. Both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull deny entering into any understandings with the British government, Mr. Hull explaining that at no time has there been anything but "parallel action" of the two governments on matters of common interest.

Significant Actions Follow.

Significance is attached by the noninterventionists, however, to the fact that a few weeks after Eden's visit the President initiated the movement in congress for repeal of the arms embargo and told the senate military affairs committee that America's first line of defense is in France. It was with that argument that he defended the secret deal he made to allow the French government to obtain a large number of American bombing planes on which the American army had first call.

It will be shown in the course of the debate, it is asserted, that the British and French governments have been marking time in the war up to date in the hope that repeal of the American arms embargo would convince Hitler that America eventually would be in the war against him with all her resources, including men, ships and money. The impatience of the British government at the delay in Washington also will be shown.

French Need Airplanes.

As for the French, they are manifesting not only impatience, but desperation with regard to the passage of the American neutrality repealer. There is evidence Britain and France regard the lifting of the American arms embargo as absolutely essential to the equipment of France with a sufficient number of planes to meet Germany on equal terms in the air.

Under the former Socialist régime in France, the capacity of French factories for mass production of airplanes was allowed to decline close to the vanishing point. While much progress has been made in the last year and a half to recover the lost ground, French production of airplanes is still only a fraction of that of Germany.

French officials have informed Washington that if the American embargo is wiped out France will take 800 planes a month from the United States until French factories are sufficiently expanded to meet the demand.

It is estimated that American aircraft factories would be called on to turn out not less than 8,000 planes

NAZI-RED PLAN CALLED MOVE TO SCARE EMPIRE

French React with Cry of 'Blackmail.'

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The British took the new German-Russian pact to split Poland with gritted teeth today. Comment generally was bitter on the deal concerning Poland as well as on the economic agreement announced in Moscow.

The British said they will have no truck with Moscow and Berlin on any peace offers. They charged that the new agreement, which was accompanied by a peace gesture backed by an implied threat of joint action if Britain and France do not accept the German and soviet terms, was intended as a "bogeyman" to frighten them into ending the war.

The British further alleged the move was particularly designed to win the French against the enterprise of making Europe safe against Hitlerism.

British Cabinet Meets.

"But neither the French nor we can be rattled," a British official said.

News of the agreement between Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin and later of the "peace threat," as it was described here, was published in the press with blazing headlines.

Reports of the pact were cabled to London from Moscow this morning by Sir William Seeds, the British ambassador. Immediately thereafter Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's nine member war cabinet met to examine the position in Europe as a result of the action.

Before and after the cabinet meeting the telephone lines to Paris burned with consultative talks with the French government on what common attitude to take against the peace offensive coming from the east. The consultations have not finished. Chamberlain, however, was expected to make a statement in the house of commons Monday.

Call Situation Unchanged.

Official circles expressed the belief that neither the French nor the British were dismayed by what the Russians and Germans have done. Broadly speaking, they said the situation was in no way changed.

The British said Germany will be unable to get any more raw materials from Russia under the new agreement than under the original nonaggression pact.

So far no formal move toward peace has been made by Berlin or Moscow. Diplomatic sources, however, suggested that if and when the peace plan is presented it will have as its main proposals an armistice on the western front and a five power conference, including Germany, Russia, Italy, Britain, and France, to frame some sort of settlement.

Repeat Purpose in War.

Diplomatic quarters also suggested that Italy's colonial problems might be raised at such a conference. Furthermore, it was indicated that the Germans and Russians will seek to include proposals for disarmament on the grounds that the partition of Poland has "removed all causes for war."

Moscow's announcement was seen as a crafty challenge to Washington, D. C. Stalin, according to some diplomatic observers, has been telling President Roosevelt that if he gives supplies and arms to the French and English he [Stalin] will do the same for the Germans.

The British, meanwhile, again reiterated their purpose in the war and that is "to redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurrent fear of German aggression and to enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties."

FRANCE TO REJECT OFFER

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The threat of a military alliance between Germany and Russia in case France and Great Britain rejected Adolf Hitler's anticipated peace offer, tonight did not appear to have shaken France's determination to fight the war to the end.

There was no official French reply to the Nazi-soviet announcement made in Moscow that Russia and Germany had partitioned Poland to their

Demand Parks Put Union Men on Escalators

All this week the escalators in the park district's new four story building at Soldiers' field have been operating smoothly. One set goes up and the other down, silently and efficiently.

The members of the park board, in view of these facts, were astonished yesterday by a demand of Mathew Taylor, president of the Elevator Operators and Starters' union, that eight of his men be hired to watch the escalators and to operate the single push button elevator in the building. The pay roll for the eight men would be about $1,400 a month.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the board, said the escalators had been built in to save the expense of elevator operation, and added: "There is no need for operators."

Demands Called Unjustified.

"We are handling taxpayers' money," Dunham asserted, "and I can't see how we could justify payments to men who have no physical operation to perform. All operators could do would be to furnish standby service. As for the automatic elevator, it is so simple a child could operate it."

Stephen I. Witmanski, board member, also protested against the proposed waste of public funds.

"The employés who work in the building are all able to get up and down escalators without guides. The same is true of visitors. Besides, there is no provision in our budget for operators and no money to pay them."

Louis E. Golan, also a board member, was cold to the proposal.

"Taylor said the loop department stores employed escalator guards," he said. "There is no comparison with the traffic there and in our building, and I see no necessity for operators."

Board Studies Proposals.

Dunham said the matter was under consideration and probably would be discussed at the next meeting on Oct. 10.

Taylor declared that escalator guards are necessary and that union men must be hired.

"It's union work," he said. "Escalator guards come under our jurisdiction. The park building needs guards, too, on account of the women and children who ride. Men are needed to operate the automatic elevator. Careful landlords find it advisable not to let people use such elevators themselves. I don't want to talk any more about it, but I am sure we'll be able to work out something."

Taylor has been the boss of the elevator union for six years. The revenues of the organization have been estimated at $100,000 annually. Last May four members filed a suit demanding an accounting and accusing him of dictatorship.

Later the Building Service Employés' union, an international with which the elevator operators are affiliated, filed a suit to oust Taylor and his aids. This action is still pending. George Scalise of New York is head of the international.

Taylor was questioned in July about the killing of Louis Schiavone, a gangster. On Schiavone's body was found a copy of a confidential audit of the local union's affairs, which had been taken from Taylor's office. The Schiavone murder is still unsolved.

LABOR BOARD ORDERS TEXTILE COMPANY TO PAY 2 IT NEVER HIRED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 [Special].—The National Labor Relations board, in a decision today, ordered a New England textile company to pay two years' wages and to give employment to two men whom the company had never hired. The beneficiaries of the order are Alphone Chartier and Edward G. Geoffrion. The company affected is the Waumbec Mills, Inc., of Manchester, N. H.

In July, 1937, the two men applied for work at the Waumbec company plant. They were interviewed by Superintendent William Zopfi. Chartier and Geoffrion, it was shown at the labor board hearing, had been active in local affairs of the United Textile Workers of America [A. F. of L.]. They were not hired.

At the hearing the company argued that the men were not hired because they were too old and not familiar with the new types of looms in use. The labor board dismissed those contentions and ruled that the men "were turned away because of union affiliation" in violation of the Wagner act. The board then ordered them put to work with accumulated back pay. The company denied union bias.

CHOICE CIGARETS SENT STALIN BY BULGARIAN KING

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 29 (AP).—Cigarets wrapped by King Boris of Bulgaria himself were reported today to have been dispatched to Moscow as a royal gift to soviet union dignitaries.

It was said 20 pounds of Bulgaria's choicest cigarets were carried to the Russian capital by Col. Vasil Boydeff, chief of the Bulgarian air force.

The cigarets bore Boris' insignia and were addressed by the king to Joseph Stalin, secretary of the central committee of the communist party; Premier Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, and War Commissar Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov.

Know Thy Dog by His Nose in Evanston

Now comes a scientific method—they hope—of identifying the lost, strayed, and hot dog! No longer will it be necessary to pick out Towser from a flock of other mutts solely by the cauliflower ear he got from Mathilda, the cat. Just take a nose print.

There has been a considerable lot in song and story about the dog's nose, but it took Dog Warden Chester Nichols and Identification Inspector Fred Bennett of the Evanston police department to figure out that every dog has not only his day but his own special sneezer.

Study Loops and Whorls.

On the authority of these two experts it is asserted that the loops and whorls and bumps on the schnozzola are peculiar to each pooch.

There seems to be no verification of this theory in criminological literature, but every pioneer has his hurdles. One of the problems seems to be that there is no method of classification of the records once they have been taken, Nichols and Bennett complain. You can send a lot of intricate figures over the wire and with them pull out the finger prints and police record of Pete the Lug from any file in the country, but how are you going to describe the striations of a dog's nose, which probably vary with the temperature at that?

Card Index of Noses.

The thing works just as it does with the burglar. A roller is smeared with ink, the ink is then smeared with the roller on the dog's schnabel, and the print then transferred to a permanent card. Then the dog goes home, presses his beezer into his master's palm or rubs it on his pants leg, and the master swears. Simple as that!

"Why," said Nichols earnestly, "we have about a hundred dogs a year that have lost their tags and their happy homes. We have about 20 owners a week hunting their lost dogs. We will nose print 'em, that's what we will do. And reduce this horrible toll."

A Duck Fancier Decoys the Law on Main Street

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 29 (AP).—Informed that a hunter was carrying a string of wild ducks down Main avenue today, with the hunting season still three weeks away, Deputy Game Warden Lew Hawley and Constable Charles Brewster soon had the culprit in custody. He was Roy Best, Harrisburg, S. D., and he had ten ducks of assorted varieties slung over his shoulder. Then the officers examined the birds. They were stuffed.

'I Am' Cultist Sued Again on Fraud Charge

BY MARCIA WINN.

Guy W. Ballard, the mystic high priest of the I Am cult, who claims to be the only living man to whom St. Germain speaks in person, was the target of new charges in Cook county courts yesterday.

Mr. Ballard is a sharp featured man of 60 with a sallow complexion and a honeyed voice. He started his business career as a paperhanger, and now says he is this earth's leading apostle of a movement of color and clamor, "the only sensible law of life." He calls this the Great Cosmic Light Emanating from the Great I Am presence. He has been in and out of Chicago, interested in one occult science after another, since 1915. His name has been in and out of the Cook county courts since 1929.

Mr. Ballard wears only white, symbol of light, with a tie that is pink, the "color of love." Since 1929, the secrets of existence, present and future, have been revealed to him, he says, by St. Germain, an "ascended being" who has lived many lives, last having taken residence on earth in the person of Francis Bacon, but also connected with the prophet Samuel and Uncle Sam.

Mr. Ballard has a weary stance, but a choice vocabulary of invective. All individuals in Chicago who oppose his Light, he promises his followers, "will go down." He leads his followers, none of whom wears red [red is carnal] or black [powers of darkness], in torrents of what he terms "blasting" against the enemies of I Am. He promises to send "the cows and pigs and lambs who have been deprived of life in your stockyards to haunt them." At such remarks his followers shout: "Annihilate! Annihilate! Annihilate!" meaning their enemies, among whom the press looms large.

Mr. Ballard is in Chicago again after an absence of six months, and is concluding a 10 day I Am revival at the Civic Opera house. A former follower, Miss Mary Ingham, who strayed from his mystic fold when he was following Yogi rather than St. Germain, took this opportunity to charge him with conspiracy and intent to defraud.

Asks Return of $6,755.

Miss Ingham first filed suit against Ballard in 1938, asking for the return of $6,755 [with 7 per cent interest, $10,906] she claimed to have loaned him in 1924-'26 for private business ventures. Yesterday, through her attorney, Alfred F. Beck, she filed an amended complaint before Judge John P. McGoorty in Superior court.

In this she tells in detail of a "lake of gold." She says she was induced by their "mutual interest in mysticism and the occult arts and sciences" to help him buy the lake. She gave him the money, she thought, to buy up the last 7,000 acres needed to pump out the gold and other minerals.

Miss Ingham charges that Ballard was secretary of a group known as Cottonwood Association, Ltd., formed to extract fabulous minerals from Owens lake in Inyo county, Cal., about 200 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The association in reality owned none of the lake shore, she charges, never made any attempt to develop the project, and was formed only as "a conspiracy and scheme to defraud the plaintiff and others of money."

Twice Indicted in 1929.

Ballard left Chicago between 1927 and 1929, Miss Ingham charges, and returns upon "infrequent intervals." He was twice indicted here in 1929 on confidence game charges, instigated on the complaints of many women who said they lost thousands in the same "lake of gold" promotion. These indictments were nol prossed last year after restitution or satisfaction.

Mr. Ballard's background is submerged in the mysticism in which he delights. When he first came to Chicago in 1915, presumably from a small town in Iowa, he appeared suddenly one day at the office of Dr. Albert Cochrane, a chiropractor whose offices now are at 39 South State street, and told Cochrane he had clairvoyant powers. He was directed to the office, he said, by a ray of light that shone on Cochrane's name when he opened the telephone directory.

Fourteen years later, in 1929, when Ballard first announced the revelation of the I Am movement, which he says he received on the top of Mount Shasta in a celestial message from St. Germain [the master], that ray of light became the focal point of his new movement.

Ballard angrily scorns the suggestion that he discuss his past. He

GRAND JURY HITS GAMBLING RAIDS AS SHAM BATTLE

Raps Buck Passing of Police, Courts.

Gambling arrests by the Chicago police and the sherif's office are only evidence of a "colossal sham battle" to protect highly organized and politically powerful gambling interests. This was charged yesterday in a special report on the gambling industry, handed to Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court by the September grand jury.

Judge Prystalski.

In unequivocal terms the jury, headed by Harold P. O'Connell, a vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, condemned "buck passing" after gambling arrests and laid a portion of the responsibility on the Municipal courts. Further, it declared that millions of dollars of tax money are being wasted yearly by the sherif and the police in such arrests.

Promises Proper Action.

Judge Prystalski, accepting the document as a supplement to the regular report of the grand jury, said that it would be filed and "proper action taken in the matter."

The jury heard much testimony about open gambling. Among the witnesses were Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien, Lester Laird, chief of the highway police, and Police Commissioner Allman. Others were George Turner, manager of the Gateway, a gambling resort on Skokie road; A. J. Creighton, Sidney Sorkin and William Fishman, said to be handbook operators. Mrs. Mildred Frank, 5488 Greenwood avenue, told of losing $350 at the Harlem Stables, Harlem avenue and Irving Park road.

The jury wanted to question Bill Johnson, reputed boss of three big resorts, including the Gateway. He and the managers of the Harlem Stables and the Dev-Lin in Lincolnwood evaded service of subpenas.

Full Text of Report.

"Evidence presented before the September grand jury includes sworn testimony that gambling is being openly conducted throughout Chicago and Cook county on a very extensive scale and practically unmolested. Arrests are made by the hundreds but the evidence indicates such arrests are nothing but a sham and an insult to the intelligence of the public.

"That branch of the Municipal court before which these cases come obtains no evidence, but the judges in turn contribute to the travesty by condoning the steady parade through their courts. Thousands of arrests have been made, but there has not been a single conviction in years. Millions of dollars of tax money are wasted yearly in this colossal sham battle.

"This mockery is worse than the evil it purports to correct. In the meantime evidence indicates gambling to be so strongly controled that we have a handful of men actually prohibiting gambling in Cook county excepting in those spots which they themselves control in some undisclosed manner.

Offer Practical Suggestions.

"This jury is not naive enough to think that it can stamp out gambling, nor is it inclined to try. But it does submit what it considers practical suggestions to combat the pressure of unseen forces on our law enforcing bodies.

"A. First of all, we seriously condemn the prevalent practice of passing the buck between the policing bodies of the city and county and the courts. Responsibility for the enforcement of these laws rests with the police department and the sherif's office.

"B. Make proper and sincere arrests of all persons on the premises, not just a couple of stooges, as the present system seems to follow.

"D. Reorganize the bail bond procedure.

"F. If the policing bodies of the city of Chicago and Cook county exercise the same efficiency in suppressing gambling as they do in combating major crime, we believe that the present highly organized gambling racket in the city and county would be wiped out.

"We recommend the continued prosecution of gambling by the state's attorney with definite action toward removing from office such officials as are shown to be lax or inefficient.

"This jury has had more direct testimony, not merely hearsay evidence, presented to it in three weeks through the activity of the state's attorney's office than 6,300 officers of the city and county police have previously been able to find."

Judge Joseph B. Hermes of the Municipal court yesterday continued the cases of 23 persons, arrested in gambling raids to Oct. 20. Attorneys for the defendants requested that the search warrants on which the arrests were made be quashed. Charges against three men, seized by police without search warrants, were dismissed.

MYSTERY MURDER WITNESS HELD AS ROBBER SUSPECT

Kenneth Colling.

Kenneth Colling, who figured as an incidental witness in the mysterious murder of Louis Straub, a bartender at the Saddle and Cycle club in 1935, was held as a robbery conspirator by Racine avenue police last night.

Sergt. Joseph Ponicki and Detective Charles Pawlowski said Colling arranged the kidnap hold-up last June 16 of Aribert E. Vaughan, auditor for the Sievert Electric company, 1349 Bauwans street. Vaughan was seized near the plant by two men and a woman, robbed of a $1,700 pay roll, and hurled from their speeding car. One of the bandits was Dominic Incandella, 1226 Howe street, now in custody. On his story, Colling and Joseph J. Serio, 726 Evergreen avenue, were arrested. Police said Colling told Serio that Vaughan was a good robbery prospect, and Serio hired Incandella. Colling and Serio have confessed, Ponicki said.

Colling lives at 1432 North La Salle street. In 1935 he was a cab driver. On the night of Feb. 3 that year he drove two mystery women to the Saddle and Cycle club. A short time later Straub was slain, presumably by a woman. The murder is still unsolved.

The beautiful hand of today is not the tiny, lily-white, fluttering thing of grandmother's day. The winner of a hand contest conducted yesterday as a forerunner of the American National Cosmeticians' association convention wears a size 7½ glove.

Not only are the hands of Miss Loretta Mariethel Rammel, 5252 Agatite avenue, large. They are tan, and rarely are protected from inclement weather by gloves. She never uses cream on them, but washes dishes, scrubs floors, irons, and gardens.

Miss Rammel, 23 years old, and a night student at the John Marshall law school, was one of 34 contestants. Miss Mercedes Kenney of 1410 Thorndale avenue, 19, an art student, and Miss Elaine Stern of 5408 Ellis avenue, 18 and a secretary, tied for second place.

RAIN ROUTS LONG AUTUMN DROUTH IN CENTRAL WEST

Soil Softened for Plowing and Wheat Seeding.

BY HOMER NEISZ.

Gentle rains that fell Thursday night and yesterday over much of the central west brought relief from one of the longest and most severe fall drouths on record. The rains were preceded by scattered showers in many sections earlier in the week.

Farmers were cheered by the hope that enough rain had fallen to soften the soil for fall plowing and sowing of winter wheat. Next year's crop of winter wheat was being threatened because farmers were unable to work the dry soil and prepare it for planting. Only a little wheat has been sown. A good portion of the winter crop usually is planted by the last of September.

Pastures Brown and Dusty.

Pastures in Illinois and adjoining states are poor. Many had been brown and dusty for more than a month. Some already are beginning to green up, following light rains Monday and Tuesday.

Rainfall at weather bureau stations in Illinois during the first twenty-nine days of this month averaged less than half an inch. The mean September rainfall for the state over the last 50 years has been 3.77 inches.

Most weather bureau stations in Indiana report that less than an inch of rain had fallen in the last six weeks. Water supplies for live stock had become a serious problem on many farms in Iowa. Good rains were general over Iowa Thursday night. Short pastures had cut milk production on dairy farms in Wisconsin where most dairymen were forced to feed their herds stored roughage to offset the lack of green forage. There have been showers each day this week in most of Michigan.

New Grasses Damaged.

The drouth damaged new seedings of grasses and legumes made last spring. Poor stands have resulted in some fields and the young plants in others have been stunted until they are thought to be in poor condition to withstand winter weather.

There have been some favorable results from the dry weather. It has made possible early harvesting of the big crops of corn and soy beans. Much of the corn is dry enough to be picked and stored. Corn picking already has started in most sections of Illinois.

Drouth and hot weather ripened soy beans faster than usual and part of the crop has been harvested. The acreage of soy beans in the corn belt is the largest on record. High yields are expected. Eighty-five per cent of the crop in Illinois is reported safe from frost.

Cabin Cruiser Damaged in River; Hit by Barge

The Heather, a 36 foot cabin cruiser, was damaged last evening in a collision with a barge in the river between Jackson boulevard and Adams street. The barge, the John I. Hay, was moving south on the river pushed by a tug, when it struck the Heather which was going north. Capt. Davy Jones, who lives on board the cruiser, estimated the damage at several thousand dollars. The Heather is owned by Robert H. Cameron, official of a machinery manufacturing company at 240 North Ashland avenue.

ALL WOMAN JURY AWARDS $2,500 IN AUTO DEATH SUIT

A sealed verdict awarding damages of $2,500 to the heirs of Dominick Passaretti in a $10,000 personal injury suit against Policeman John Sawka of Summit was opened yesterday before Judge Daniel P. Trude in Circuit court. The verdict was reached Thursday night by the first all woman jury in Cook county's history.

Only 11 of the jurors were in court yesterday, the twelfth, Mrs. Lillian Hardeis, 1307 Adams street, having suffered a back injury as she was leaving her home. Mrs. Leona Feitz, 5529 Ardmore avenue, forewoman of the jury, said only one ballot was taken and the only question was on the amount of money to be awarded.

Passaretti, a WPA worker, was killed Oct. 1, 1937, when he was struck by Sawka's automobile. The heirs, the widow and two children, were represented by Attorney Guy C. Guerine. The village of Summit was co-defendant in the suit but was found not guilty by the jury.

GAMBLING FIGHT WILL CONTINUE, COURTNEY SAYS

State's Attorney Courtney's comment on the report of the grand jury condemning lax enforcement of the anti-gambling laws in Cook county was brief.

"We shall continue to collect evidence and present it to the next grand jury," he said. "Assistant State's Attorney Thomas J. Bugan will be in charge of the work."

Among those who could not be found last night for comment were Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien, Chief Lester Laird of the county highway police and Police Commissioner Allman.

HURT IN FALL OUT WINDOW.

Thomas McCluskey, 43 years old, 34 South Hoyne avenue, fell from his second story window yesterday when he went to look at the weather. He incurred a fractured skull and left arm.

'I AM' CULTIST SUED AGAIN ON FRAUD CHARGE

Ex-Disciple Asks $6,755 with Interest.

'I Am' Leader Sued

Guy W. Ballard, high priest of the I Am cult, and his wife, Edna, his high priestess. Ballard was sued again yesterday by a former disciple who charged conspiracy and intent to defraud.

tells his followers that a lethal ray will strike any reporter who writes "vicious" lies about the I Am movement or about the Ballards. For there are three Ballards—Mr. Ballard; his wife, the former Edna Anna Wheeler of Chicago, a harpist whom he married in 1916, and their son, Donald, now 21.

Mrs. Ballard, who serves as high priestess, usually wears a flowing pink [for love] evening dress and a diamond wreath in her blond hair, and alternates between a long pink marabou cape and a white ostrich wrap.

The Ballards insist the I Am is not a religion or a cult. They say it is the "only sensible law of life." St. Germain is the guiding spirit. Ballard is assisted in sending shafts of light by the "ascended masters," those so pure that they were consumed by light, a form of spontaneous combustion, and wafted to the heights.

Dictation from Gods.

At times one of the I Am gods, such as Nada [goddess of love], Arcturus [liberty], Astrea or Oromasis "dictates" to the Ballards in public. Their words, emitted through the mouths of Ballards in trancelike state, are a mixture of mysticism, dire prophecy, and electrical phrases. Dynamics and electronics are popular words.

A reporter attended a meeting, snatching off her hat as she entered the opera house to conform to I Am procedure [the light descends better upon an uncovered head; it only penetrates to the chin, as all beneath that is carnal]. She was ushered in by a middle aged woman, eyes alight with mystical fervor, who was dressed in white and girdled in gold.

The Ballards were alone on a stage bedecked with greenery, white artificial palms, and pictures, one of St. Germain. A huge banner, on which two saintlike figures radiated streams of light as well as the entire color spectrum, was suspended from the ceiling. What seemed to be a diamond heart [in the light of Mrs. Ballard's later reference to "the golden robes, the diamond heart, and the blue flame"] sparkled on a fluid violet screen. The Ballards had a throne apiece.

Demands, Not Prayers.

The meeting opened with decrees, the I Am word for prayers. [One should not pray or beseech, they say; one must decree and demand.] Standing, in order to feel the activity of the light rays, they shouted some 10 decrees in unison, repeating each decree three times, such as:

"Mighty Cosmic Light, come forth and do your perfect work now!"

They then sang, from yellow songbooks, songs such as this, "The Violet Flame," sung to the tune of "Adeste Fideles":

O "Mighty I Am," in thy own sacred name,
Blaze up through and 'round me thy pure violet flame;
Cause me to feel thy loving fire pour through me.
"I Am" thy full perfection!
"I Am" thy full perfection!
"I Am" thy full perfection!
Released from thee!

First one Ballard spoke and then the other. When Ballard made a particularly stirring remark his followers surged to their feet to engage in a strange, flat-chested clap, or breast beating, often of five minutes duration. Ballard dismissed their adulation with a tender, "Sit, my precious ones."

Orders Full Pocketbooks.

He led them in decrees, all standing. He decreed that all illness leave their bodies, that all their pocketbooks be filled, that the "glory of eternal youth" come to them all [most of them, seven-eighths women, were middle aged].

He led them in "blasting," in which the followers shouted, in mighty choruses, to "Annihilate! Annihilate! Annihilate!" their enemies.

Quoth the followers: "Charge! Charge! Charge!"

"Any one who stands against this," he cried, "I shall blast his carcass to pieces."

At this the followers rose in a torrent of flat-chested applause.

Mr. Ballard spoke bitterly of his enemies, saying they could not fell him, for, he said, "I never felt such powers in my life as when I walked upon this stage."

Envelopes for "Love Gifts."

Recently some one in Minneapolis called the I Am a racket, he said indignantly, and a follower replied, "If it was money we wanted, he [Ballard] could go into the mountains and locate the richest mine."

"St. Germain led me to it before," Ballard agreed happily, "and he could do it again, but the time has not arrived."

This was his only reference, if that it was, to his "Lake of Gold." The Ballards ask for no money in their open meetings, but envelopes are distributed for "I Am" love gifts. But, his followers assert, there is a lake of molten gold at the core of the earth, and Ballard can release it at will.

Mr. Ballard has 15 days, Judge McGoorty ruled yesterday, to file an answer to his former disciple's amended complaint about his California lake of gold.

NEW CITY CODE PUBLISHED; END OF 3 YEARS' WORK

Chicago's new city code was published yesterday, culminating three years of work by the city legal department. The code was passed by the city council Aug. 30 and becomes effective 10 days after publication, on Oct. 9.

The new code is the only one of its type in the country, according to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, who directed its compilation.

OWNER LEAVES AND SO DO HIS TWO MONKEYS

Yesterday morning two monkeys were sitting on the roof of a house at 2236 Farragut street. A crowd gathered. Some one called the police. But the policeman who responded took just one look at the monkeys and shook his head. It was not a case for the police, he said, and left.

A little later some one remembered having seen two monkeys in a cage set in the center of the pony ring at the Flying V. F. Riding academy at 2434 Berwyn avenue. A call to the academy revealed that the door of its monkey cage was open, and the monkeys were gone. A spokesman for the academy said:

"The animals are Golden Rhesus monkeys from India. Their owner left town a couple of weeks ago and we don't know when he will return, if ever. The same goes for the monkeys."

At this writing the monkeys were still on the roof.

School Christmas Holiday Shortened to Two Weeks

Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson announced yesterday that the Christmas vacation of the public schools will be only two weeks instead of three as previously planned. This will enable the schools to close next June 21, instead of June 28, for the summer vacation. Dr. Johnson said the change was made at the request of parent-teacher and other groups which preferred that children stay in school the extra week in winter rather than in summer.

FEDERAL COURT FIXING CHARGED; 5 ARE INDICTED

Two Former Assistant Prosecutors Accused.

The federal grand jury yesterday hit an alleged case fixing racket involving two former assistant United States attorneys, which was said to have been operated in the federal courts for nearly four years.

Indictments charging conspiracy were returned against five defendants, including the two former assistant prosecutors, who were charged with accepting bribes to fix alcohol tax cases. The three others indicted were said to have been the go-betweens in the alleged racket.

The case was believed to be without precedent in the history of the federal district court here. It was said this was the first time federal employés here have been charged with tampering with federal court justice. The government last night prepared to move for an early trial.

List of Defendants.

The former assistant prosecutors are:

DANIEL D. GLASSER, 135 South La Salle street, now living in Michigan City, Ind., who resigned last May after being a government prosecutor for four years.

NORTON I. KRETSKE, 1225 Newberry avenue, with offices at 7 South Dearborn street, who resigned in April, 1937, after serving three years.

The others indicted are:

LOUIS KAPLAN, 3152 Ogden avenue, described as a peddler of illicit alcohol, who once was arrested by government agents on a charge of violating the alcohol tax laws.

Roth, Horton, and Kaplan are accused of accepting money from bootleggers, operators of stills, and other liquor law violators arrested by government agents to influence the outcome of cases.

Bribe Collection Charged.

Roth is said to have acted chiefly as the defense lawyer in cases to be fixed. Horton and Kaplan, according to the indictment, were contact men and bribe collectors.

The period during which the cases allegedly were fixed was from March 15, 1935, to last January.

Yesterday's indictment contained two conspiracy counts. Maximum punishment on conviction on either count is two years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both.

United States Attorney William J. Campbell indicated that the defendants will be given a few days in which to surrender and put up bond, but added he will seek an early trial.

"In the interest of federal justice," he said, "this case must come to a fair and impartial trial. The faith of the citizens in the dignity and integrity of their government demands it. Personally, this is a matter of deep regret."

Glasser described the charges as ridiculous. He asserted he also will ask for an early trial.

Missing Stenographer Found Dead in Milwaukee Hotel

Miss Patricia Beaudry, 32 years old, 20 East Delaware place, who was reported by two roommates to be missing last Wednesday, was found dead yesterday in a hotel in Milwaukee, Wis. The Milwaukee coroner's office notified Chicago police that she had committed suicide. Miss Beaudry, a stenographer, had registered under the name of Prudence Brown. She was traced through a key tag in her purse.

TWO ELECTION JUDGES JAILED FOR CONTEMPT

Two men, charged with contempt of court arising out of vote frauds in the April 12, 1938, primary when they were election officials in the 49th precinct of the 24th ward, were found guilty yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. One of the defendants, Milton Festenstein, 1623 Millard avenue, a Democratic election judge, got three years in the county jail. This is believed to be the heaviest penalty ever imposed for such an offense.

Milton Festenstein.

Barney Tract, 1622 South Drake avenue, a Republican judge, was sentenced to two years. Three women election officials in the precinct were acquitted. They are Mrs. Mildred Klein, 1617 Millard avenue, Republican judge; Mrs. Molly Cohen, 1646 South Central Park avenue, Democratic clerk, and Miss Rose Weinstein, 1650 South Drake avenue, Republican clerk.

ARRESTED ON VICE CHARGE; SHE HAS $80,000 IN BANK

When Mrs. Grace Van Scoyk Wilson, whose record for shoplifting and prostitution goes back to 1915, was arrested early yesterday—for the tenth time—police found bank books in her apartment at 6211 Dorchester avenue showing bank deposits of more than $80,000.

Mrs. Wilson was arrested by Capt. John Howe and two of his men from Commissioner Allman's special investigation detail. She will be arraigned today in Women's court on a charge of habitual prostitution and as the keeper of a disorderly house. She gave the name of Mae Wright, and said she is 47.

M'GARRY TO FACE HEARING MONDAY ON 2 INDICTMENTS

Two indictments naming Judge Eugene L. McGarry of the Municipal court were returned late yesterday by the grand jury. One, charging malfeasance in office, numbered 240 pages and included 41 counts. The other had two counts, one of obstructing justice and one of conspiracy to take false acknowledgment of bail bonds.

Judge McGarry immediately posted the $2,000 bond set and asked Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court for an immediate trial. Justice Prystalski turned to Judge McGarry after both had signed the bonds and told him his case would be heard at 10 a. m. Monday.

The conspiracy indictment also names Sam Brin, missing west side saloonkeeper, and Harold Gendon, present owner of the $97 Bellwood lot which McGarry permitted to be posted as surety for bonds for many times its value. Seven other indictments charging Brin with forgery of bail bonds also were returned. Judge McGarry, who is not to be confused with Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry, was unassigned yesterday in a new list of Municipal court posts issued by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby.

EX-CONVICT SHOT IN SALOON DIES; PROBE MYSTERY

Jack Nevills, ex-convict and handyman in the gambling racket, died last night in the Evangelical hospital of bullet wounds inflicted in a gun fight in a saloon at 5105 South Halsted street early Thursday.

He died without naming his assailants. His only story was that he was shot in a holdup. The tavern where the shooting occurred was said by police to be a hangout for Danny Stanton, dry era bootlegger. One report is that he owns the place. He is being sought for questioning.

BLAME MYSTERY ILLNESS FOR WILD INVASION OF HOME

Advertising Man Wounded After Shovel Attack.

Joseph J. Finn, a young advertising executive, was recovering in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, last evening from shotgun wounds suffered after he battered his way into the home of a stranger in Northfield at midnight Thursday. He is 35 years old.

The strange chain of events that led to the shooting began when Finn, his wife, Elaine, who live at 440 Oakdale avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Madden, 2115 Lincoln Park West, a brother and sister-in-law, attended a family gathering at the home of another brother-in-law, Arthur Gallagher, in Sunset boulevard in Northfield. The Maddens and Finns left the Gallagher home at 11:30 p. m.

Disappears in Field.

The Finn car was stopped at Willow street and Skokie boulevard in Winnetka, about 10 minutes later. Finn, believed to be suffering from a nervous derangement, jumped from the machine and fled into the open fields. Mrs. Finn and the Maddens searched for him for 20 minutes and then notified Winnetka police of his disappearance.

About this time Finn, having run across half a mile of prairie, appeared at the home of Thomas F. Scanlon at Drury lane and Wagner road in Northfield. He smashed several windows with a shovel, then beat open the glass door of the house and entered. The Scanlons fled to an upstairs room.

Finn followed and beat down the door of the room where the Scanlons were barricaded. Scanlon grappled with Finn while Mrs. Scanlon, clad in a nightgown, ran to the home of a neighbor, Edward Ottman, a telephone company supervisor. Scanlon escaped from Finn and followed.

Attacks with Shovel.

Ottman was roused and police were called. Taking a shotgun Ottman accompanied Scanlon back to the Scanlon home. While the men were walking around the house Finn suddenly burst out of the garage at the rear and, waving his shovel, rushed both Scanlon and Ottman.

"I called to him to stop," said Ottman later. "He kept coming. I could just see his face and white shirt and his arms waving the shovel. I fired a shot at what I thought were his feet. Still he kept coming. I fired again, at his knees, and finally, as he didn't stop, at his hips."

Tests at St. Francis hospital, where the wounded man was taken, showed that he had not been intoxicated.

GIRL ATTACKED IN ROOM CAN'T NAME ASSAILANT

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 29 [Special].—Fifteen year old Charlene Overholser, a high school girl who was attacked as she lay in her bed in her grandparents' home, was questioned by police today at St. Joseph's hospital, where she is expected to recover.

All the girl would say, the police said, was: "I honestly don't know who did it."

Charlene's grandmother, Mrs. Obie Overholser, said she found the girl moaning in her bed early Thursday. Two fingers of her right hand had been lopped off with a hatchet; her throat had been slashed, and her head lacerated.

Kokomo Police Chief Clinton Jackson said the girl told him that before retiring, she swallowed a half dozen tablets she thought had been prescribed by a physician. Jackson is proceeding with his investigation on the theory that these tablets were a powerful sedative which made the girl unaware of the attack when it was made.

Woman Freed on Charge of Slaying Baby in 1937

Mrs. Anna Cahill, 40 years old, 3134 West 38th street, was found not guilty yesterday by a Criminal court jury of a charge of murder. She was accused of slaying in 1937 a baby born to Anna Sypula, 24, who was the state's chief witness. Mrs. Cahill was found guilty ten days ago of a child abandonment charge in connection with another infant born to Miss Sypula and Mrs. Cahill's brother.

CAR LINES BALK AT FRANCHISE TO KEEP 7 CT. FARE

Agree to Omit Valuation in Ordinance Draft.

Representatives of the transit lines yesterday agreed to accept Mayor Kelly's suggestion, made Wednesday, to omit a fixed valuation for the transit properties in drafting the proposed unified traction ordinance. The companies and the city, however, ran into a deadlock on the question of fares to be charged by the unified company.

The transit lines' three man negotiating committee met with Mayor Kelly and the committee on local transportation. The three negotiators are Walter A. Shaw, traction adviser to the federal court; Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, and Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee for the elevated lines.

Mayor Asks 7 Cent Fare.

Mayor Kelly and the aldermen proposed that present rates of fare, including the 7 cent street car fare, be written into the new ordinance, and that this fare remain in effect until a revision might be granted by the Chicago local transit commission, which would have jurisdiction over fares under the unification program.

The negotiators asserted, however, that they could not agree to maintain the 7 cent car fare and at the same time agree to burden the new company with millions of dollars of additional expenses that will be made necessary by the city's franchise proposals. The negotiators have proposed an 8 cent street car fare.

"If you want us to agree to the 7 cent fare, but also to agree to set up a pension system for employés, pay for paving rights of way and for street cleaning, pay compensation to the city for the use of streets, and add many miles of extensions, you are asking the impossible," Richardson told Mayor Kelly. "If the city is willing to defer some of these burdens until the company's earning power shows that expenses can be met, then an initial fare of 7 cents may be possible"

Outline Terms Wednesday.

The negotiators agreed to outline to the transportation committee on Wednesday the conditions under which they would agree by franchise to maintain the present fare of 7 cents for an initial period—until both the companies and the city present their arguments to the proposed transit commission. On Thursday the negotiators will report to the federal court on the progress of their franchise negotiations.

Mayor Kelly said the city council could not put itself in the position of approving an ordinance for a company charging a 7 cent fare and then having the fare raised at once to 8 cents. The new company could place an 8 cent fare in effect by filing a new schedule of fares, and the schedule would hold unless suspended by the transit commission.

Richardson said the unified system would be "broke to start with" if it took on the added expenses required by the city and kept the 7 cent fare. He asserted it would lack credit and hence be unable to finance the $45,000,000 purchase of new cars, as contemplated in the modernization program.

ROB HOTEL CLERK OF $150.

MRS. ERNEST SIMPSON.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Mary Kirk Simpson, wife of Ernest Simpson, former husband of the duchess of Windsor, gave birth to a son at the Sutton Surrey Nursing home, it was announced today. Mrs. Simpson, formerly Mrs. Jacques A. L. Raffray, married Simpson at Brook Lawn Country club, Fairfield, Conn., in November, 1937. Simpson, born in New York, is a member of the crack British regiment, the Coldstream Guards. He lives in Kensington, West London.

CHICAGO'S COST! $24 A MONTH FOR EACH MAN ON WPA

Money for Supplies to Keep Them Busy.

The city of Chicago paid $24 a man to keep Work Projects administration workers at their jobs during the last month, Neil H. Jacoby told the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday. Jacoby is the chairman of the commission.

The $24 a man month cost applied only to those who were working on construction projects, it was explained later. Nearly half of the WPA employés in Chicago are on white collar projects.

Earlier in the day Jacoby and Samuel H. Nudelman, state finance director and IERC member, discussed with Mayor Kelly the question of using state relief funds as part of the city's sponsor cost of WPA projects. The legislature permitted such use of relief funds at its last session.

"I was told this morning that it costs the city $24 a man month to keep WPA workers on their jobs," Jacoby said before the commission. "That cost is about equal to that of keeping a family on the direct relief rolls in Chicago."

The WPA pays the wages of its relief workers and also supplies part of the cost for materials and supplies on projects. The sponsor must provide the balance.

As of Sept. 20 there were 51,302 WPA workers in Chicago, of whom 31,613 were on construction projects. The remaining 19,592 were white collar workers. This unusually high percentage of white collar workers has been attributed by relief experts to the city's inability to finance a major share of the higher cost of construction projects.

TROUBLES AGAIN RISE TO PLAGUE 'BIRTH OF NATION'

May Ban Showing After Negroes Protest.

"The Birth of a Nation," the old movie about the reconstruction days following the civil war, is in trouble again in Chicago. It isn't the first time. In 1917, and again in 1924, it was shown here only after the courts came to its rescue.

Yesterday Lieut. Harry Costello, head of the police deparment's movie censor bureau, asked Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes if he could ban the picture, which has been revived. Hodes said last night that he would inform Costello today of his right to do so.

Negro Leaders Protest.

Hodes announced his opinion after a delegation of 25 leaders from the south side colored district called on Mayor Kelly to ask that the revival be stopped.

Their complaint, as it has been since the picture was originally produced by D. W. Griffith in 1915, is that it incites racial hatred and places the Negro race in a wrong position.

"The picture should be banned," Mayor Kelly said after their visit. "I don't approve of censorship but any show that incites racial hatred should be stopped."

Lieut. Costello sought the corporation counsel's opinion because of a permanent injunction issued in 1917 which prevented police interference.

Courts Halt Police Efforts.

When the picture was revived in 1924 Chicago police made another effort to stop it, but the courts upheld the original injunction.

Hodes said the picture can now be banned because the latest revival is produced to the accompaniment of synchronized sound and that it is in fact a new production.

ASSESSED VALUATION CUT IN RACINE LAID TO AUTO PLANT LOSS

Racine, Wis., Sept. 29 [Special].—Assessed valuation of real and personal property in Racine has just been fixed at $3,102,625 less than last year's valuation of $106,750,271. Public assessors attribute this reduction mainly to the removal of Nash Motor corporation operations from its factory here to its plant in Kenosha.

About half of the depreciation is said to be directly due to the Nash removal and the balance to the indirect slowing up of business as a result of the loss of pay roll and population and diminished building activities.

The Nash Racine plant was closed and the equipment moved after a series of disputes with the C. I. O. auto workers union. Many of the men formerly employed in the Racine plant now work in the Kenosha plant.

EXILED PRINCE LOWENSTEIN IS VISITOR IN CITY

Prince Hubertus Friedrich Löwenstein, who was the leader of the Catholic Centrist party in Germany until Hitler's rise outlawed all other parties than the Nazi and exiled their leaders, arrived in Chicago last night on an American Airlines plane on his way west. He will lecture at Washington State college in Pullman for three weeks.

Prince Löwenstein and his wife arrived yesterday in New York on the S. S. President Roosevelt after a three weeks' delay in leaving France. Princess Löwenstein will remain in New York until his return there about Christmas time.

The prince said the vessel, one of the United States Lines, kept a watch all the way from Bordeaux to Queenstown to New York for submarines, but none were sighted. He will lecture in Washington on world politics, particularly Hitler politics.

Sewer Job Will Hold Up Michigan Avenue Traffic

Otto K. Jelinek, park district traffic engineer, said yesterday that traffic in Michigan avenue, at Washington street and at Jackson boulevard, will be impeded for two weeks, beginning Monday, while the board of local improvements connects an existing four foot sewer with a new seven foot sewer being constructed between East Wacker drive and Jackson boulevard. Jackson boulevard will be closed between Clinton and Jefferson streets from 1 a. m. to 6 p. m. tomorrow while new street car tracks are laid across the boulevard at Clinton street.

25,000 EXPECTED AT FOUR STATES' G. O. P. GATHERING

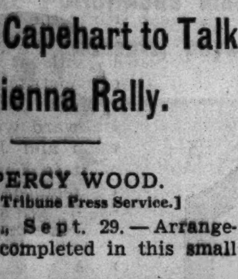
BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Vienna, Ill., Sept. 29.—Arrangements were completed in this small southern Illinois community late today to accommodate a crowd which may total 25,000 at tomorrow's four-state Republican rally. Delegations are coming across the Illinois border from Kentucky, Indiana, and Missouri to hear Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Homer E. Capehart of Washington, Ind., host at last fall's G. O. P. cornfield conference.



Map locates scene of rally.

The Johnson county fair grounds will be the scene of tomorrow's gathering. Last year about 20,000 persons came here to listen to former Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, the 1936 Republican presidential nominee.

Country Doctor Sponsors Rally.

Responsible for the Landon and Taft appearances is a slight, serious browed country physician, Dr. Lewis L. Jackson, who is by no means an experienced politician. Dr. Jackson has practiced here for nine years following his graduation from Loyola university's medical school in Chicago, but not until 1936 did he become completely exasperated with the way the Democrats were handling things. Then he ran for coroner of Johnson county and was elected. Last year he was named county chairman and staged the Landon show single-handed.

Tomorrow's rally has some organized support behind it. Not only is the state central committee coöperating, but A. K. Stiles of Sycamore, state chairman, will preside on the platform. Three other state chairmen—Thomas Yates of Kentucky, Arch Bobbitt of Indiana, and Barak T. Mattingly of Missouri—will be present.

Rock Ribbed Republicanism.

The G. O. P. partisans who attend the Taft-Capehart rally tomorrow should feel perfectly at home in Johnson county, for it has a rock ribbed Republican history. Even in 1932 President Hoover carried it by 37 votes, and four years later Gov. Landon led President Roosevelt by 1,040 votes. This was something in the nature of a local landslide, considering the fact that there were only about 6,200 votes in the county.

Most of the announced or potential Illinois state candidates are expected to be in Vienna by 10 a. m. tomorrow when the program begins. Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, aspirant for state's attorney general, led the vanguard of those who reached here tonight.

Richard J. Lyons, Wayland Brooks, Dwight H. Green, Edward A. Hayes, and Elmer J. Schnackenberg are among the probable candidates for governor whom Dr. Jackson expects to attend. Speaker Hugh Cross of the Illinois house, who has announced his candidacy for the lieutenant governorship, is another reported on his way here, as is William B. McCauley, candidate for state auditor.

City Employes Elect 2 Benefit Fund Trustees

John P. Dillon, assistant chief street inspector, and Jacob G. Bennema, school engineer-custodian, were elected by city and school employés yesterday as trustees of the Municipal Employés Annuity and Benefit fund. Dillon was unopposed for reëlection to a regular 3 year term. Bennema defeated two other candidates for the vacancy caused by the death of Arthur W. James. His term will expire Dec. 1, 1940.

MISS PEGGY O'NEIL.

Twelve attractive co-eds at the University of Chicago were presented last night as candidates for freshman beauty queen at the first football dance of the season in Ida Noyes hall. The nominations were made by the Pulse, student monthly magazine, and Cap and Gown, student yearbook.

The presentation was made before more than 500 persons, while a judging committee made up of students and Prof. William M. Randall, dean of publications, looked on. The winner will be announced between halves at the Chicago-Beloit football game this afternoon.

GETS TEN DAYS FOR RECKLESS. DRUNK DRIVING

Edward Cyscon, 2016 Lockwood avenue, a laborer, was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail for reckless driving and 10 days for driving while intoxicated, the sentences to run concurrently, by Judge Francis Borrelli in Safety court yesterday. He also was fined $25 for having no driver's license. Cyscon was arrested Aug. 20 after speeding 68 miles an hour in Jackson boulevard near Western avenue and attempting to back into the police car when he was curbed.

The sentence was the last imposed by Judge Borrelli as he ended three months in Safety court. During that time he sent 145 defendants to jail, assessed 177 fines and suspended 231 drivers' licenses. Judge Joseph B. Hermes will go into Safety court Monday.

SEIZE RECORDS OF COMMUNIST GROUP FOR DIES

Discover Names of More Federal Workers.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Agents of the Dies committee on un-American activities raided the Washington headquarters of the American League for Peace and Democracy last night, it was revealed today. They obtained the names of more than 1,000 members of this communist organized and dominated United Front organization.

A majority of the members were said to be officials and employés of the federal government, with an especially large representation in the National Labor Relations board and the department of labor.

President Roosevelt intimated at his press conference today that the administration has no intention of purging the government service of communists. The names of 2,850 are contained in a list compiled by J. Edgar Hoover's federal bureau of investigation. This list is now in the possession of the Dies committee.

May Make List Public.

Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the committee on un-American activities, had announced that he had information from authoritative sources that the 2,850 communists would be purged from the government service. When asked about this, Mr. Roosevelt said he still was waiting to ascertain the source of Dies' information. He said it was all news to him.

These two developments in the controversy between the Dies committee and the Roosevelt administration over the communists in what Dies calls key government positions brought assertions from sources close to the committee that unless the administration acts with reasonable dispatch to separate the communists from the pay rolls that the 2,850 names on the Hoover list, and perhaps those on the list obtained in the raid last night, will be made public.

It also was revealed today that the Hoover list of 2,850 communists in the government service was presented to Mr. Roosevelt when it was compiled by Mr. Hoover's G-men about two years ago. Mr. Roosevelt was represented as saying the government could do nothing about it.

Suppressed by Department.

The list was suppressed by the justice department and Mr. Hoover was rebuked, it was said, for overstepping his authority. This is the bureau which President Roosevelt ordered enlarged by 150 men, under his "limited" national emergency proclamation of Sept. 8, for the purpose of combating espionage, sabotage, and subversive propaganda.

Members of the Dies committee refuse to reveal how their copy of the suppressed list that was presented to Mr. Roosevelt was obtained. Dies refused to discuss the matter at all, except to comment after Mr. Roosevelt's press conference that if the 2,850 communists are not purged they ought to be.

Not One Removed.

From other sources, however, it was learned that Dies had little reason to expect any action by the administration to eliminate the communists from the government service. One of the government officials named on the secret list is Nathan Witt, secretary of the National Labor Relations board.

When a United States senator was told about this, according to Dies committee sources, he went to President Roosevelt and asked him whether Witt would be removed. The President, it is said, replied emphatically that Witt would not be removed.

Thus far not one of the 2,850 government officials and employés named on the list has been removed. All of them deny that they are communists, it is understood, but members of the Dies committee have confidence in the investigating ability of the federal bureau of investigation.

When the Dies committee agents raided the Washington headquarters of the American League for Peace and Democracy, the office staff fled and left only a clerk who refused to impart any information concerning the books, records, and membership rolls.

Committee operatives thereupon called Dr. Harry F. Ward, national chairman of the organization, in New York, and demanded to know what kind of an underground outfit he was running. As a result of this telephone call, committee agents declared, Harry C. Lamberton, Washington chairman of the league, soon appeared and produced the records.

Mr. Lamberton is chief of the opinion section and assistant to the general counsel of the rural electrification administration.

Organized by Communists.

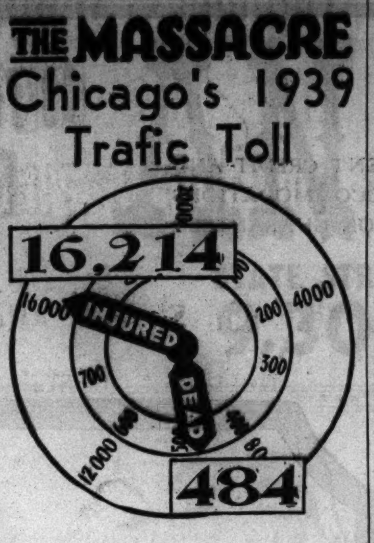
The American League for Peace and Democracy, called prior to November, 1937, the American League Against War and Fascism, was organized and is dominated by communists, according to its own official program. When Dies committee exposed its communist origin, more than a year ago, many prominent members of the organization, including high officials in the Roosevelt administration, disavowed any communistic leanings.

William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist party, was a witness before the Dies committee today. He made a flat assertion that he would not support the United States if it entered the present war, which he termed an imperialistic war.

Foster promised to submit the names of as many communist leaders, organizers, and officials as possible, but shouted:

"You're covering up."

Foster suggested the committee get names of persons connected with Father Coughlin, the Detroit priest; the Associated Farmers, and other organizations.



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

1 KILLED, 4 HURT AS 2 AUTOS AND TRUCK COLLIDE

Miss Lucille Buck, 18 years old, 5025 Alcott avenue, was killed and four other persons were injured last night in a collision of two automobiles and a truck at Foster and Nagel avenues. The injuries of Mrs. Marie Leonard, 44, of 3942 North Nottingham avenue, and Edmund Klein, 19, of 5840 Foster avenue, were serious. Mrs. Leonard's daughter, Carol, 14, and Chester Anstett, 22, of Camp Douglas, Wis., were slightly hurt.

Policemen James Gilbert and Leonard Knudsen said Klein's car, in which Miss Buck was riding, ran through a stoplight and struck the Leonard car, hurling it against the truck driven by Anstett. They ordered Klein held in the Bridewell hospital.

Wife Killed; Husband Hurt.

Mrs. Thomas O. Williams, 61, of 6208 Avondale avenue, was killed yesterday and her husband, a salesman, was injured when their car skidded off a highway near Janesville, Wis.

Quentin W. Eckert, 19 years old, 1400 South Highland avenue, Berwyn, died early today in the Loretto hospital of injuries suffered last Tuesday night when he was struck by an automobile at 14th street and Austin boulevard, Cicero. The driver was Arthur Fredericks, 44, of 1238 South Elmwood avenue, Berwyn.

National Death Toll Drops.

The nation's auto death toll last month was the lowest for August since 1932, the National Safety council announced yesterday.

There were 2,690 persons killed in auto accidents in August, a decrease of 6 per cent from August, 1938. August was the fifth month this year in which the deaths were less than for corresponding months of 1938. Total deaths for the first eight months were 18,980, which is 4 per cent under the total for the same period last year.

The council said this means a theoretical saving of 760 lives, and is worthy of note since auto trafic itself has increased. Rural highway fatalities, which accounted for increases over the 1938 totals for June and July, also are on the downgrade, the council said.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 627 persons had been killed in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 484 were killed in Chicago, where 16,214 were injured in the same period.

FOUNDRY SUPERINTENDENT SHOT.

NAZIS TO STARVE CUT 2,000 POLES IN 'SUICIDE CORPS'

Little Band Battles On in Hela Peninsula.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

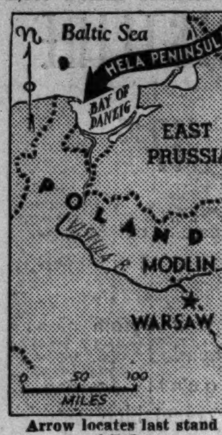
BERLIN, Sept. 29.—A band of about 2,000 Polish soldiers tonight constituted the last body of organized resistance against the German conquest of Poland. This little garrison, holding out against a terrific German bombardment from land, sea, and air. is located on the tip of the Hela peninsula, a slender finger of land at the entrance to the Bay of Danzig.



Arrow locates last stand of Poles.

The Hela defenders were subjected from the very beginning of the Polish campaign on Sept. 1 to fierce attacks from the air by the dreaded German dive bombers known as stukas, while the German training ship Schleswig-Holstein and an old battleship kept them under fire with 11 inch guns. Simultaneously Nazi troops attempted to drive down the slender peninsula by land.

German military leaders declare that the conquest of Hela is of minor importance, and that the garrison will be forced to surrender after running short of food and munitions.

Begin Surrender of Warsaw.

The surrender of Warsaw began tonight when the first contingents of 120,000 disarmed Polish officers and men began marching out of the fallen capital into German captivity.

Since it will take two or three days to march the garrison out of Warsaw, the victorious German troops will not enter the city before Monday. Meantime German units are occupying key points in Warsaw to prevent sabotage by the civilian population.

After heavy bombardment by German artillery and bombers, the fortress at Modlin, 10 miles northwest of Warsaw, also has surrendered unconditionally. About 200 officers, 30,000 men, and 4,000 wounded soldiers were captured at Modlin, bringing the total Polish war prisoners captured by the Germans to more than 600,000.

Text of Statement.

On the western front, the German war announcement reported "usual fighting activity." A French plane was shot down over Wissembourg and a British plane over Osnabrueck, the statement said. The latter was engaged in dropping propaganda leaflets.

The text of the war announcement follows:

"In the course of a planned withdrawal across the demarcation line, Przemysl-South [southern part of the city] on Sept. 28 was solemnly handed over to Russian troops by the German commander.

"Evacuation of the disarmed Warsaw garrison begins this evening and will require two to three days. Therefore occupation by German troops has been planned for Oct. 2. Relief measures for the provisioning and sanitary care of the civil population are under way.

"The fortress of Modlin capitulated unconditionally under the impression of German attacks and a result of crushing artillery fire and bomb attacks.

"Details of the surrender are being worked out by the corps command stationed near Modlin according to instructions from the northern army group. There are about 200 officers and 30,000 men and 4,000 wounded in the fortress.

"In the west there was ground activity as before. In an air fight at Weissenburg one French plane was shot down. At Osnabrueck one British plane was shot down."

DID YOU NOTICE?

Items Which Weren't Headlined in Recent War News

The 20 million dollar German liner Bremen, which was on the high seas when war was declared, is in the Russian port of Murmansk, according to the crew of an Estonian steamer which touched there.

Both England and Germany report delivery to Rumania of war planes built in those countries.

Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, former chief of the Polish general staff and former premier of Poland, has been named commander in chief of the Polish legion to be formed in France.

Official Germany is highly annoyed at reports that many German authorities have cached huge sums of money abroad for use in case of necessity. A small international committee, headed by a Dutchman, is investigating the charges.

A British military plane, forced down by fog in Iceland, later escaped with a crew of nine although the government had ordered the ship seized and the crew interned.

Reports that the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, who has been in a German concentration camp since March, 1938, has asked to be given his world war post as a U-boat commander, are denied in Berlin.

As You May Have Suspected, the Legion Had a Good Time

Now it's official—the American Legion had a good time in Chicago. Mayor Kelly received a letter yesterday from Stephen F. Chadwick, past national commander, who presided over the convention. The letter said: "For the second time in our history, the American Legion is indebted to you and to the people of Chicago for giving us a most delightful national convention."

INJURIES IN ACCIDENT FATAL.

Magnus Rinnan, 46 years old, 749 North Lockwood avenue, a machinist, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of injuries incurred last Tuesday when, police said, he walked against the side of a Wabash avenue street car near Jackson boulevard.

PRESIDENT HOPES TO AVOID WAR, BUT PREPARES FOR IT

Secrecy Veils Military and Naval Activity.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 [Special].—Although the government has thrown the veil of secrecy over its naval, military, and aviation activities, President Roosevelt today insisted that the United States will not get into the European war, and remarked that he does not expect "any emergency." He proclaimed a limited emergency twenty days ago.

Mr. Roosevelt today said he did not believe the United States will be called upon to take any part with Germany and the soviet union in present piece moves.

The President's remarks about the ability of this country to stay out of war were prompted by questions on the war resources board, composed of industrialists, which he announced Wednesday will be disbanded.

Won't Make Report Public.

The President said he did not think the board's report on mobilization plans would be made public because it is based on the idea of this country's going to war. He said he did not think, therefore, that the report is of any great public interest at this time.

In spite of the President's assurances of continued peace, it was evident here that secrecy about the country's military preparations grows deeper daily. The latest move in this direction was an order to withhold information on the movement of naval vessels in both oceans.

The closing of aviation fields and bases, the great army and navy arsenals, navy yards, and shore stations to the public was ordered soon after the war started, while the progress of new naval construction has been a carefully guarded naval secret for weeks.

Aims to Prevent Sabotage.

Behind these "precauations," as they have been termed by government chiefs, is believed to be a determination to eliminate, so far as it can be, the menace of sabotage and the activities of alien agents. The precaution applies as much to privately owned as to government owned plants engaged in making munitions and material. Aircraft factories are the ones subject to the closest guard.

Investigation has revealed that the munitions business is almost entirely in the hands of the government. All arsenals are closed to the public. A citizen who wishes to enter one must be identified in a most thorough manner, citizenship being the first test.

Most of the arsenals are known to be working day and night. The antiaircraft defense, a year ago greatly deficient, is now so far advanced that the completion of the program is said to be in sight. In the navy yards the building of eight battleships, two aircraft carriers, four cruisers, some forty or fifty destroyers, and about twenty-five submarines is being pushed on to the point where America will have a fighting tonnage of 1,700,000 tons.

No Aliens Employed.

What is considered by the authorities perhaps the greatest problem in the keeping of secrets and the guarding of defense equipment is that of labor. Only American citizens can be employed in these government preserves, and then only after careful investigation. Three reputable citizens must vouch for each worker, and the reputable citizens themselves are investigated. The records now show that there is not a single alien employed in any government plant.

By Christmas it is expected that every yard and arsenal will be working 24 hours a day. In the construction yards alone the navy expects that 100,000 persons will be employed by the end of the year. Most of these are skilled mechanics and tradesmen.

CHARGE SECRET U. S. DEAL TO AID EMPIRES IN WAR

Blamed to Effort to Kill Neutrality.

for France alone. The total expenditure by France for American planes would depend upon the number of each type ordered. It might run anywhere from 250 to 400 million dollars.

Even if the administration should not get all it asks of congress, the French stand an excellent chance of getting their planes in this country. The house already has passed a bill modifying the arms embargo. The existing law forbids export of "arms, ammunition, and implements of war" to belligerents. The house bill prohibits export of "arms and ammunition." Thus "implements of war" are exempted from the embargo under the house bill.

Among implements of war thus exempted are military airplanes, according to the interpretation of the language when the house was passing the bill. The upshot of the current contest might be a compromise on the house provision to retain the embargo on all arms except airplanes.

Change Cash and Carry Clause.

The foreign relations committee today added the finishing touches to the changes made in the cash and carry provisions of the administration bill.

When asked whether the pending bill would modify the Johnson act to the extent that it provides a 90 day credit to nations that are in default to this country, Chairman Pittman replied, "Yes, that is right, and my reason for saying that is that we can't be neutral as between belligerents under the Johnson act as it is now written."

Pittman explained that we are now faced with certain conditions in Europe which did not exist when the Johnson act was passed.

"Unless we amended the Johnson act we would find ourselves in the position where credit could be extended to Germany without limit, but not to France and Great Britain," Pittman said.

Germany Also in Default.

The noninterventionists pronounced this a specious argument for rationalizing circumvention of the Johnson act. The fact is, they said, that Germany like France and Britain owes a war debt to the United States and like them is in default in payment.

Germany owes the United States 180 millions for the expense of the American army of occupation after the world war. Also the Roosevelt administration holds Germany responsible for the payment of the Austrian and Czecho-Slovakian war debts to the United States, aggregating 190 millions. Therefore the Johnson act applies to Germany as much as to Britain and France.

Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], author of the law against credit to defaulters, said that he would offer an amendment to insure against any weakening of the restriction on loans and credits.

Narrows Hemisphere Exemptions.

The committee, in the final draft of the bill, narrowed the exemption granted to American ships in the western hemisphere from the restrictions on trade with belligerents. The exemption is made to apply only to transport of mail and passengers to ports south of the 30th degree of north latitude. Under that provision, American ships could not carry mail and passengers to Halifax or other Canadian seaports or to Bermuda.

Disclosure of the last minute changes was followed by signs of disaffection among supporters of the repealer. Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.] who favors the lifting of the arms embargo, pointed out a loophole in the credit provisions as wide as a barn door. The restriction of credit to 90 days for purchases of goods by belligerents would apply to governments, but not to individuals.

"Under this bill," he said, "there would be no reason why a privately owned munitions company in a belligerent country could not buy all the goods it wanted on whatever terms it could get."

Wants Limited War Zone.

He also objected to the sweeping character of the provision which would deny Americans trade with such territories as Australia and New Zealand.

"I think the law," he said, "should declare a general war zone around Europe and allow free operation of American shipping elsewhere."

Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Col.], another advocate of repeal, pronounced the measure "outrageous." He said the bill would surrender the traditional principle of freedom of the sea and objected to the provision penalizing Americans for travel in forbidden combat areas.

"I've never heard of anything like it," he said. "For years we've been fighting to preserve the rights of our citizens and now we propose to make felons out of them when they try to exercise their rights."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Col.] said he cannot support the bill as it stands now.

"There is nothing," he said, "to prevent an individual in a belligerent country from buying in large quantities and turning the goods over to his government."

FARM INVENTOR DEAD.

Garner, Ia., Sept. 29 [Special].—Charles Quintus, 81 years old, inventor of the Quintus self-feeder for threshing machines, died at his home here last night after three months' illness. His widow and two daughters survive. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

SENATORS OPEN PUBLIC DEBATE ON NEUTRALITY

Heard on Radio and at Peace Meeting.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Senate debate on the Roosevelt administration's effort to repeal the neutrality act and substitute a cash and carry system of selling munitions and other war supplies to belligerents, began tonight over the radio and at the anti-war mobilization in Washington of nine peace organizations.

On the radio, Senators Clyde L. Herring [D., Iowa] and Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.] echoed President Roosevelt's argument that repeal of the arms embargo provision of the neutrality act would do more than its retention to keep the United States out of the European war.

Walsh Warns of Repeal.

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee, declared in a message to the meeting of the peace groups that repeal of the arms embargo would constitute taking sides in the European war.

"Repeal of the present law forbidding shipments of arms to belligerents is in my opinion a direct assault upon one of the belligerents and cannot but cause resentment that will not be forgotten and in all probability will result in our involvement in the European war," said Senator Walsh.

"We naturally would dislike to see countries friendly to us defeated in the present conflict, but we should infinitely more dislike to see our country and our youths destroyed in an attempt to refix the boundary lines of European nations. We failed in such an attempt 20 years ago. Any other course except genuine neutrality will result in making us participants for all time in the intrigues and wars of Europe."

Capper Opposes Repeal.

Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] told the peace organizations that the war in Europe is not our war, that repeal of the arms embargo would constitute taking sides with Great Britain and France, and that taking sides inevitably would involve the United States in their war.

"The war issues in Europe are boundary lines, spoils, power politics—not humanitarianism, not democracy," said Senator Capper. "Let us not be misled, nor mislead ourselves into believing, that the allies in Europe are fighting in some unexplained way for democracy, for civilization, or fighting for the United States.

"If we start selling munitions on a cash and carry basis and build up a huge industry with only two customers, this is what is going to happen: When the cash runs out, rather than lose our customers and dislocate our domestic business structure by allowing the munitions industry to collapse, we will substitute credit for cash. The next step will be to make loans to the allies, to protect the credit that has been advanced. And then, finally, we will send American boys overseas again, just as we did in 1917."

THE PLOT TO KILL HITLER!

Why does Adolf Hitler fear assassination? What is the insurance rate on his life? How many "doubles" does he employ? What is the mysterious "R. R." club? Why is it feared by Hitler more than any other danger?

The story of the amazing precautionary measures now employed to guard the person of Hitler will be revealed tomorrow in the Chicago Sunday Tribune. You will learn of his narrow escapes, how his offices swarm with bodyguards, and why he dares not even accept gifts of flowers any more.

"LITTLE JOYS"

By CALEB

THAT, you may remember, is the phrase which Professor Voigt—fugitive, like his listeners—passes on to the two young exiles, Ludwig and Ruth, in one of the most beautiful passages of Erich Maria Remarque's new novel, Flotsam. In Zurich, the trio are sitting on a quiet balcony, backgrounded by lake and moonlight, sharing together the momentary bread of unexpected liberty.

"The little joys," the Professor smiles at Ruth; "never neglect the little joys of existence. They are the only ones that are pure and enduring. All the big joys are wedded to fear—the fear of losing them. The instant the possessive instinct enters in, they are marred. He who no longer hungers for possessions owns the world. Even the diamond in the jeweler's window belongs more to you than to him, when you admire it without wanting it. The jeweler is worried about selling it; he is afraid it may go down in value, or that it may be stolen. Why should you want to own it? Do you own your existence? It is slipping away from you every second."

And then, before bidding them good night and good-bye, this stranger whom they have chance-met, and will see no more, returns again to his theme—as if no other would remain so precious a souvenir of their meeting. "The little joys"—as he refills his glass. "This autumn night; a fish in a sparkling stream; a melody; a thought; a smile; a sunset; a tree in the wind; a painting by Cezanne; an Egyptian statue; a mother's hands; the coat of a young animal; a book—Did not Christ say: 'He who hath eyes, let him see?'"

And then, walking slowly down the street toward the lake, the Professor departs. "It was deserted, and they could hear his steps for some time after he had disappeared." . . .

Perhaps the Professor was right. Not because he had taught in a great university, but because he had also learned—in the bleak curriculum of another institution called Life—a few imperishable verities that philosophy never teaches half so forcefully as experience.

From that same unsparing tutor, Remarque, the novelist, has himself imbibed the lessons woven, like gold threads, through this tale of homeless expatriates—a poignant story, contemporary as the tick of a watch. Booklovers who reveled in All Quiet on the Western Front will find Flotsam, when it appears in our book section, an even more significant successor . . . Last, but not least, in the Professor's list of little joys, you remember, was a book.

4 NEUTRAL SHIPS SENT TO BOTTOM OFF SCANDINAVIA

3 Are Victims of U-Boats; One Strikes Mine.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 29 (AP). — Three neutral ships sunk in Scandinavian waters during the 36 hours ending tonight were declared by survivors to have been victims of submarine attacks. A fourth went down after striking a mine. No lives were lost.

In all, nine ships have been sunk in northern waters since Sept. 22 when the Akenside, 4,000 ton British freighter loaded with coal, was torpedoed off Hisol Island on Norway's southeastern coast.

The recent sinkings emphasized the statement of Capt. Gebrielsen of the 875 ton Norwegian freighter Jern, sunk yesterday off Kristiansand, that it was "impossible now to get across the North sea except by convoy." He said a submarine sank his ship.

U-Boat and Plane Barrier.

"Germany has a barrier of submarines coöperating with airplanes," he said.

The crew of the Jern—believed the first Norwegian ship to be torpedoed during the war—reached Kristiansand today, bringing first word of the ship's sinking.

Before this news was received the Takstaas, 1,830 ton Norwegian freighter, had been torpedoed early today in Korsfjord, one of the steamer entrances to Bergen on the west Norwegian coast.

Shortly afterward came information that the 2,000 ton Norwegian Salaas struck a mine and sank in the North sea off the Danish coast.

The third ship reported torpedoed in the 36 hour period was the 3,378 ton Swedish cargo vessel Nyland, loaded with iron bound for Antwerp. She was sunk early yesterday off Feisten lighthouse in the vicinity of Stavanger, Norway.

Sweden Protests Sinking.

The Swedish minister in Berlin protested the sinking of the Nyland, emphasizing that the cargo was exclusively intended for Belgium and thus was excluded from the contraband list.

Casualties in Scandinavian waters now include three Norwegian ships, three Swedish, two Finnish, among the neutrals, and the British Akenside. Total tonnage was 20,855. Six of the ships carried wood pulp, which is on Germany's contraband list. Five of them were bound for England, one for Antwerp.

Two Versions; Take Your Choice

England and Germany agree that British planes attacked Nazi warships at Heligoland, German naval base. The British and German statements, which are given herewith, do not agree in details, however. The reader may decide which he considers more accurate.

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP).—The British government announced tonight that a royal air force unit had attacked the German fleet at Heligoland, Nazi North sea base, and "some of the planes have not yet returned."

A statement issued by the ministry of information said:

"On Sept. 29 units of the royal air force carried out attacks on ships of the German fleet in Heligoland Bight.

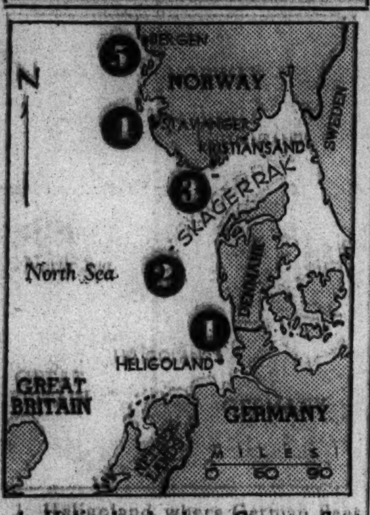
"In spite of formidable antiaircraft fire, the attacks were pressed home at a low altitude. Some of our aircraft have not yet returned."

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (AP).—The high command announced today that five of six British war planes attempting to attack a German naval unit off Heligoland had been shot down by German pursuit planes. The announcement said the British attack was fruitless.

The statement said that when the six British planes, after attacking the warships without success, flew away to the west, German fighters attacked them.

"In a brief battle five of the British planes were shot down and plunged into the sea," the high command declared.

The War at Sea



1. Heligoland, where German fleet was attacked by British planes, according to London announcement. The German high command said six British planes attempted an attack and five were shot down. 2. Norwegian steamer Salaas sunk by mine. 3. Norwegian freighter Jern sunk by submarine. 4. Swedish cargo vessel Nyland torpedoed. 5. Norwegian freighter Takstaas torpedoed.

REPORT TREATY WITH TURKS AND BRITISH DRAFTED

BUDAPEST, Sept. 29 (AP).—Diplomatic circles at Ankara reported today Turkey was ready to sign mutual assistance and economic agreements with France and Great Britain. Texts of the agreements already have been drafted, it was reported, and await the signature of Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu upon his return from Moscow.

Report Red Demand on Turkey.

MOSCOW, Sept. 29 (AP).—Soviet officials, their negotiations with Germany successfully concluded, today turned to talks with a Turkish delegation amid reports that Russia would demand partial control of the Dardanelles, vital gateway to the Black sea, now controled by Turkey. The Turkish delegation is headed by Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister.

Foreign quarters termed as "possibly premature" reports that Russia also had demanded the return by Rumania of Bessarabia, which was Russian territory prior to the world war.

[Rumania strengthened its forces on the Bessarabian frontier as its interests in the Moscow diplomatic talks were intensified by the expected early departure of Bulgaria's prime minister for the soviet capital. Bulgaria, along with Russia and Hungary, wants the return of territory now Rumanian.]

2 SEIZED FOR THEFT OF SHOES.

GERMAN TROOPS PUT THEIR FAITH IN SIEGFRIED LINE

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Sept. 29 (AP).—Traveling for three days along 600 miles of Germany's west wall has given a group of foreign observers an indication as to why the western front is so quiet.

This group of six was confronted with much evidence in support of the German conviction that a tremendous sacrifice of men and material would be the price of a foreign army's attempt to force its way through the maze of mines, barbed wire entanglements, steel, and concrete obstructions, and criss-crossing bunkers in fortresses erected by the Germans.

Calls Drive too Costly.

In the party was a former chief of the general staff of the Finnish army, now representing a Finnish newspaper.

He expressed the opinion that it would be costly for any force to attempt to break through the Siegfried line, but conceded that theoretically nothing is invincible.

German officers showed us around the fortifications and answered questions freely, explaining though that certain figures, locations and other military information were not to be used in our dispatches.

Nazis Have Faith in Forts.

They said the apparent calmness of the German troops was caused by their faith in the strength of the fortifications. We saw some of the soldiers employed in helping farmers harvest their crops.

Officers told us the bunkers in the front line of defense could hold out for 18 days, as far as food was concerned, if they should be cut off from the rear.

Despite their feeling the present fortifications are adequate, the Germans are continuing to erect additional units.

"The west wall will never be finished, just as a forest never ceases to grow," one commanding general told me.

NAZIS AND REDS PICK MUSSOLINI AS PEACEMAKER

Hitler Is Given Report on Moscow Pact.

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (AP).—Germany in effect told the world tonight that it wanted peace, but only on the condition that the German-Russian fiat on the fate of Poland be accepted.

"Hands off the Balkans" and "let us deal in our own way with the Baltic states" were secondary pronouncements which were issued from government quarters.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, returned jubilantly from Moscow and reported immediately to Fuehrer Hitler. Von Ribbentrop brought with him a German-Russian declaration placing a peace argument before Great Britain and France; an accord partitioning Poland, and an exchange of letters projecting expanded exchange of Russian raw materials for German industrial products.

Duce in Rôle of Peacemaker.

In the opinion of informed quarters, Premier Mussolini appeared to have been chosen for the rôle of peacemaker because Italy ranked first among the friendly powers with which Germany and Russia proposed to coöperate in their peace maneuver.

In commenting on the German-Russian agreement, government quarters emphasized the German desire for what Germany conceives as a constructive peace.

But just as emphatic, they said, was the condition that eastern Europe must be acknowledged to be a German sphere of interest.

Authoritative commentators hesitated to call the Russian-German declaration a peace offer. The declaration pledged the two nations to concentrate their efforts, if necessary in coöperation with other friendly powers, to end the war between Germany and the British and French and to consult each other as to necessary measures if Britain and France rebuffed them.

Call War Purposeless.

The Nazis preferred instead to describe this as an exposition of terms on the basis of which England and France might give up a hopeless and purposeless war.

Questions regarding what Germany would do with the Polish territory it will get under the Russian-German agreement appeared to be up to Hitler himself for decision.

There was some speculation that Bohemia-Moravia, where a protectorate gives a measure of local autonomy, might serve as a pattern for a new order in the German occupied part of Poland.

A government spokesman said, however, that such a suggestion would depend in large measure upon whether adequate leadership could be found in Poland to exercise autonomy under German conditions.

No one made any effort to conceal the Nazi jubilation over the events in Moscow. The future looked bright to Nazi chieftains. The open road to the east, it was said, nullifies completely the British sea blockade and the trade agreement with Russia meets completely German needs for materials.

Expect Big Trade Increase.

The new Germany-soviet trade pact places Germany in a position to wage a war of optional length, said the semiofficial commentary, Dienst aus Deutschland.

Besides opening a new source for raw materials, the commentary said the pact now made it possible for part of Germany's far eastern business to be handled over Russian railways.

Authoritative sources estimated that Russian-German business would reach the annual total of $440,000,000 under the agreement. This would nearly equal the 1931 figure, which was the best trade year for the two countries since the world war. Last year's business between the two countries totalled $32,000,000.

Timber and wheat are expected to be the principal raw materials with which Russia will aid Germany.

NAZIS REMAIN ALERT

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Though Germany is jubilant over the signing of the treaty with Russia, the Nazis are abandoning none of their precautionary measures.

A person cannot enter a telegraph office carrying a bag. While on his way to file cablegrams early this morning, a representative of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE was stopped by a soldier on duty at the postoffice. The representative showed his police card with the signature of the German police chief and the propaganda minister, but that was not sufficient. He had to entrust his bag to the soldier while sending the messages.

Persons trying to pass near the chancellery or other official buildings after dusk are sent to the other side of the street by soldiers.

Unrest in Czech Areas.

In Bohemia and Moravia [former provinces of Czecho-Slovakia], unrest and suspicion remain. Those who have been arrested and lucky enough to be released after five days must sign a sworn statement that they realize they are responsible for absolute quiet and the loyalty of all Czechs with whom they are acquainted.

The propaganda ministry, when asked today about the fate of the Czech press chief, named Schmoranz, said nothing was known about him. Friends understand that he died while being detained by the secret police in Berlin. Others hope he still is detained and "merely awaiting trial on charges of organizing Czech societies inimical to the Nazi state."

After the Germans invaded Czecho-Slovakia, Schmoranz accepted the job as Czech press chief. He toured Germany with other Czech newspaper men, being shown by the Nazis how powerful their country was. He conferred with Otto Dietrich, Nazi press chief. On Sept. 1 he was arrested and nothing has been heard of him since.

ITALY CAUTIOUS; DELAYS ACTION AS PEACEMAKER

Wishes to Be Certain of Success First.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 29.—The Italian government today greeted with pleasure news of the new Russian-German friendship pact but awaited reaction from London and Paris before joining Moscow and Berlin in inviting the western powers to abandon the war.

"It is great news," a semi-official government spokesman said.

The reason it was considered great news was because it was not believed here that the British and French would care to face the joint military might of Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin just to make good their pledge to a nonexistent Poland and would, therefore, readily agree to cease fighting.

Italy Marks Time.

Italy, it was stated, unquestionably would favor any action which might bring peace nearer, but it was claimed that no initiative to bring this about has been taken by Premier Mussolini's government.

"It is no use making any proposals unless there is a good chance to have them accepted," a source close to the government said.

At the same time it was admitted that the reference to "other friendly powers" in the Russian-German statement on the desire for peace might possibly refer to Italy.

Cabinet Meets Today.

The Italian cabinet will meet tomorrow, with Mussolini presiding, to consider internal problems. It was officially denied that food rationing is to be decreed, but it was conceded that some measures of a general character to conserve food might be taken. A rumor that Italians soon may be permitted to drink coffee again was discounted in official circles.

Pope Pius XII., meanwhile, prepared to demonstrate his condemnation of Germany and Russia. The pope tomorrow will receive the Polish ambassador to Italy and members of the Polish colony in Rome, which has been swelled in recent weeks by refugees. Special street cars will be run from Rome to Castel Gandolfo, the pope's summer home, to accommodate crowds expected to hear him make an address in reply to a speech by Cardinal Auguste Hlond, primate of Poland.

Five Generals in German Army Rise from Ranks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Under the caption, "Every German soldier carries a marshal's baton in his knapsack," German newspapers tonight reported there were five generals in Germany's armed forces who had risen from the ranks. Generals Wecke and Deinhard belong to the air force, while Generals Thems, Kleist, and Thofern are with the land forces. All five got their first commissions in the world war and were promoted to the rank of general.

PACT OF MOSCOW LAYS WAR GUILT ON THE EMPIRES

Dictatorships Threaten to Take Joint Action.

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (AP).—The text of the statement by D. N. B., official German news agency, on the new soviet Russian-German accord concluded at Moscow last night, follows:

"Discussions between Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and soviet Russian statesmen, the chief of the government and foreign commissar, Molotov, and Herr Stalin, were concluded in the course of the night in the presence of Von der Schulenburg [German ambassador to Moscow].

"As a result of these negotiations the following agreements have been signed.

"1. A declaration of the German reich's government and the government of the U. S. S. R. of Sept. 28, 1939:

"After the German reich's government and the government of the U. S. S. R. through a treaty signed today definitly solved questions resulting from the disintegration of the Polish state and thereby established a secure foundation for permanent peace in eastern Europe, they unanimously voice their opinion that it would be in the interest of all nations to bring to an end the state of war presently existing between Germany on one side and England and France on the other.

Puts Decision Up to Empires.

"Both governments, therefore, will concentrate their efforts, if necessary, in coöperation with the other friendly powers, toward reaching this goal. Should, however, the effort of both governments remain unsuccessful, the fact would thereby be established that England and France are responsible for a continuation of the war, in which case the governments of Germany and the U. S. S. R. will consult each other as to necessary measures.

"2. The German soviet-Russian border and friendship treaty:

"The German reich's government and the government of the U. S. S. R., after disintegration of the former Polish state, regard it as their task to restore peace and order in these territories in order to secure for nationalists living there peaceful existence according to their national individuality.

Define Mutual Frontier.

"For this purpose the two governments have agreed to the following:

"ARTICLE ONE — The German reich's government and the government of the U. S. S. R. define as their mutual frontier in the territory of the former Polish state a line which is marked on the accompanying map and which will be more closely described in the supplementary protocol.

"ARTICLE TWO—Both parties recognize the borderline fixed in article one as final and will reject any interference in this settlement by third powers.

"ARTICLE THREE—The necessary public reorganization in territories west of the line described in article one will be carried out by the German government; in territories east of the line by the government of the U. S. S. R.

"ARTICLE FOUR—The German reich's government and the government of the U. S. S. R. regard the preceding regulation as a secure foundation for a progressive development of friendly relations between their peoples.

[At this point D. N. B. said the map mentioned in the treaty would be published later.]

"ARTICLE FIVE—This treaty will be ratified and the ratification documents exchanged at Berlin as soon as possible. The treaty becomes valid after the signatures are affixed.

Plan Economic Expansion.

"3. Great German-soviet Russian economic planning:

"The chairman of the council of people's commissars and Foreign Commissar Molotov addressed the following letter to the reich's foreign minister:

"'Herr reich's minister:

"'With reference to our conversations, I have the honor to confirm herewith that the government of the U. S. S. R., on the basis and in the spirit of the general political understanding reached between us, is willing to develop with all means economic relations and the exchange of goods between Germany and the U. S. S. R.

"'For this purpose an economic program will be drawn up by both sides by which the soviet union will deliver raw materials to Germany, which Germany on her part will compensate with industrial products to be delivered over an extended period. Both partners will give effect to this economic program in such a way that the volume of the German-soviet exchange of goods will again attain a high peak.

"'Both governments in execution of the aforementioned measures will immediately make the necessary arrangements and take care that negotiations will be brought under way and concluded as fast as possible.

"'Permit me, Herr reich's minister, to assure you again of my highest esteem, [signed] MOLOTOV.'

Nazis Confirm Letter.

"The reich's foreign minister, Von Ribbentrop, on his part addressed a letter to the soviet Russian chief of government and foreign commissar wherein he acknowledged receipt of the above letter.

"The reply of the foreign minister repeats details of Molotov's letter addressed to him and concludes with the words: 'In the name and by order of the German reich's government, I approve of this communication and would like to inform you that the German reich's government also on her part will do everything necessary to conform to this spirit.'

"Description of the drawing of the border: The border line begins at the southern tip of Lithuania and from there runs in a general western direction north of Augustow to the German reich's border and follows this reich's border to the Pissa river and thence as far as Ostrolenka. From there it runs in a southeastern direction until it meets the Bug river at Nur. It continues further along the Bug river to Krystnopol and then bends west running north of Rawa Ruska and Lubaczow to the San river. From there it follows the San river to its source."

BAIL OF FRITZ KUHN BOOSTED TO $50,000 AND HE GOES TO JAIL

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—The bail of Fritz Kuhn, Fuehrer of the German-American bund, was unexpectedly raised today from $5,000 to $50,000, on the strength of an "authentic report" to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office that he planned to leave New York county.

Kuhn went to the Tombs tonight in default of the increased bond and may have to remain there until his trial next month. A hearing on a writ of habeas corpus to effect his release was set for tomorrow morning.

Assistant District Attorney Milton Schilback, who obtained the increase, declined to state publicly the nature and source of the prosecution's information, but confided it to General Sessions Judge Cornelius F. Collins in a whispered conference at the bench.

"We are convinced," Schilback declared before the conference, "that the defendant doesn't intend to be present for the trial."

Nation Thinks It Received Favorable Trade Deal.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Sept. 29.—Estonia's action in conceding soviet Russia the privilege of having a naval base at Paldiski [Baltiskii], a port on the mainland near the entrance to the gulf of Finland, and aviation bases on the islands of Oesel [Saare Maa] and Dagoe [Hiiuma], has saved the peace of northeastern Europe, Estonian statesmen said today.

The country faced the alternative of extinction or of granting the soviet government a powerful position in the northern Baltic sea. Estonia, an official spokesman said, knew how such a war would end for it. During the crisis the nation failed to receive assurances of support from any of its neighbors, although it had asked for none. Left to its own resources, therefore, it faced realities with its eyes open.

Remains a Sovereign State.

Estonia now believes all questions between it and Russia have been settled and feels that as a small partner in the important negotiations in Moscow it was not degraded by the outcome. Estonia remains the same sovereign state it was formerly, the spokesman said, and its liberties are not infringed.

The sudden change in the atmosphere of the Moscow negotiations yesterday after Dictator Stalin personally intervened and the soviet government withdrew its demand for harbor rights in all Estonian ports proved a real relief for the Estonian government. The negotiations, which had begun in an atmosphere which threatened war in the Baltic, closed in a friendly exchange of compliments.

Stalin, after signing the soviet-Estonian mutual assistance pact, became enthused because he had achieved domination of the northern Baltic without a war. He recalled that one czarist predecessor, Ivan the Terrible, fought the German knights for 40 years in this territory while another, Peter the Great, fought the Swedes for 20 years before he obtained his "window to the west."

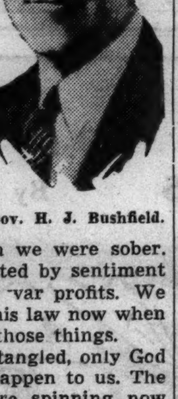
Wins Favorable Trade Pact.

Estonia believes it has obtained an extremely favorable trade treaty with the soviets. It promises adequate supplies of all necessities which the country formerly imported from the west, including iron, salt, oil products, cotton, and other commodities. The soviets even offered the Estonians facilities for the export of its produce from Murmansk, Arctic sea port.

Neutral observers expect that Finland and Latvia soon may receive demands from Moscow. Lithuania already has received the unpleasant advice from Vyacheslav Molotov, soviet premier and foreign commissar, that if it wishes to regain Vilna and other territory seized from it by Poland and now held by Russia, it must turn over its government to either a labor or a peoples' government, such as existed in 1926 when Dr. Kazys Grinius was president.

KEEP EMBARGO ON ARMS, URGES GOV. BUSHFIELD

America has not married into any munition maker's family and there is no reason for repeal of the arms embargo, Gov. Harlan J. Bushfield of South Dakota asserted here yesterday. He spoke at a luncheon of the Executives club in the Hotel Sherman.



Gov. H. J. Bushfield.

"We would not have been in the world war if we had not been peddling arms to belligerents," he said.

"We formulated the present neutrality law when we were sober. We weren't intoxicated by sentiment or the possibility of war profits. We should not change this law now when we are drunk with those things.

"If we become entangled, only God can tell what will happen to us. The propaganda mills are spinning now in Washington. Americans must beware of them. The European war is none of our making, none of our choice, and therefore, none of our business."

NAZIS FORTIFYING THEIR FRONTIER WITH LUXEMBURG

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE LUXEMBURG-GERMAN BORDER, Sept. 29.—An automobile trip today along the frontier of Luxemburg, from opposite Dasburg, Germany, to Remich, disclosed that the Germans are taking precautions against a British-French attack over the Luxemburg soil.

Barbed wire entanglements, antitank batteries and pill boxes are being constructed along hitherto unfortified sections of the frontier.

The entire front visible from Luxemburg territory was quiet except for occasional German artillery shells dropping on the road west of Sierck. What seemed to be siege guns now and then were faintly heard from the French side in the direction of Saarbruecken.

Probe Mystery Fire at Home of New Rumanian Premier

The Inquiring Reporter

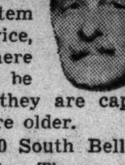
The Question.

Do you think the army should have a merit system for advancement similar to the navy's so we would have younger officers in major positions in our army?

Where Answered.

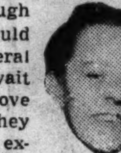
In the loop.

The Answers.



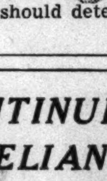
Andrew Sorensen, 3848 Addison street, retired contractor—Of course we should have a merit system in the army. We ought to have a merit system in the civil service, too, and everywhere else. Men should be promoted because they are capable, not because they are older.

John Tatton, 6930 South Bell avenue, clerk—Certainly. The army and navy, both military services, ought to have systems alike. Army officers should be put through tests and examinations the same as in the navy. That's a lot fairer than the seniority system, and more efficient.



Miss Mary Rozdilsky, 4817 South Honore street, clerk—I think that if a man is able enough at 35 or 40 he should be made a general without having to wait for the generals above him to die off. They could have either examinations or some kind of an election to determine fitness.

Mrs. Mamie Lubanko, 3409 West 54th place, advertising solicitor—If a man's qualified, he ought to be promoted. I say, put all army officers through examinations to see if they are qualified. Some of our smartest men are young. Experience isn't everything.



Clem J. Kalas, 3040 North Knox avenue, envelope salesman—The army ought to promote by merit rather than by seniority. Tests of ability and examination into a man's record, character, integrity, courage, personality, and innate qualities should determine promotion.

ARMY CONTINUES TO PUT RELIANCE IN WARTIME GUNS

Doesn't Heed Belief 75s Are Outdated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—In the face of mounting opinion that the 75 millimeter field gun, even in its improved state, is an obsolete weapon, the army is proceeding with its plan to retain the gun as the principal divisional artillery weapon.

When the United States of America entered the world war the gun, which was developed by the French in 1897, was considered on the way out because it lacked the needed elevation and traverse of fire.

At that time an American artillery commission recommended a gun of more than four inches bore, as against the three inches of the 75 mm. gun. It was felt that the proper bore would be 4.7 inches.

The French, however, were successful in securing American adoption of their gun, and went a step further by selling a large quantity of these weapons to the American army at the close of the world war.

3,000 Still on Hand.

About 3,000 of the 75s still are in the hands of the army. As the armies of the world shifted to mechanization and motorization, however, the 75 mm. weapon became even of less value than it had been in the last days of the war.

It was of the horse age of artillery. Its carriage could not stand the strain of the high speed towing necessary to keep pace with the modern wheeled armies.

At this time proponents of a four inch gun again came to the fore. They pleaded for the development of a 105 mm. gun, which would possess all that the 75s lacked in speed, fire power, elevation, and traverse.

The army high command turned down the suggestion as expensive and voted instead for modernization of the 75. The first step was to put a new carriage on the weapon which would permit towing at a speed of 60 miles an hour.

The second step was to give the gun a new split trail which permits raising it to an elevation of 45 degrees and gives it a traverse, or horizontal sweep, of 85 degrees. The old 75s had a flat arc of fire and their traverse was limited to eight degrees.

105s Moved Easily.

Even with its improvements, proponents of the four inch gun argued, the 75 mm. weapon still is obsolete. They pointed out that the 105 mm. gun has a 90 degree traverse and 90 degree elevation, so that it can fire at an unseen target.

The 105 mm. gun can be moved as fast as the improved 75 mm. and may be fired as rapidly. It gives a greater force of fire in that it fires a 35 pound high explosive shell, as against the 20 pound shell of the 75. The range of the 105 is greater and its destructive power is superior.

The 105 may be moved by truck, tractor, or horse as easily as the 75 and is handled more easily than the 75, which requires better trained cannoneers.

Another argument of supporters of the heavier gun is that the 105 mm. weapon is replacing the lighter gun in European armies. The French are leading the way for the adoption of the 105 and the Germans are stressing a 4 inch equivalent.

own satisfaction; that they rejected outside interference with the partition and that they had agreed to try to compel Britain and France to end the war against Germany.

There were, however, categorical statements from official French sources that a peace offer, if made, would be rejected.

Anniversary of Munich.

The first French official to comment publicly was Jean Giraudoux, commissar general of information. His words, broadcast throughout France, were an uncompromising rejection of what he called "the oriental peace" based on "a division of victims and spoils" between Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin.

Giraudoux began by reminding his listeners that the opening of the peace offensive fell on the first anniversary of the Munich agreement, when France and Britain gave way before Hitler in order to avoid the war they now are fighting.

"On condition that we betray not only our treaties and oaths but our tastes, our convictions, our attitudes, our religions, and our liberties," Giraudoux declared, "Hitler will offer us what he calls peace, that is to say, the short time which Germany needs to swallow its prey and forge arms to swallow the next victim."

Closes with a Warning.

Giraudoux closed with the warning that "from now on the tacit acceptance of Nazi-soviet methods amounts to complicity and the very fact of lending ear to such blackmail risks being a deadly weakness."

There were several reasons for the French attitude. One obvious one was that any peace which left Hitler and Stalin between them masters of eastern Europe, would not in French opinion be a real peace, but only an armistice giving Hitler time to organize a more effective attack on the western powers. Besides, it would be a violation of the engagements between France and Poland which not only have been signed but published for the world to bear witness.

Another reason was that the French do not believe that the combined weight of the Nazi and soviet armies will fall on them. They think that threats and hints of an effective military alliance between Germany and Russia are bluff.

Cut Efficacy of Blockade.

The French do expect and fear a closer coöperation between Naziism and communism. They count on the bolsheviks supplying the Nazis with many raw materials, thereby reducing the efficacy of the blockade and prolonging the war.

They do not, however, believe that economic collaboration between Russia and Germany will be as valuable to Hitler as he may hope. The reason for this, the French say, is that soviet industry is not sufficiently developed nor efficient enough to exploit Russia's vast resources for export.

The communique published in Moscow is intended, so the French believe, to provide the third internationale with a basis for defeatist and pacifist propaganda in the belligerent and neutral countries. This was a contributing factor in Premier Edouard Daladier's decision to suppress the communist party in France.

Lebrun Visits Front.

PARIS, Sept. 29 (AP).—While President Albert Lebrun visited the army and the army corps headquarters on the western front today Air Minister Guy La Chambre, accompanied by Joseph Vuillemin, chief of the air force, flew to the front for a 10 hour inspection of air bases.

In a front line ceremony Lebrun formally decorated an officer with the cross of the legion of honor and two noncommissioned officers with the military medal. They all had been wounded in action last night.

The heaviest fighting of the last 24 hours was down the Moselle river valley, where military advices said the French advanced some 1,500 yards to the outskirts of the German villages of Besch and Borg.

Heavy French artillery fire, the dispatches said, drove the Germans out of the woods bordering the highroad leading to Borg. Then the infantry, preceded by tanks, dug in to hold it.

The first infantry patrols were said to have found only wounded Germans left in the woods, others of the enemy having been driven out by the artillery.

[The German communique yesterday said: "In the west there was ground activity as before. In an air fight at Weissenburg one French plane was shot down. At Osnabrueck one British plane was shot down."]

Next Wednesday a new, enlarged BOOK PAGE

Beginning October 4, the Chicago Tribune book department, edited by Fanny Butcher, will appear on Wednesdays instead of on Saturdays.

Each Wednesday an entire page will be devoted exclusively to comprehensive reviews and shorter notices of the latest books, notes about authors, a list of best sellers, and the announcements of publishers.

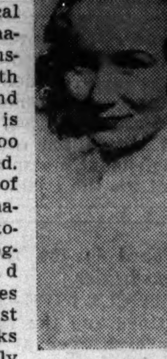
BOOKS

Bertita Harding Makes History Living and Real

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Imperial Twilight," by Bertita Harding. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.] Published Monday.

To be able to make history as fascinating as fiction is Bertita Harding's special gift. She has a unique method of writing biographical history. Her material is obviously gathered with infinite care, and no detail, if it is colorful, is too minor to be used. But instead of treating that material as a historian or a biographer would treat it she uses it as a novelist would. Her books are as skilfully integrated for effect as if they were about wholly fictitious characters.



Bertita Harding.

"Imperial Twilight" is the story of "Karl and Zita of Hungary," as she chooses to call them; for it was as the king and queen of Hungary, and not as emperor and empress of Austria-Hungary, that their dreams were dreamt in the exile which half the book records. Austria, to them, was lost, if not forgotten, but Hungary is never admitted lost so long as Hapsburg blood flows, the reader finds himself thinking, despite the author's assurances that Zita finally has found the peace of wanting nothing after a lifetime of wanting too much.

What a character for fiction Zita is! She is the tiger mother, the passionately devoted wife, the queen, the empress, a supremely ambitious woman, a tragic and at the same time an ironic figure.

Karl emerges from Bertita Harding's pages a true and devoted patriot, a far seeing diplomat, but weak toward his wife's ambitions and because he was cursed with the ability to see both sides of any question. He inherited, at Franz Josef's death, a war which he did not believe in, which he knew was doomed to failure. He tried to persuade the arrogant German egotist of the first world war to offer a peace to the allies, even offered to sue separately for a peace which would benefit his allies rather than to sue for a separate peace, the author says.

The diplomatic intrigues preceding, during, and following the first world war are here made as flamingly alive as official documents make them dull, and they illumine the present mêlée of central Europe. The tale of the two abortive attempts of Karl to regain his Hungarian throne are as exciting as any mystery adventure.

"Imperial Twilight" is the last and will be to many the best of the trilogy of the Hapsburgs which began with "The Phantom Crown" and continued with "Golden Fleece," and its title might serve for an omnibus of the three.

John O'Hara's Stories

"Files on Parade," by John O'Hara. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50.]

Ever since the publication of his first book, "Appointment in Samarra," in 1934, John O'Hara has been one of America's most read young fictionists. He belongs to the uncompromisingly realistic school that sees a spade as a surgical instrument slicing into the earth and goes much deeper than merely calling it a spade. He writes without any flubdub about people who have as much sentimentality and old fashioned romance about them as a midboulevard island has romance as a trysting place.

"Files on Parade" is a collection of short stories from his individualized and skilled pen. Most of them are shorter than most short tales. All of them reveal incidents rather than long focus life sketches. Many of the stories are told in dialog between two persons or in that subtler dialog between a man or a woman and the thoughts that leap around the cranium. And his idiom is as native as a hot-dog. A few are told in letters of the old Ring Lardner "You Know Me, Al" variety, and those letters are, to this reader, the cream of the book's crop. There is—since we've got into a dairy simile—a good deal of skimmed milk in these pages. Mr. O'Hara's whipping cream still is to be found in his novels.

Evelyn Waugh Pays Visit to Mexico and Comes Away Bitingly Critical

"Mexico: An Object Lesson," by Evelyn Waugh. [Little-Brown, $2.50.]

Another British intellectual has made a visit south of the Rio Grande and come away bitingly critical. Evelyn Waugh, like Graham Greene, whose "Another Mexico" was recently published, is a Catholic and he is also an admitted conservative. Everything he found in Mexico, he says, strengthened his conservative viewpoint.

In two trenchant paragraphs Waugh summarizes the Mexico he found. It is, he says, "becoming hungrier, wickeder, and more hopeless; the great buildings of the past are falling in ruins; the jungle is closing in and the graves of the pioneers are lost in the undergrowth; the people are shrinking back to the riverbanks and railheads; they are being starved in the mountains and shot in the back yards, dying without God.

"And Gen. [President] Cardenas and his gang stand on their balcony smirking at the applause of communist delegations; the tourists tramp around the exhibition of his work, marveling at hammers and sickles in cross-stitch and clenched fists in plaster of Paris and the plans of monstrous public offices that no one is ever going to build." P. W.

Search for Orchids

"The Orchid Hunters," by Norman MacDonald. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.75.]

Orchids may be synonymous with wealth and ease, but their procurement is hard and dangerous work. In "The Orchid Hunters" Norman MacDonald tells how he, another young American, and an elderly, hard bitten Briton, all orchid enthusiasts, successfully chased the elusive and expensive flora to its South American lair.

Few of the "bring 'em back alive" animal hunters enjoyed more thrills than this intrepid trio of orchid searchers. The story of their long and persistent struggle through jungles to obtain enough of the rare plants to complete contracts in New York with American orchid buyers makes an entertaining, exciting, and humorous travel book. It is well illustrated.

Adventures in Gems

"The Gem Trader," by Louis Kornitzer. [Sheridan House, $2.75.]

Louis Kornitzer, one of the world's great authorities on precious stones and author of "Pearl Trader," again has dipped into his colorful career for material for a fascinating volume. "Gem Trader" is good reading even if you don't know a tourmaline from a chrysoberyl. The author goes back to his boyhood days in Vienna and his entry into the jewel trade. He covers most of the exciting incidents in his long and varied vocation overlooked in "Pearl Trader," which also was autobiographical. The book has attractively colored reproductions of gems for its end papers. A. C.

Short Historical Novels

"Lives of Wives," by Laura Riding. [Random, $2.50.]

These short historical novels by a well known English poet are her versions of the distaff side of three ancient ages—the times of Cyrus the Persian and Crœsus, of Philip of Macedonia, his son Alexander the Great, and Aristotle, and of Cæsar, Antony, and Herod, king of the Jews.

They are the stories of Amytis, Cyrus' queen; of Olympias, violent matriarch of Macedonia; of Cleopatra and Mariamne, Herod's silent queen, and of their ladies and rivals. Even from the oriental harem these women—fair and frail, bloody and ambitious—exercised their influence on the course of history and the destiny of heroes. This is Miss Riding's story—fiction, if you please; history in a more vital and more vivid sense than many so-called historians have written. Such books as this are relatively few and precious.

Gertrude Stein for Children

"The World Is Round," by Gertrude Stein. [William R. Scott, $2.50.] Illustrated by Clement Hurd.

Gertrude Stein has written her first book for children. And, if my memories of a century or so ago, when I was a child myself, are correct, young children will love it, for it has one quality which always delights them—its words jingle like bells.

The story is incidental. It's about a little girl named Rose ["a Rose is a Rose is a Rose"], whose favorite color was blue. The book is printed in blue on paper in two shades of rose [shocking pink, the style editors call it], with highly intriguing illustrations. And it's about her cousin, Willie, who turns out, in "the end" not her cousin, "just how nobody knows."

Rose and Willie share a lion, and assorted other animals caper, and Rose walks up a mountain carrying a blue garden chair, and that's about all, except that what they do and what they say sings along like a song of sixpence. For instance:

If a cat is in a cage
Does that make him rage.
If a dog is on a roof
Does that make him aloof.
Or is there any proof
That he is a dog and on a roof.

The publisher's admonition to the reader says: "This book was written to be enjoyed. It is meant to be read aloud a few chapters at a time. . . . Don't bother about the commas which aren't there, read the words. Don't worry about the sense that is there, read the words faster. If you have any trouble, read faster and faster until you don't. This book was written to be enjoyed."

Laugh on Every Page

"The Seven Lady Godivas," written and illustrated by Dr. Seuss. [Random, $1.75.]

The author and illustrator of one of the most popular of today's juveniles, "To Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street," has written and illustrated a book which looks like its predecessor and, like it, has a laugh on every page. But readers' attention should be called to the fact that it is a horse laugh, not a childish titter, that is there.

Dr. Seuss, declaring that the old Lady Godiva yarn was not based on facts, here writes of seven Godiva sisters who rode bareback and, one judges from his sketches, much nearer bareheaded than the lady we have previously met in song and story. "Peeping," he declares, was "merely the old family name, and Tom and his six brothers bore it with pride." To avenge their father's death at the hands, or rather the feet, of a fractious horse, each lovely lady vowed not to wed until she had "brought to the light of this world some new and worthy Horse Truth, of benefit to man."

How they discovered that "horseshoes are lucky" and six other horse saws [not saw horses] is the theme of the very bare facts and the fancies of this little volume which grownups, if not children, may think is hilarious.

For Humorous Touch These 3 Are Topnotch

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

Much of the time today we read with furrowed brows. It is good, for a brief change, to let the furrows form at the corners of our eyes. These books, in reawakening our sense of the ridiculous and of the humorous values in everyday life, are well worth their weight in reading time.

"The Strangest Places," by Leonard Q. Ross. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.]

The man who could be a Boswell to the hilariously human Mr. H*Y*M*A*N K*A*P*L*A*N should be able to turn out pretty salty and sapient observations on the unusual places and odd persons that make up America. He has. This collection of sketches pictures the unconsciously humorous, the furtive, the dull, the naïve, and the altogether very mortal sides of all of us.

"Small Beer," by Ludwig Bemelmans. [Viking Press, $2.50.]

Similar in its compact and facile style to Mr. Ross's collection, this group of sketches is perhaps more compassionate in its delineation of human foibles, but less realistic in its subject matter. A charming successor to "Life Class" and "My War with the United States," the book has a philosophic mellowness about it that makes Gabriel, the perfect maître, and Wally, the inquisitive dachshund, equally human and equally entertaining. Where Mr. Ross reports, Mr. Bemelmans narrates. Both are experts.

"In a Word," by Margaret S. Ernst. [Knopf, $2.50.]

Words—those bothersome little chameleons that change their character each time they crawl upon some new shade of opinion—are chained down, X-rayed, and painlessly vivisected by Mrs. Ernst. She finds, for instance, that you can eliminate the cat without getting rid of it, if you stick to the root meaning of the word. Sixty-three of James Thurber's drawings help set the pace.

Who Is Ethel Vance?

Last week I promised to tell Ethel Vance's real name if only ten readers of "Escape" guessed it. Many guesses, even from a couple of booksellers, have come to me. Not one of them is correct, so you'll have to go on guessing. Next week I'll print all the wrong guesses. F. B.

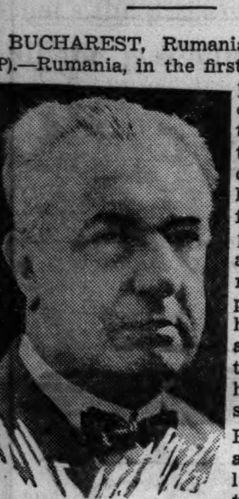
RUMANIA SHIFTS TROOPS TO MEET RUSSIAN THREAT

Fears Moves by Hungary and Bulgaria, Too.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 29 (AP).—Rumania, in the first day of the premiership of Constantine Argetoianu, today shifted her armed forces for protection against neighbors peering over her borders at rich areas they lost to her in war settlements. Her army, already largest in the Balkans, was steadily being strengthened just in case all peace plans for southeastern Europe fail.



Constantine Argetoianu.
[Acme Photo.]

Most important move was strengthening the Bessarabian border defense, facing soviet Russia, by replacing the 5th army corps with the more highly mechanized and mobile 2d corps.

Army of 1,800,000.

Bulgaria is one of the three powers which have demanded return of territory now Rumanian. It wants the Dobruja area returned. Russia, which is believed to be covetous of Bessarabia, and Hungary, which gave up Transylvania to Rumania, are the other powers. Bessarabia has an area of 17,146 square miles. The Russians steadfastly have considered it "occupied territory."

Rumania now has a military establishment estimated at close to 1,800,000 men.

The transfer of government records from Bessarabian cities was started today, but the government insisted the action had no connection with the present situation and was merely a continuance of a policy of centralizing the archives.

The winding Dniester river, which marks the boundary between Rumania and the Russian occupied Poland and the soviet and Rumania's Bessarabian provinces, is spanned by only two bridges.

Red armies which marched into southern Poland now hold the Polish end of the bridge at Zalescycki, which connects with the highway to Cernauti.

Soviet forces also are in positions at the Russian end of the steel 500 yard two deck bridge on the lower Dniester connecting with Tighina on the Rumanian side.

On the diplomatic front a German-Rumanian trade agreement was successfully concluded after more than a week of negotiations. The chief point of discussion was settlement of Rumania's 50,000,000 marks [about $20,000,000] indebtedness under the barter agreement already in force. The oil quota for Germany remained unchanged—namely: one-fourth of the total value of Rumania's exports to Germany.

Wild Birds Move.

Sept. 29, 1939.

HOW weather conditions cause wild birds to change their way of living has been demonstrated on the Du Page county farm during the last few weeks. Swans, pheasants, and geese have moved to new locations because of the dry weather of August and September.

The geese and swans refuse to stay on the main farm pond because its water level has been so greatly reduced by the drouth. The other day all of the white swans except one were swimming in the tank of water inside the swan house instead of paddling around in the pond. The geese had left the pond and were feeding in the oat stubble.

Pheasants Move, Too.

Pheasants, too, have taken new living quarters. Two pairs of these birds, with their spring broods, lived in an alfalfa field until the third crop of hay was cut. The fourth crop of alfalfa didn't grow very well. So the pheasants promptly led their youngsters out of the alfalfa and moved into the cornfields where they had more cover and protection. They spend their days in cornfields, and about the only time they are seen is late in the afternoon when they fly across the road to the little creek for water. The men who work in the garden see the pheasants leading their youngsters to water about 4:30 or 5 p. m. every day.

The men who look after the sample vegetable garden on the farm cheered the rain which fell early in the week, but they remarked that it came too late to save most of the vegetables which have been badly hit by the drouth. The only two vegetables that may derive some benefit from the rain are the leaf lettuce and turnips, if the frost holds off for a while.

These two vegetables got out of the ground only three weeks ago, and consequently didn't develop because of the drouth. The rain undoubtedly will give them a spurt, but they may not grow enough to be harvested before Jack Frost makes his 1939 appearance.

Rains Help Lawns.

The lawns will be helped considerably by the rain, giving them additional growth and strength before cold weather. Small trees and shrubs were benefitted, too. But the rain had practically no effect on the large, deep rooted oaks, hickories, and other trees which had been parched by the drouth and warm weather. Their roots are too deep to get much help from just one rain.

The wild bittersweet growing over a wire fence on the Du Page county farm is more plentiful than in other years. The lack of rain hasn't hurt this thriving vine which now has many ripe orange berries on it.

BRITAIN COUNTS ITS PEOPLE FOR WAR PURPOSES

Registers 46 Million in Emergency Poll.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 29.—All England registered tonight in the first census since 1931. More than 46,000,000 people, it is estimated, were enumerated under the government's new national register scheme which replaces the census originally fixed for 1941.

The registration is essentially a war measure and will form the basis for action when the government decides to carry out further national service schemes. It will also be used as the basis for the government food rationing system.

Sixty-five thousand enumerators were appointed by the government to distribute the schedules and check up on the occupants of every household in Britain. It is estimated that 11,000,000 schedules have been handed out. Over the radio tonight Sir Sylvanus Vivian, registrar general for England and Wales, broadcast advice to householders on filling out the forms.

Get Registration Number.

Once the schedules are tabulated, every civilian will be given a registration number similar to those issued to the men serving in the army, navy, and air force. Identification cards will be handed to all men, women, and children, including foreigners here, which they must always carry.

Though the government made elaborate efforts to carry out the census without a hitch, many households were reported tonight to be still without registration forms because the occupants were away when the enumerators called. Householders are warned to apply immediately to the local registration office for schedules. Otherwise, difficulties might arise in issuing ration and identification cards to them.

Prices Show Increases.

At the moment, Britain seems pretty well set for food supplies. There are few signs of a shortage and it probably will be some weeks yet before the food rationing scheme comes into full operation.

Prices are rising, however, and as a result of the emergency budget of Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, beer drinkers tonight learned that they will have to pay a penny [2 cents] more a pint for their beverage starting on Monday. Whisky will be increased 4 cents to 18 cents per small measure in saloon bars. The price of bottle whisky jumped last night from $2.60 to $2.86.

$1,842,945 of GasTaxFunds Sought for Bridge Repairs

A request that $1,842,945 be allocated from the city's share of motor fuel tax money for rehabilitating bridges next year was made yesterday to Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council motor fuel tax subcommittee. The request was made by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works. He said $1,455,000 will be needed for a new South Canal street bridge and that the rest of the money is required to complete work already under way, together with $100,000 for repairs of 25 bridges on arterial streets.

HOW A PREPARED U. S. ARMY COULD REPEL INVADERS

Expert Describes Attack on Imaginary Foe.

(Discussion of modern weapons for the American army, including organizing of a full field army as a striking defensive force, has prompted Capt. M. M. Corpening, The Tribune military expert, to describe an imaginary invasion of the United States.)

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

Assuming that a large hostile force has landed on the eastern seaboard and occupied Wilmington, N. C., the United States field army [we have none now] moves on the city to recapture it and to capture or destroy the enemy.

Map shows location of Wilmington.

The American commanding general is handicapped by the presence of civilians in Wilmington and is unable to employ his artillery. He must rely upon the mechanized cavalry, with its tanks and armored cars, and upon infantry to accomplish the mission. The commander must consider a minimum of property damage as well as American lives.

Realizing that the longer a battle lasts the more time the enemy has to intrench and fortify his position and the harder the capture becomes, the American commander hurls his three mechanized cavalry divisions and three infantry divisions into the attack. Three infantry divisions and the horse cavalry are kept in reserve.

Reasons Given for Tactics.

Besides the necessity for quick action, there are two good reasons for not holding any mechanized cavalry in reserve. First, one of the strong assets of mechanized units is their ability to retreat rapidly and reform if unable to advance. Second, the theater of operations being small, the horse cavalry can operate effectively in reconnaissance and flank movements against the enemy.

The terrain in and around Wilmington offers an excellent example of the necessity for both horse and mechanized cavalry. This city has only three highways of approach from inland and the land between these roads is mostly thicket and swamps. These conditions would force the mechanized units to stay on the roads, while the horse units would be perfect for reconnaissance and flank operations.

In this day of machine guns, it would be suicidal to make a horse attack on a concealed enemy. In approaching the city the light tanks and armored cars would be used both for their effective fire power and for carrying the infantry advance.

Encircling Movement Likely.

It is assumed that the enemy has had no time for erecting fortifications, but is in complete command of the city, with soldiers in all buildings. Then the tactics of the American commander probably would be an encircling movement rather than a frontal attack.

The three columns advancing on the highways would strive to join forces as soon as the terrain permitted deployment. As soon as the divisions were deployed the attackers would swing around the outskirts before attempting to penetrate the enemy lines. It is likely in such a situation that residents of Wilmington would be used as shields or protection by the enemy, thereby causing much hand to hand fighting.

This hypothetical battle easily could become a sad reality in this machine age of swift movements. Ships used as troop transports can be moved undetected. This is demonstrated by the ease with which the German liner Bremen apparently disappeared in the Atlantic.

Nothing to Bar Seizure.

There is nothing at Wilmington to prevent 50,000 trained enemy troops from taking quick possession. And if this were to happen the United States has no field army to make an attack. The government does not protect the nation as the cities are protected by police forces. The army has its small posts, outposts, forts, and beats scattered over half the world.

In the event of an emergency the army has no quick reserves. While police can go to each other's assistance or another shift can be called from home in a few minutes, this is not the case with the United States military forces.

If this hypothetical battle were to become a reality tomorrow the army's shortage of 110,000 men [the number of additional men needed to bring the army up to full peace strength] would not be the nation's greatest worry.

Nation Also Lacks Arms.

The United States could rally untrained troops and have them slaughtered but we would have no arms for them. The nine divisions which compose our hypothetical defending force under new organization plans need 40,581 semi-automatic rifles. We have approximately 15,000 and we are making only 300 new ones a week.

Two hundred eighty-eight 105 mm. howitzers would be necessary to arm the nine divisions. In our entire army there are only two. It is planned to replace our French type 75 mm. guns with 105 mm. howitzers. It is generally admitted that the 75s are obsolete. Shortage in all other weapons and equipment is about proportionate. Therefore, the emergency discussed here would find the United States disarmed, defenseless, helpless.

If the attacking force were large enough, America would be another Poland.

Table of Weapons Needed.

	One field army.	Two field armies.	Three field armies.
105 mm. Howitzers	288	576	864
155 mm. Howitzers	120	240	360
155 mm. guns	96	192	288
240 mm. Howitzers	24	48	72
81 mm. mortars	324	648	972
66 mm. mortars	486	972	1,458
37 mm. anti-tank guns	216	432	648
37 mm. anti-aircraft guns	64	128	192
3 in. anti-aircraft guns	60	120	180
.30 cal. light machine guns	1,000	2,000	3,000
.30 cal. heavy machine guns	1,200	2,400	3,600
.50 cal. anti-tank guns	324	648	972
.50 cal. anti-aircraft machine guns	180	360	540

The above list tells the total arms needed. It does not include equipment other than weapons. And what fraction of the list is already in government storehouses and on military posts is a government secret.

LOSES $100,000 GEMS IN STATION; RECOVERS THEM

The old maxim that the richest jewels come in the humblest containers was found to be still true at the North Western station yesterday when a small cardboard carton discovered at the newsstand was found to contain $100,000 worth of gems.

The carton, bound together with a rubber band, was found Thursday night lying on the counter, on top of a pile of books, by Dorothy Conboy, 18 years old, of 7168 South Marshfield avenue, an employé. She turned it over to Peter Miglin, 23 years old, of 1930 South Christiana avenue, another employé.

Miglin tossed it aside and when he stopped work at 10:30 p. m. prepared to leave it at the lost and found window. But he forgot and left it lying on a table in the stockroom.

About 11 p. m. the stationmaster received a wire from Mrs. J. Allen Smith of Harrison, N. Y., who had boarded a 10:30 train for Reno. She had lost a cardboard carton containing $100,000 in jewels. The stationmaster found it, lying in the stockroom, and it went on to Reno posthaste.

SUES D. M. DAWES FOR DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Danna McCutcheon Dawes, adopted son of Charles Gates Dawes, former vice president of the United States, was sued for divorce yesterday in a bill filed in Superior court by Mrs. Eleanor Dawes, 2811 Girard avenue, Evanston. She charged cruelty.

Mrs. Dawes is the former Eleanor Dillingham of Honolulu. The couple were married April 11, 1931, in Belchertown, Mass. According to the bill, Dawes struck his wife in the face last Monday and on Thursday, when they separated. Mrs. Dawes asks custody of their two children, Elizabeth, 6 years old, and Charles Gates II., 4, and money for their support.

Dawes, who is 27 years old, filed an answer denying the cruelty charges. Mrs. Dawes is 26.

WANZER'S Milk

EVERY DAY more and more families are discovering the Rich Flavor of WANZER'S MILK

If you will taste the rich flavor of Wanzer's milk you will know why more than ten thousand new customers changed to Wanzer during the past year . . . If you will compare Wanzer milk with any other you have ever tasted then you will know exactly why hundreds of housewives in the last few weeks have changed to Wanzer . . . We are proud of this accomplishment. We cannot help feeling that our many thousands of customers sincerely and enthusiastically support our 82 year old policy of delivering direct to the home the finest milk obtainable.

Talk to Wanzer customers. Let them tell you their own opinions on milk . . . and how they really look to Wanzer's milk for rich flavor. Let them tell you why they just won't have any other.

And, talk to the Wanzer driver salesman who serves your neighborhood. Ask him why he prefers to work for Wanzer's . . . and what the Wanzer Sunlight Plant means in maintaining the quality and rich flavor of the milk he delivers. Ask him why he is proud to be a part of the Wanzer Specialized Home Delivery Service!

Then make your own decision—to get value, quality, rich flavor for your money. Go to your telephone right NOW.

WHY?

The debate on the neutrality bill will begin in the senate on Monday. Before the vote is taken nearly every senator will have stated his views and his arguments. There will be good speeches and bad. There will be appeals to reason and appeals to prejudice and passion. In the circumstances the American people will do well to keep their eye on the ball.

The existing law forbids the export of arms and ammunition to countries at war. The only question at issue is the desire of the administration to permit the export to belligerents of these lethal weapons. Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Pittman, and their cohorts are asking for a reversal of America's neutrality rules in the midst of war. Why?

The burden of proof is upon them. They have said on a score of occasions in recent years that to change the rules in the middle of the game is to invite reprisals and so, step by step, to project our country into war. Now they are themselves advocating the very course they warned against. Why?

What has America to gain from a repeal of the arms embargo? How will it benefit us? How will it preserve our peace? How will the interests of the United States be furthered by our sending arms and ammunition to the belligerents?

Those are the questions which Mr. Pittman and his allies in the senate must answer. To date they have avoided these questions as if they were wholly of no importance. The advocates of repeal have sought to confuse the discussion with references to the cash-and-carry provisions which their opponents also favor. If there was any excuse for that argument a week ago, it has disappeared now that the arms embargo has become the single point at issue. Further confusion has been added by involved arguments to the effect that Germany can also gain access to our arms factories through Russia. This is also grossly irrelevant. The question is not whether Germany may reap a benefit from the change in the law, but whether the United States will benefit.

What has America to gain from the Pittman bill? Is the repeal intended to provide employment and profits in the munition factories of this country, as Mr. Roosevelt suggested in his address to congress on Sept. 21? That seems unlikely in view of the fact that our arms industries today have immense unfilled orders on their books for equipment for the American army and navy. Our own defense forces are pitifully deficient in airplanes, antiaircraft guns, automatic rifles, machine guns, and cannon and shells of all calibers. The arms we manufacture for export will be sent at the expense of our own security; and the needs of our own forces will provide maximum employment in our munitions industries for several years to come.

Must we export arms to enable the allies to win the war? If so, they are fighting our war for us and what answer shall we make when they tell us, as they surely will, that we are enriching ourselves while they are dying for us? How long can we tolerate that kind of talk without joining the fight?

Are we to repeal the embargo so that we may dictate the terms of peace after victory is won, if the allies win? If we couldn't dominate the Versailles peace conference when we had an army in France in 1918 and 1919, how can we expect to have any greater influence when our contribution is to consist in nothing more than a profitable trade in armaments?

The American people, we repeat, will do well to keep their eye on the ball. The advocates of repeal must tell us, clearly and directly, how the welfare and peace of the United States are to be advanced by their proposal.

THE SHERIF CONFESSES.

Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien, it is understood, told the grand jury that he really didn't know that gambling houses are running wide open in the county districts he is supposed to police. The sherif may not be very bright, but he is brighter than that. In view of his personal taste in recreation, the grand jury will undoubtedly take his claim of ignorance with a bushel or more of salt.

The sherif is also said to have told the grand jury that the manifold duties of his office [while they rarely require his presence in his office] are so heavy that he was forced to delegate law enforcement in the country towns to one of his deputies, the chief of the highway police.

The sherif should read the law. Since 1874 the statute pertaining to his office has contained this section:

"The sherif shall be liable for any neglect and omission of the duties of his office, when occasioned by a deputy, in the same manner as for his own personal neglect or omission."

In plain language, the sherif can't pass the buck. His testimony before the grand jury, if as reported, was a confession of guilt. He is guilty of an indictable offense, misfeasance in office. The grand jury should act on his confession.

THE BARRAGE BEFORE THE ATTACK.

Senator O'Mahoney, chairman of the joint committee which was supposed to study monopolies, announced last week that his committee henceforth would concern itself with "unjustified increases in commodity prices." Earlier President Roosevelt stated that he was on the alert for evidence of profiteering, and in particular warned the copper companies not to raise the price above 12½ cents a pound. On Thursday the President was reported to be discussing antiprofiteering legislation with members of congress, including Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma, the author of the bill to conscript capital by requiring the purchase of 50 year bonds yielding 1 per cent by persons whose net wealth exceeded $1,000.

Senator O'Mahoney and the President are by no means the only announced public enemies of raising prices. Secretary of the Interior Ickes has stated his special interest in keeping oil companies from seeking profits from war business. Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold has announced that he was all set to proceed against all the elements in our national economy, from the farmer to the retailer, if there is an "undue rise in prices." And Attorney General Murphy has made it known that his department is conducting a study to determine what laws can be invoked to restrain price increases. It seems that nearly every politician of note wants consumers to believe that he is watching out for their interests.

This general denouncing of the devil may merely be political opportunists helping themselves to some choice publicity. Shrewd observers see in it something more ominous. They say that the Roosevelt administration is laying down a barrage preparatory to the launching of a drive for an excess profits tax.

If so, business should prepare to repel the assault. To give the government the right to collect a large share of the profits due to sudden price increases may be a popular move. But in the existing circumstances it is one of the most harmful forms of taxation that could be contrived. If prices stabilize, after suddenly soaring, and hold the gain for a long time there would be some excuse for the government to appropriate a portion of the increment. But that isn't what happened last time.

A vigorous price rise got under way in 1916 and continued with interruptions for four years. The total advance was about 100 per cent. But after reaching the culmination in 1920 a decline got under way and in about nine months practically the whole of the previous rise was canceled. There had never been such a smash in prices. Hogs dropped from 22 cents a pound to 8 cents; cattle went from 15 to 7 cents; wheat fell from $3 a bushel to $1.39; cotton descended to 14 cents a pound from 39; wool from $1 a pound to 35 cents. And so on for many other commodities. The effect was catastrophic. Bankruptcies set a record.

In 1920 came the break in prices which gathered momentum until the floor was reached in 1921. Even some of the largest and strongest firms were ruined in the price collapse. And among other firms the mortality was without precedent. All corporations taken together operated at a loss in 1921. Rubber companies suffered losses equal to ⅛ of their entire capitalization. Dr. Ralph Epstein, in his study of industrial profits in the United States, reports that sheet metal concerns lost 12.4 per cent of their capital in the 1921 collapse. For meat packing concerns the loss was 7 per cent of their entire capitalization.

American business is not as well prepared to withstand inventory losses as it was 18 years ago. The long continued depression sapped the vitality of many concerns and all were prevented by the undistributed profits tax from rebuilding their capital position during recent years. Profits realized from price rises, if there should be any, should be retained as reserves to cushion future price declines. If the government forces corporations to pay such profits as taxes they will not be able to stand up when the price collapse comes. A boom is not a time for government to milk corporations, but a time to help them to prepare for the ensuing smash.

TERRITORIAL WATERS.

[Detroit News.]

It is not at all clear what President Roosevelt meant when he said American territorial waters are regarded as extending as far out into the ocean as our interests need to go.

The term "territorial waters" has a definite and very important significance in international law. Their extent, whether 3 miles or 20 miles from the mainland, is not so definite. It appears to rest largely with the desires of the claiming country and with that country's ability to make good its claims. But the meaning of the term, at least, is well agreed: Territorial waters are those marginal waters over which the claiming country asserts sovereignty; thus within territorial waters the laws of the country have virtually the same force as within its harbors.

This assertion of sovereignty entails both rights and duties as respects the vessels of foreign countries using the territorial waters.

Among the rights, for instance, is the option of excluding foreign war vessels or of setting up conditions under which they will be allowed to enter territorial waters or remain there.

Among the duties is that of preventing belligerents from committing belligerent acts in territorial waters on the merchant vessels of other countries.

It is readily to be seen that the extent of territorial waters claimed by the United States may involve very grave questions with relation to the maintenance of our neutrality.

Within these territorial waters, whatever their extent may be, United States war vessels may be called on to expel foreign war vessels and in any case must prevent them from exercising the belligerent right of visit and search.

The President's statement that American territorial waters extend as far out as American interests go was made in an offhand interchange at a press conference. It was accompanied, the report said, by a Presidential chuckle.

In view of the gravity of the subject—particularly since United States war vessels now are stationed far off the coasts as "observers"—it would seem preferable not to indulge in offhand opinions of this sort.

SONG OF ADVANCING YEARS.

Put away my tennis racket,
  Cut my skis for kindling wood;
Take my set of clubs and stack it
  In the attic, gone for good.
Whittle me a pair of crutches,

Youth is gone, I'm in the clutches
  Of senility this date.
So to reverence I'm entitled,
  To respect, you maids and yokels!
Stow your gags, your wit unbridled—
  For today I get bifocals!

Just a Kiss in the Dark.

Mary S. of Highland Park had arranged to meet her husband on the North Western's 8:55 out of Chicago the other night. He was to be in the fourth car. When Mary boarded it a fuse blew out and the car was darker than a cave on a cloudy night. She groped down the aisle peering into faces. Then in the dim silhouette of a man ahead she saw him. With a glad little cry, she fell in his lap, squeezed his hand and gave him a kiss that was heard up in the engineer's cab. The next instant the train started, the lights suddenly came on and Mary looked up into the face of a strange man. Jake Irmiter.

September Mysteries.

Each September morning is as exciting as a Christmas package, for it comes all wrapped in the tissue and cotton of a shimmering haze. It is not until midmorning that one really knows what kind of a day is inside. Then, when the sun breaks through, every tree and shrub is wreathed with festooned tinsel, and for a few moments the leaves drip glittering fire. Helene.

BELLEROPHON'S RIDE.

Beside his trail, I waited him
In secret; when he came
I spoke to him as lovers speak,
And combed my fingers through his mane,
And stroked his withers and his side.
I fed him all the sweets I had
Then, "I have gentled him," I said,
And lightly leaped astride.
I felt him quiver as he spread
His spotless wings in flight,
And joy shot through me like a flame;
I rode a steed, entranced, untamed,
Quicksilvery, into night.

But short my joy; the eastern sky
Grew redder than the cheeks of shame.
We heard the splintering, rending bombs;
The sullen, searing, roaring guns
That sent ten million men to tombs
Before they ceased to range.

He wheeled about, but wheeled too late,
No better fate than man, his fate;
His snowy wings were scorched with hate,
And blood was on his breast.
And with a neigh like human cry
He pawed the dark to keep him high,
Yet falling, falling, ceaselessly,
He zigzagged toward the west.
He struck the earth and threw me prone
Into the darkest dark I'd known;
When after centuries had passed
And life flowed slowly back at last,
I scrambled up; I stood aghast;
Both horse and trail were gone.

EYE BLACKOUTS.

While most of us are able to get about satisfactorily in twilight, there are some who have difficulty at that time of the day. The term "night blindness" has been employed rather generally to describe this condition.

Now, the mechanism of vision is complicated and the so-called visual purple of the retina demands a goodly quota of vitamin A. Regeneration of the element depends upon the amount of this vitamin present in the diet.

Not long ago a clever instrument, known as a biophotometer, was devised. This permits the measurement of the smallest fraction of light that can be perceived. There are two lamps—one bright, the other dim. The former is constant while the latter varies. The individual to be tested is placed in a dark room for ten minutes. This allows the purple to reform and to reach its maximum. He is then exposed to the strong beam for three minutes, which uses up this material. After an additional similar interval the smallest beam which he can detect is determined. From this a calculation is made as to the availability of vitamin A. If there is a generous portion on hand the response to the minimal degree of illumination will be quite prompt.

That there are many persons unable to visualize objects as dusk approaches is indicated by the fact that a large group of Iowa school children were found slow in adapting themselves to the dark. An abrupt improvement, however, was observed subsequent to the employment of edibles high in vitamin A. Jeghers of Boston university found that 35 per cent of the students he examined exhibited low perception. Restoration to normal followed a modification of their menus. Experimentally, the vitamin intake again was decreased, whereupon the defect reappeared.

The case of a young man, 24 years old, is reported. He had formed the habit of remaining in the rear of a movie theater until he became accustomed to the blackness, because he could not find a seat even when it was pointed out to him by an usher. Within a few weeks—under the standard dosage of vitamin A—he was able to sense objects in light which was but three one-hundredths as bright as previously was called for.

Fruits, green vegetables, and milk are among our best sources of A, and in practically every instance emphasizing these factors will bring vision to normal. One quart of milk will furnish 800 units. If one wishes to use more concentrated articles, however, 15,000 units will be ingested in five ounces of liver or spinach or fifteen ounces of cheese or raw carrots. Eggs, lettuce, squash, and fish roe contain high proportions.

We can understand something of the importance of this whole matter when we consider night driving. If a car is moving sixty miles per hour it requires only one second to go eighty-eight feet. The recognition of markers placed on an open road was checked repeatedly both before and after feeding A. The driver was supposed to announce promptly the moment he sighted one. Both the time and the distance were reduced appreciably with a balanced program. In other words, the acuity became about five times as keen.

Unfortunately, those who are suffering from night blindness, as a rule, are unaware of the trouble. We eat until we are satisfied, paying little attention to the several parts of the meal, just so it is tasty. Despite the fact that many of these people exhibit dry skin and other minor symptoms little attention is paid to these manifestations until a change in environment or in cooks brings a renewed sense of well being as well as better sight. We can ascribe this entire situation not to poor food but to unwise choosing. While 15,000 units of vitamin A may be demanded for the excessively handicapped individual, the average adult really needs but 4,000.

How many trafic casualties are due to this malady cannot be determined until a thorough physical examination for a driving license is enforced.

CANNOT CATCH BREATH.

L. R. writes: My daughter, who is 9 years old, complains that she cannot catch her breath. When she is eating, for instance, she has to stop and take a long breath. She weighs 89 pounds and appears to be healthy.

REPLY.

She is somewhat overweight and the chances are that this is the cause of her breathlessness. Frequent pauses in the course of each meal may curb her appetite slightly.

MILK IS DESIRABLE.

B. G. writes:

1. Is it necessary for an 18 year old girl to drink milk?

2. Will the teeth suffer if milk is not included in the diet?

REPLY.

1. Not necessary, but desirable. Calcium and phosphorus, however, may be obtained from other foods.

2. Not if the menus contain sufficient minerals. Vitamin D is also essential.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Sept. 30, 1914.

PARIS—The German right on the western front was reported entirely broken and in full flight. The government was requisitioning all Paris taxicabs and most of the private cars in northern France to speed up the pursuit of the Germans. The Teutons appeared to be surrounded in the department of the Somme.

PETROGRAD—The Russian army was engaging furiously with the massed forces of Gen. von Hindenburg along the Niemen river from Grodno to Druskeniki. The Germans were trying desperately to cross the stream but were beaten back four times with great losses. In Galicia, the Austrian rear guard abandoned its artillery and 400 wagons near Krosno.

AMSTERDAM—The German army began an assault upon the Antwerp first line. Lierre was under heavy shell fire. Moll, an important rail center, was taken by the Germans. Shells were falling night and day upon Forts Waehel and St. Catharine.

MRS. GERMER STILL WONDERING.

Downers Grove, Ill., Sept. 27.—Last week I visited my old home town. Mrs. Germer was on the front porch. I stopped to talk. Her boy George and I were kids together. When we were small we used to wade in Elkhorn creek; later we swam in the Rock river. Folks told us that Chicago was much larger than Dixon or Sterling. We doubted it. Then one day much later we heard about the war in Europe.

Finally the President said that we too had a sacred duty to perform; that we should undertake a war to save the world for democracy. George didn't come back from France. The pain in his mother's heart, no doubt, was lessened because we went to war without hate.

Then one summer Mrs. Germer went to visit George's grave in France. She was astonished to see how unpopular Americans were abroad. Uncle Shylock, we were called. Mrs. Germer wondered about that. She wondered about saving the world. I daresay she was a selfish mother. She would rather have had her son than to have saved the world. Now she is wondering again. So am I, Mr. Editor.

DOUGHBOY.

ON ADJOURNING POLITICS.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 25.—It is true that during the turmoil in Europe the people of the United States should submerge political partisanship in considering all problems our nation faces and will face by reason of the present foreign war.

We also have the right to expect such an attitude from the President and the congress.

Our patriotism should not be condemned or criticized if during the period of the coming political campaign we speak freely in expressing our opposition to a continuation of the New Deal in power.

OUR FEDERAL LABOR BOARD.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Under a recent decision of the cockeyed labor board any loose nut from a communist wheel, with spavined shoulders from carrying unfair signs, may apply for a job and, if after admitting his trouble making capacity he does not get the job, can claim the pay anyhow. The wonder is that Mr. Roosevelt's tender sentiments of right and justice never seem disturbed by such outrageous proceedings, which smell to high heaven.

SWELL JOB, WELL DONE.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—I wish to say a nice word for the efficient manner which the Chicago police handled the Legion parade and the heavy trafic in the loop.

I am sincere in saying that, of the 15 national conventions attended, this was handled from a policing standpoint the most efficiently.

THINKS GIBBONS WAS "TOPS."

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Floyd Gibbons was the greatest war correspondent this country has produced in my time. He had a faculty of giving you a more comprehensive understanding of a subject in a 10 minute talk than many people could do in an hour. His cracking the nut, getting into the meat, seemed to be done very quickly. He drove right down the main road showing you everything.

ARNO HALL.

RECALLS A BIT OF HISTORY.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—President Andrew Johnson in his message to congress Dec. 4, 1865, referred to the action of a European nation during the war of the rebellion as follows:

"The materials of war for the insurgent states were furnished in a great measure from the workshops of Great Britain, and British ships, manned by British subjects and prepared for receiving British armaments, sallied from the ports of Great Britain to make war on American commerce under the shelter of a commission from the insurgent states.

"The consequences of this conduct were most disastrous to the states then in rebellion, increasing their desolation and misery by the prolongation of our civil contest. It had, moreover, the effect to a great extent to drive the American flag from the sea and to transfer much of our shipping and our commerce to the very power whose subjects had created the necessity for such a change.

"These events took place before I was called to the administration of the government. The sincere desire for peace by which I am animated led me to approve the proposal, already made, to submit the question which had thus arisen between the countries to arbitration. These questions are of such moment that they must have commanded the attention of the great powers, and are so interwoven with the peace and interests of every one of them as to have insured an impartial decision. I regret to inform you that Great Britain declined the arbitrament, but, on the other hand, invited us to the formation of a joint commission to settle the mutual claims between the two countries, from which those for the depredations before mentioned should be excluded. The proposition, in that very unsatisfactory form, has been declined."

We should have remembered this 22 years ago. The British mental attitude has not changed much since 1865. It is not too late to remember it now before we permit ourselves to be involved in European entanglements, where we are sure to be the losers as we were in 1917-1918. Let us be neutral in the strict sense of the word.

CASH AND CARRY; THEN?

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Cash and carry. Carry and—cash in 90 [?] days.

Carry—[well, you really ought to make deliveries]; and cash—put that on the cuff.

Carry—deliver; cash—if you expect cash you will have to come over here and help win the war; we have our backs up against the wall.

War over. Cash? Did you say cash? Why, you shylocking old bum! This has been your war. We only held the enemy back until you could get yourself prepared. And now you expect cash!

PROBATE OF WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 20 [Legal Friend of the People].—A man died in August, 1939, leaving a will in which he left to his wife "all of my property [1] wheather real, [2] personel, or mixed, and of whatever nature and kind and wherever situated to be hers absolutely and without any limitations whatsoever." He also appointed his wife sole executrix without bond. There are three children under age. All of the children are named in the will. The only property is a one-twelfth share in a farm that was left to him by an aunt, worth about $500. What I want to know is:

3. Will this will have to be probated?

4. What would it cost?

5. Would it be necessary to employ an attorney?

6. Would there have to be a guardian appointed for the children? E. B.

1. and 2. You do not make clear whether this misspelling was present in the will itself.

3. Probate would be necessary in order to produce a readily salable title, but if you wait the seven year period for filing claims, it seems possible that you may be able to satisfy a purchaser by affidavits stating the facts as to heirship.

4. Depends largely on the attorney whom you employ.

5. As a practical matter, yes.

6. Depends upon what course you decide to adopt.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNSAFE PORCHES.

Chicago, Sept. 19 [Friend of the People].—I live on the third floor rear of a building. The porch on the rear is unsafe and the landlord has been advised of this for over a year, but does nothing. About two weeks ago my wife and daughter just missed being thrown from the porch when the banister gave way at the post. Isn't there some way to make the landlord fix the porches on this building, as all of them are unsafe and there are six? C. L.

Owner of said property has been notified to repair rear stairs and porches and to make all other repairs necessary to maintain building continuously in good and safe condition.

LIFE POLICY MEN STUDY EFFECTS OF WAR ON RATES

Consider Extra Charges in Period of Conflict.

Insurance men in Chicago are discussing the possibility that major life insurance companies soon will issue policies on an "ex war risk" basis. If the contemplated plan is adopted, provision for benefits in case of death resulting from war may be available only at a heavy extra premium.

Action on this subject is expected at the American life convention which will open Monday, Oct. 2, in the Edgewater Beach hotel. About 150 insurance companies, including most of the leading concerns in the country, are members of this organization.

If the "ex war risk" plan is put into operation, it will apply only to new policies, insurance men emphasized. No change can be made in policies already in effect. Benefits under such policies will be paid even if death is caused by war.

Special Fire Policies Issued.

Fire insurance companies in the last several weeks have put out a special war insurance policy covering damage from aerial bombardment and similar acts of war. There is no large demand for such policies from American companies at the present time, but Canadian firms are reported as taking out this type of insurance.

A few American and all Canadian life companies already have adopted the plan of selling life insurance without benefit provisions if death is attributed to war. During the period of America's participation in the world war this principle was in universal effect among American companies.

In the world war years insurance giving protection in case death was caused by war could still be purchased. The extra premium for this coverage, however, made such insurance almost prohibitive for the average person. Because of this, the government made available war risk insurance providing a maximum coverage of $10,000 for an individual.

Extra Premiums Returned.

H. A. Behrens, president of the Continental Assurance company, large Chicago insurance firm, pointed out that insurance companies voluntarily returned this extra premium to policy holders at the conclusion of the world war.

There was no uniformity among contracts during the war period, Behrens said. When death was caused by war, some companies only paid back the premiums which the policyholder had paid. This was a feature of some contracts of that period.

Not only those eligible for duty in a war period, but the entire civilian population may be affected by "ex-war risk" provisions, some insurance men said. It may apply to women as well as men. This is because modern warfare, with its possibilities of death from air bombings, places an entire nation in danger.

What Riders Provide.

First, no benefits will be paid within five years of issuance of the policy if death occurs outside the continental United States because of war, or because the individual is in the military or naval service of the United States.

Second, no benefits will be paid within two years of issuance of the policy if death occurs at home if the individual is in the military or naval service of the United States.

Insurance circles emphasized that no increase in regular premiums, not providing insurance in case of death by war, is to be expected. "We do not anticipate any upturn in rates outside of that for war death coverage," Charles Cartwright, editor of the National Underwyriter, said. He stated there was no premium rate increase on nonwar risk policies in the world war.

SUIT TO PREVENT DUMPING IS LOST BY RIVER FOREST

Despite protests of River Forest officials, Judge George Fred Rush yesterday vacated for 60 days a temporary injunction which had restrained dumping of garbage on a 10 acre plot south and west of North avenue and the Des Plaines river. He granted a petition by the International Reduction company, as lessee of the property, to raise the level of the ground to that of North avenue by dumping refuse with the company's patented process. The company will bring 1,500 cubic yards of refuse each day from Chicago.

Thomas A. Matthews, village attorney of River Forest, asserted that this depositing of garbage within one mile of the village's limits violated a criminal statute. Later in the day River Forest officials filed suit in Superior court to restrain the village of Maywood from further operation of a garbage incinerator south and west of Madison street and the Des Plaines river.

Buckingham Fountain's Shows to End Tomorrow

Irving K. Pond.

Irving K. Pond, Chicago architect, who also was well known as a toastmaster, world traveler, and writer, died yesterday in Emergency hospital in Washington, D.C., of a stomach ulcer. He was 82 years old and left no relatives. In 1929, when he was 72, he married Katharine L. de Nancrede, who was 47. She died in 1935.

Mr. Pond was born in Ann Arbor, Mich, but lived in Chicago most of his life. He was a partner with his brother, Allen B. Pond, in the architectural firm of Pond & Pond.

He was noted for his wit and humor as a speaker. He won fame as an athlete from such varied activities as scoring the first touchdown ever made for the University of Michigan and turning handsprings before a movie camera at the age of 73.

Designer of Hull House.

After obtaining a degree as a civil engineer at the University of Michigan in 1879, Mr. Pond came to Chicago as an architect. He progressed rapidly, adding to his knowledge by traveling and studying abroad in 1883 and 1884.

In succeeding years he designed such buildings as Hull House and Chicago Commons in Chicago, the federal building in Kankakee, Ill., the Michigan Union and the University of Michigan League Buildings in Ann Arbor, and many other well known structures in Chicago and elsewhere in the United States and Canada.

One of his special interests was in the advancement of fine arts. In 1918 he published a book entitled "The Meaning of Architecture." He was a member of several institutes of architecture in the United States and abroad.

Founder of Cliff Dwellers

He helped found the Cliff Dwellers club and the Little Room club in Chicago and was a charter member of the University club. Mr. Pond was a president of the Chicago Literary club, the Cliff Dwellers, and the American Institute of Architects. He was attending a convention of the architects' institute when he became ill Thursday in Washington.

Mr. Pond lived at 14 West Elm street. His attorney, Walter T. Fisher, said yesterday an effort was being made to locate a cousin, Miss Florence Pond. The body is to be cremated tomorrow in Washington. The ashes will be sent to the University of Michigan.

OBITUARIES

Emil J. Gnaedinger.

Emil J. Gnaedinger, 5340 Washington boulevard, who was in the real estate business in Chicago for fifty years, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital after a two month illness. He was 73 years old and was president of Gnaedinger & Geissler, Inc., a pioneer west side realty firm. He was secretary of both the Apollo and the Uhland Building and Loan associations at the time of their merger in 1937 and was a charter member of the Society of Resident Appraisers and a member of the Chicago Real Estate board. Surviving are his widow, Emma, and three daughters. Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 5708 Madison street.

John C. Schuett.

John C. Schuett, 78 years old, a retired real estate dealer, died yesterday in his home at 2010 Pratt court, Evanston. He had been a resident of Evanston for 62 years and had served four terms as 7th ward alderman. His last term expired in 1908. While an alderman he led the successful fight for railroad elevation in Evanston. Mr. Schuett was born in Chicago. He leaves his widow, Edith, and two sons, John C. Jr. and W. W. Schuett, both of whom were born to his first wife, who died many years ago.

Mrs. Eliza London Shepard.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Sept. 29 (AP).—Mrs. Eliza London Shepard, 71 years old, former national president of the Women's auxiliary of the American Legion and a half sister of the late Jack London, died today at London ranch in the "valley of the moon" near here. London was born in San Francisco when his half sister was 7 years old. Eliza virtually adopted him. Acknowledging her influence on his career, he named her executrix of his estate and manager of the ranch.

Mrs. Mabel H. Van Ness.

Mrs. Mabel H. Van Ness, widow of Frank C. Van Ness, sugar broker, died yesterday in her home at 1118 Forest avenue, Wilmette. She was 65 years old and a native Chicagoan. She had lived in Wilmette since 1893. Mrs. Van Ness was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert H. McElroy Jr., and a son, Harbert Van Ness. Funeral services will be private.

Mrs. Josephine Goodnow.

Mrs. Josephine Goodnow, a former clubwoman in Evanston, died Wednesday in her home in Newton Center, Mass., according to word received last night by friends in Chicago. She was the widow of Charles A. Goodnow, vice president of the Milwaukee railroad, who died in 1918. Mrs. Goodnow was a former president of the Woman's Club of Evanston and of the University Guild.

Peter H. Woodward.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Peter H. Woodward, 65 years old, special representative of the Pennsylvania railroad, died today at his home in Brightwaters, N. Y. He was born in Allegan, Mich., and began his railroad career as a clerk with the Flint and Pere Marquette at Saginaw, Mich., on Nov. 1, 1890.

Rep. Thomas S. McMillan.

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—Representative Thomas S. McMillan of the 1st South Carolina district, died today. He was 50 years old.

ASSEMBLY VOTES FOR PHILIPPINES' FREEDOM IN 1946

MANILA, Sept. 30 [Saturday] (AP).—A resolution stating the Filipino people do not desire a reëxamination of the independence question but want complete independence in 1946, as provided by the Tydings-McDuffie act, was adopted early today by the national assembly. The resolution was approved 53 to 7 in a session lasting until after midnight and marked by bitter debate.

The proposal to reconsider the matter of independence, in the light of world conditions, was made to the special session of the assembly by assemblyman José Romero, former floor leader.

Assemblyman Pedro Hernaez, author of the adopted resolution, declared it would be cowardice to back out now, since independence in 1946 already had been granted by the United States. The assembly approved numerous emergency measures growing out of the European war. These included antiprofiteering and government operation of public services.

MANTENO WATER SHORTAGE IS NEW WOE IN EPIDEMIC

Manteno, Ill., Sept. 29 [Special].—A new misfortune today confronted the Manteno State Hospital for the Insane, where a typhoid fever epidemic has caused 51 deaths since mid-August. The three huge wells which supply the institution's 5,400 patients with a million gallons of water a day are now drying up. Already the wells have dropped to half their normal flow, causing a serious water shortage.

A. L. Bowen, chief of the state welfare department, arrived at Manteno this afternoon to see what could be done about the water. The state may have to pipe the supply from Kankakee, ten miles away, and at a heavy expense, he said.

Fifty-five patients are still under observation for typhoid here. Eleven of them are suspected carriers of the disease. The newest hope of ending the epidemic is the use of huge vats in which are being burned all waste and sewage from the wards which house typhoid patients.

Col. C. D. Pillsbury, Army Surgeon, Killed in Crash

Red Oak, Ia., Sept. 29 (AP).—A highway collision today killed Col. C. D. Pillsbury, 50 years old, senior surgeon at Fort Crook, Neb. His widow suffered serious injuries. Col. Pillsbury, a graduate of the University of Michigan, was en route to Ann Arbor. His motor car struck a truck. Its driver was slightly injured.

NEW YORK CITY MILK PRICE IS BOOSTED AGAIN

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—Housewives in the New York metropolitan area learned today that beginning Sunday they will have to pay ½ cent more for one quart of milk.

This latest increase was announced today by the Borden company and the Sheffield, the city's two largest distributors. It was a result of the federal state milk marketing agreement under which the farmers received a recent increase of from $2.60 to $2.80 a hundredweight for milk. The state-federal agreement makes Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace a virtual dictator over milk marketing.

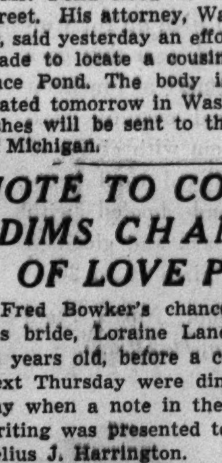
Under the ½ cent increase Grade B milk, the grade most commonly used, will cost 14¾ cents. Grade A will cost 17¾ cents. These prices compare with a price of 12 cents for Grade B prevailing after a federal-state agreement was voided as unconstitutional last February. This ruling later was reversed by the United States Supreme court and the agreement was reinstated July 1.

Since then milk prices have been increased four times. The last previous rise took place after the settlement of the recent producers' strike, backed by the C. I. O., which was marked by sabotage and violence.

Mrs. Ermina Fallas Murlin Rites to Be at Greencastle

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 29 [Special].—Funeral services for Mrs. Ermina Fallas Murlin, 78 years old, widow of Dr. Lemuel H. President Clyde E. Wildman of DePauw will conduct the services. She received her master of arts degree at DePauw in 1887 and her doctorate of philosophy degree in 1888. She was on the faculty of the preparatory school at DePauw for two years, studied in France and at the University of Berlin in 1890-'91, and for a time was dean of women and professor of French at Cornell college in Iowa.

FUNERAL IS MONDAY FOR FRANK B. LONG, ARCHITECT 49 YEARS



Frank B. Long.
[Koehne Photo.]

Funeral services for Frank B. Long will be conducted at 2 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 5501 North Ashland avenue. Mr. Long, who was associated with the firms of Holabird & Roche and Holabird & Root, architects, for 49 years, died Thursday in his home at 421 Melrose street. He was born in Middletown, O., in 1864 and joined the firm of Holabird & Roche in 1890, three years after being graduated from the University of Illinois. He was nationally known as an expert in hotel planning and operation and was in a large measure responsible for the service arrangements in many large hotels in Chicago. He also assisted in drawing plans for the city hall and the county building. He is survived by his widow, Jennie; a brother, Albert Long of Winnetka, and a sister, Mrs. Ora Taylor of Pasadena, Cal.

William Hurt Dead at 98; Pioneer in Central Illinois

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 29 [Special].—William Hurt, 98 years old, a pioneer of this vicinity, died here last night. He was born in a log cabin at Lancaster, Ky. After living a few years in the Ohio river valley he moved to Arrowsmith, near here. After a succesful career as a farmer and stockman he retired and moved to Bloomington. In 1874 Mr. Hurt bought a $3,000 Percheron horse to start his career as a stockman. He acquired 1,000 acres of land and was owner of many fine horses. He expanded his interests by establishing with his son, the late C. W. Hurt, what is now the Arrowsmith State bank.

DR. FERNEL MADE DEFENDANT IN 2 SUITS FOR $100,000

Two suits, each asking $100,000 on charges of malpractice, were filed in Superior court yesterday against Dr. Jean Paul Fernel, plastic surgeon. The state department of registration and education recommended the revocation of Dr. Fernel's license a year ago and he now has an appeal pending in Circuit court. Plaintifs in the suits are are Miss May Morrill, 40 years old, and her sister, Catherine, 42, both of Providence, R. I. They alleged they were permanently disfigured by face lifting operations performed by Dr. Fernel in November, 1937.

Court Rules Undertakers Must Pay State Sales Tax

Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski ruled yesterday that undertakers are in business, not in a profession, and that the materials they use are therefore subject to the state sales tax act. He dismissed a suit brought by Thomas J. Ahern, undertaker at 3246 Jackson boulevard, against Samuel L. Nudelman, state director of finance. Ahern had sought a rebate of $3,657 which he charged was collected illegally in sales taxes. Four hundred other undertakers had joined in the suit.

Former Mayor of De Kalb Hurt in Plunge Under Truck

Jed J. Kingsley, former mayor of De Kalb, in De Kalb county, was seriously injured last night when, according to police, he plunged under the wheels of a truck. The incident occurred on route 20 in front of an Elgin sanitarium, where he has been a patient. He was with his nurse, Mrs. Alma Hanchett. Kingsley, who is 68 years old, was taken to St. Joseph hospital, Elgin. His right leg had been crushed.

DIES AFTER SWALLOWING POISON.

Mrs. Mary Glowczewski, 65 years old, 3435 North Natoma avenue, died yesterday in County hospital of poison which she swallowed Wednesday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Helen Brooks, 1341 North Paulina street.

NOTE TO COURT DIMS CHANCES OF LOVE PICKET

Fred Bowker's chances of seeing his bride, Loraine Landon Bowker, 15 years old, before a court hearing next Thursday were dimmed yesterday when a note in the girl's handwriting was presented to Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

The note, brought in by Attorney Harry X. Cole, counsel for the girl's parents, read: "I do not want to see Mr. Fred Bowker and would appreciate it if he would be ordered to stay away from my house. Sincerely, Loraine Bowker." Bowker, who is 21 years old, had been picketing his bride's home at 700 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park. He lives at 216 South Harvey avenue in the suburb.

The couple eloped to Dickson, Ky., on July 15, and Loraine's parents took her home on July 28. They are seeking an annulment of the marriage on the ground that their daughter is a minor and did not have their consent. Loraine's father is Arthur Landon, executive of a cartage company. The girl is convalescing from an appendectomy.

Gov. Horner Delays Return to Springfield Two Weeks

Gov. Horner, who is recovering from a long illness, will not return to Springfield until after Oct. 15, it was learned yesterday. Since his return from Florida on July 27, he has been living at 903 North Sheridan road, Highland Park, the home of Samuel S. Holmes. He was to have left the residence tomorrow. However, his convalescence has progressed so well, his physicians said, that they have persuaded him to remain at the Highland Park home another two weeks.

Divorce Record Clerk Gets a Marriage License

La Salle P. DeMichaels Jr., the clerk who certifies divorces in the Circuit court, took out a license yesterday to marry Miss Zara Anderson, 23 years old, of 1492 Perry street, Des Plaines. The wedding will take place Oct. 14 in St. Mary's church in the suburb, DeMichaels commented.

TWO RAIL VETS AN ENGINEER AND BARBER, RETIRE

The Rock Island Line's Rocket glided into the La Salle street station yesterday and from the cab stepped Israel [Deadeye Dick] La More for the last time. La More, now 69 years old, is retiring after more than 55 years of service with the railroad, first as a telegrapher, then about four decades as an engineer. He has run more than 2,900,000 miles, during which no passenger on any of his trains was injured in a wreck. La More, who gains his nickname from his ability at duck shooting, plans, he said, to spend the rest of his life on a farm in Putnam county, fishing and hunting.

Another railroad veteran who will complete his service today is Frank Higgeason, a barber for the last 27 years on the Pennsylvania road's Broadway Limited. Higgeason began with the Wagoner Palace Car company in 1896 and went to the Pullman road a year later. He went to work for the Pennsylvania line in 1912.

Octogenarians Read Columns, Too.

Letter in the uncertain hand of an elderly writer in yesterday morning's mail, from Techny, Ill., re Irving Bogin's query about the one time firm whose sign recently came to light on Wabash avenue:

There are two inmates in an old people's home in Techny who as young girls worked for the millinery firm of Dewes and Prescott, one other and the writer of this letter. When Mr. Prescott withdrew from the firm it was D. A. Hewes; a fine man to work for, who owned the store. This was a very pleasant store, with a workroom off and a building back of it called the bleachery, where they cleaned and reshaped old hats. We two have a very pleasant recollection of the days spent in this establishment among a fine lot of girls and men workers. This was about 1874.

Bishop Randall Is Consecrated at Ancient Rites

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop Randall.

Ancient Anglican rites at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, 201 South Ashland avenue, yesterday morning elevated Dr. Edwin Jarvis Randall to the bishopric. He became the third suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago and assistant to the Rt. Rev. Dr. George Craig Stewart.

The ceremonial was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker of New York, presiding bishop of the American Episcopal church, assisted by numerous bishops and other clergy. Participating in the service were colorfully garbed bishops of Greek, Russian, and Serbian Orthodox churches.

More than 200 clergy and lay officials of the church were in the procession that led from the parish house into Ashland avenue and then to its members' places in front of the brilliantly lighted altar backed by mosaics and carvings depicting scenes of the first epiphany, or coming of the wise men to the Savior's cradle.

The ceremonial climax of the service came when all bishops present laid their hands on Bishop Randall's head while Bishop Tucker pronounced the following traditional words of consecration:

"Receive the Holy Ghost for the office and work of bishop in the church of God, now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands . . ."

Bishop Stewart was the consecration preacher. He praised the new bishop's long service to the diocese of Chicago.

"You have through your life and ministry been distinguished by your patient, conscientious, undeviating, unremitting constancy in the faith, work, and worship of the church," said Bishop Stewart.

Bishop Randall is an alumnus of Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y., and of Seabury-Western Theological seminary, Evanston. He was born 69 years ago in Sparta, Wis.

Dance Parties Crowd Social Calendar Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

EVERY ONE will be dancing tonight, if one may judge by the number of dancing parties that are being given. Out at the Onwentsia in Lake Forest members of the Mill Creek Hunt and their guests will dine and dance at the traditional Hunt bill preceding the hunter trials. The trials are to be held tomorrow in Millburn.

Lloyd Laflin's bride, the former Mary Lillian Wills of Albuquerque and Hollywood, is doing the decorations for the party tonight and every one anticipates something very special, for she was designing movie costumes when Mr. Laflin met her last winter.

John E. Hughes will auction the 11 hunt teams that will take part in the trials at the dinner tonight. Usually it is the feminine guests who supply the color at an evening party, but tonight, as at all hunt balls, it will be the men in their pink evening coats who will make the picture glamorous. Most hunts ask the women not to wear colors to balls, but the Mill Creek does not do this. As a rule, however, the feminine guests wear white or black. Mrs. Charles H. Morse Jr. is in charge of the party.

The trials will be going most of tomorrow from 11 until about 4:30 o'clock, with time out for luncheon from 12 until 2. The owners of the land over which the hunt rides will be entertained at luncheon by the hunt members. Maj. Edward M. Daniel of Fort Reno, Okla., will be the judge.

Miss Mardo Pattou Will Bow Today.

The debutantes will dance tonight in the Pump room of the Ambassador East hotel, where Victor Elting will be entertaining for his grandniece, Miss Mardo Pattou. Mr. Elting, who is living in New York now, has come "home" to give a dinner party tonight for Miss Pattou, who is making her formal bow to society this afternoon. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brace Pattou, will receive in their Lake Forest home from 4 until 7 o'clock.

The receiving line will be formed indoors but the guests probably will wander out onto the terrace if the weather permits. Assisting the bud will be all of this season's debutantes who have not yet left for school.

Miss Pattou will postpone all thoughts of study until after the holidays, when she will go to New York to develop her talents in painting and writing.

Two Dance Parties Will Be Benefits.

In town at the Saddle and Cycle club a jolly crowd of youngish married couples will have dinner and dance to benefit the North Avenue Day nursery.

At the Drake hotel in the newly decorated Gold Coast room a larger crowd will dance, starting at 10 o'clock, at a Watteau ball given by the Alumnae association of the Sacred Heart of Chicago and Lake Forest. There will be merrymakers of all ages at this party, for the students of Barat college are giving it with the alumnae.

Smith Club Dance at Edgewater Beach.

The Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel will be the setting for the Evanston-North Shore Smith club's annual scholarship fund benefit dinner-dance tonight. There will be bridge tables for those who do not dance. Mrs. Rudy Lamont Ruggles is chairman of the committee.

The infant daughter born at the Evanston hospital on Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Ian Patrick [Mary Wells Noyes] of London probably will be named Penelope. The baby and her mother and little sisters will return to England in time for Christmas, Mrs. Patrick hopes. She is the daughter of Mrs. May Wells Noyes of Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rankin Getz [Betsy Needham] are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first child, a daughter, on Thursday, at St. Luke's hospital. The baby has been named Susan Rankin for her paternal grandmother.

Lady Tennyson Seeks to Divorce Grandson of England's Poet

From Redwood City, Cal., comes word that Lady Tennyson has filed suit there for divorce from Lord Lionel Tennyson, charging cruelty and "mental suffering." Lady Tennyson is the former Carroll Elting Donner. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elting, used to live in Chicago, but they now live in Montecito, Cal.

Carroll Elting and Joseph Donner of Buffalo were married in 1925 and he died in 1929, leaving two children, Joseph and Carroll. Mrs. Donner and Lord Tennyson, grandson of the English poet, were married in Santa Barbara in 1934. Since then they have divided their time between California and his home on the Isle of Wight.

Lady Tennyson came to California alone early this summer and has been living in Hillsborough. Lord Tennyson is commander of an anti-aircraft brigade in London.

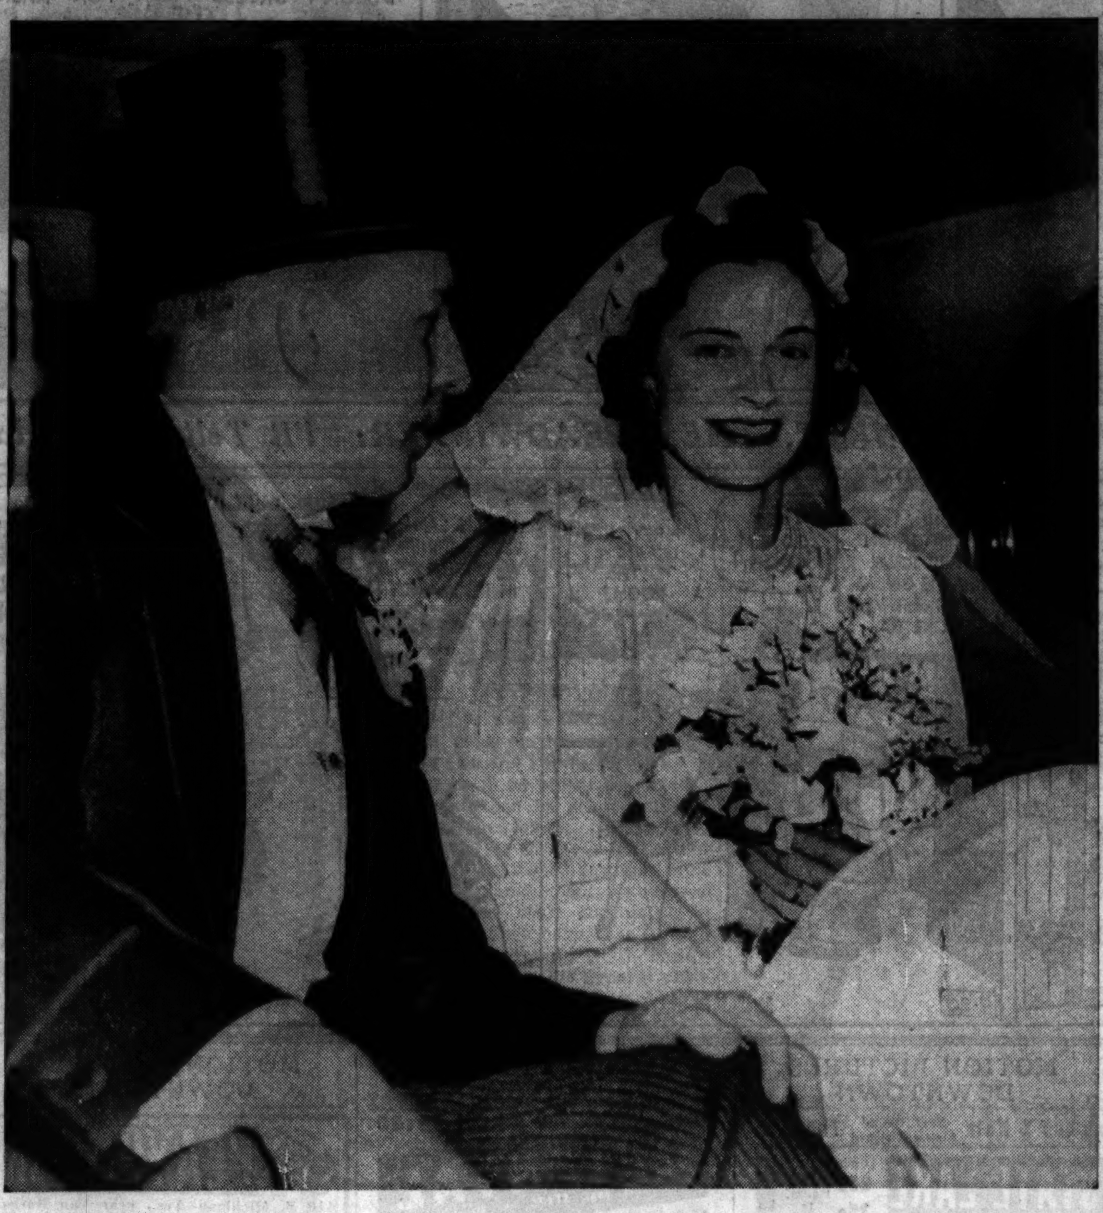
Court Clerk Bowler, Wife to Be Guests at Dinner

A dinner for Thomas J. Bowler, clerk of the Criminal court, and his wife, Margaret, on their 30th wedding anniversary, will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Terrace casino of the Morrison hotel. More than 1,300 reservations have been received from political associates and from friends in the 41st ward, where Mr. Bowler is Democratic committeeman. Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st] and Mrs. Teresa Murphy, Democratic committeewoman, are co-chairmen.

Eleanor Dickson Bride of Higinbotham



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Chapel Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Niles Higinbotham following their marriage yesterday at the Thorndike Hilton Memorial chapel at the University of Chicago. The bride, formerly Miss Eleanor Dickson, is the daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Leonard Eugene Dickson. For her marriage to the son of Harlow D. Higinbotham of Joliet she wore a simple ivory velvet gown with a yoke of net embroidered in seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her old French wedding veil was loaned by a friend.

The Rev. John Timothy Stone read the wedding service. A reception followed at the Quadrangle club. Mr. Higinbotham and his bride will make their home at Harlowarden, the Higinbotham estate in Joliet. Prof. and Mrs. Dickson are leaving today for Palo Alto, Cal., where they will live, now that he has retired from the University of Chicago faculty.

Valeria Harris Will Be Wed in Mother's Gown

The beautiful ivory wedding gown that Miss Lina Small wore for her marriage to Hayden Bartlett Harris 32 years ago will be worn to the altar of St. James' Episcopal church at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by their only daughter, Miss Valeria Harris.

Miss Harris, who is to become the bride of James Huntington Symington of Baltimore, will carry a replica of her mother's bridal bouquet. Her veil is a precious one of Brussels lace that Mr. Harris brought home at the end of the last world war as a gift for his mother, the late Mrs. Norman W. Harris. The scarf has been in a safe since then.

The Rev. Duncan H. Browne, rector of St. James', is ill, so the Rev. Dudley S. Stark of St. Chrysostom's will officiate.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception in the Harris apartment at 20 Cedar street. Mr. Symington and his bride will motor west on their wedding trip.

Nathan B. Swift and Miss Janet Herriott, who are to be married at 12:30 o'clock today, will motor on their wedding trip, but in which direction even the bride doesn't know. The wedding will take place at the Drake hotel in the apartment of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Herriott. The Rev. Leason Sharpe of the Morgan Park Presbyterian church will read the service.

Only the immediate families will be present for the ceremony and breakfast following. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Alden Swift and the late Mr. Swift. He and his bride will make their home in Dearborn parkway.

Miss Virginia Mary Mangold will become the bride of Herbert Porter Carrow Jr. at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Roy Mangold of Evanston. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the Georgian hotel.

Mr. Carrow is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carrow of Detroit.

After a wedding trip through the east Mr. Carrow and his bride will be at home in Detroit.

At 6:30 o'clock this evening Miss Vivian Cermak Graham will become the bride of Thomas Carleton Hope, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Oliver Hope of Chicago. The ceremony, to be performed by Msgr. Daniel Frawley at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richey V. Graham of River Forest, will be witnessed only by members of the family. A large dinner and reception will follow in the Stevens hotell.

After a motor trip to New Orleans Mr. Hope and his bride will be at home in Kansas City.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Jane Weiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Edward Weiller of 411 Fullerton parkway, to Melville Kenneth Schaefer of Evanston will take place at 8:30 this evening at the Belmont hotel with Rabbi Louis Mann officiating.

Mr. Schaefer, the son of Mrs. Cuthbert Schaefer of Evanston, and his bride will be at home at 716 Reba place, Evanston.

The marriage of Miss June Thrall to Theodore Louis Regelin will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Christ church in Winnetka. Miss Thrall is the daughter of Mrs. June Wilson Thrall of Highland Park.

The marriage of Miss Saredel Weiss, daughter of Mrs. Ignatz Weiss and the late Mr. Weiss of El Paso, Tex., to Dr. Lester Allen Riskind took place on Sept. 28 at the home of the bride in Hollywood, Cal. Dr. Riskind is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Riskind of Chicago.

Gold Epaulets Adorn Smart Dinner Jackets

BY RHEA SEEGER.

More pomp and glitter and gold buttons are found around the fashion displays than have been flashed in years. Epaulets in shiny gold braid make the snappy high shoulders of some new velvet dinner jackets just about the best finds for the small budget operator.

A good, lively red and black flaunt this gold braid decoration . . . the sleeves are long and fitted and the jacket itself buttons snugly over the ribs, ends at the waistline and has a double row of velvet covered buttons over the chest.

More equipment with a dress parade flavor are the gloves sprinkled with gold stars and the scarlet evening bag made like an elongated drum complete to criscrossed gold cord. What this military pomp will do for a simple dull dark dress probably will make fashion history!

Separate or extra velveteen skirts with modest price marks have a lot of flared snap and come in stunning colors . . . taupe, brown, and dark green and wine. They can be matched with blouses, also of velveteen, or you can mix them if you have that fever. These velveteen skirts are ideal foundation skirts with which to make your own costume, dressy or otherwise.

Good Morning!

Dust Be My Destiny. With a question mark, that sounds sort of funny. [Try it.]

Just a thought. For this picture isn't funny at all. It does have its comical moments, but, in the main, it's melodrama, presenting John Garfield in one of those—every-man's-hand-is-against-me rôles that he does to such a nice brown turn, with Priscilla Lane loving him courageously and unremittingly as he's accustomed to having her do in his pictures.

An appealing pair, these two; but, as I think back over the film, I find that the scene which stands out most vividly in my memory is one dominated by a lanky, sad-eyed, middle-aged man whose arms were too long for his sleeves. A deliberate, Lionel-Barrymore-ish chap, who, as a defense attorney, eases up from his chair and, with a few quiet words, makes himself the center of an episode and the most memorable figure in the picture. His name—Moroni Olsen. Watch for him.

Mr. Garfield plays Joe Bell, a boy who has served time for an offense he didn't commit, and who leaves prison, bitter as gall. . . . Arrested for a minor crime he lands in a work camp. Here, the foreman's stepdaughter falls in love with him. . . . The foreman's brutal treatment of the girl leads to trouble and Mabel runs away with Joe. . . . The latter, suspected of murdering Foreman Charlie—who dies from a heart attack—is again on a run from the law—and this time his wife is with him, for the two marry at the first possible moment.

And now follows a hectic time. . . . After many devastating experiences, Joe is returned to the state from which he had fled and forced to stand trial. . . . But there is always Mabel. There is Slim Jones! There are several other folks too, who come to the rescue of the lad who'd thought humanity all a washout, and . . . H. E.

The film is rather spotty. In many places it is a sincere, workmanlike and credible production. At other times it's just ten, twent' thirt'—and ham.

But the leads are so likable and some of the suspense so suspenseful that I think you'll chalk up "Dust Be My Destiny" as satisfactory entertainment.

See you tomorrow.

University Women.

The Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women will begin the season's activities with a meeting at 3:30 o'clock today at headquarters at the Chicago Woman's club. Members will report on the biennial national convention held in June at Denver, Colo. Dr. Mayme I. Logsdon heads the branch.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

The Reviewing Stand.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 29 [Special].—For a single scene, I believe the solid impact of young Joan Fontaine's make-believing over the telephone in "The Women," when she talks to her young husband in New York from Reno, is equal to any scene of the 1939 Hollywood year. . . . There were a thousand different ways of playing the scene, but the delicacy of her playing was the desired treatment. . . . Undoubtedly the youngster's artistry in this passage owed much to the direction of show wise George Zukor, who did a grand job with a picture rendered more difficult by a carload of star temperaments. . . . Zukor denies this implication: declares he never handled an easier assignment or a cast more amenable to suggestion. . . . He is being gallant, believe me.

Returning, however, to the subject of young Miss Fontaine [who is now young Mrs. Brian Aherne], it is well to remember her comparative gawkiness in her first assignment with Fred Astaire if you would appreciate the rapidity of her advance. . . . In the flicker with Astaire, Olivia de Haviland's young sister appeared to have little except that relationship to backlog her choice of a movie career. . . . Hollywood set her down as "another relative." . . . In "The Women," in this one shining scene, Joan Fontaine Haviland Aherne looked one of the brightest prospects of the colony.

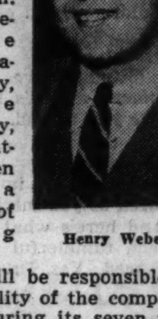
No matter how frequently it occurs, the thrill of a show-stopping scene never loses its electricity. . . . In

Often it is no. the performer, but the director, who brings about a show-stopping situation. . . . In "Golden Boy," Director Reuben Mamoulian achieved this by his inserts of the faces at a Madison Square Garden fight. . . . The fight itself was a movie fight, but by his treatment of the closeups of the spectators, Mamoulian approximated high art. . . . Lubitsch achieved this sort of thing in a war picture, when he photographed a parade of soldiers through the crutches of a wounded veteran.

Equally, when this sort of thing is attempted and does not quite come off, it is pretty terrible.

"Ecstacy," which introduced scantily clothed Hedy Lamarr to the movies, was distinguished by camera symbolism that would have been acclaimed in any other picture. . . . Unfortunately for the director, the physical presence of Hedy scampering through the woods diverted attention from the symbolical phases. . . . The pollination in the fields was first rate imagination and the film was loaded with such touches.

Weber Named Music Director of City Opera



Henry Weber.

Henry Weber, musical director of radio station W-G-N and a conductor of wide operatic and concert experience, has been appointed musical director of the Chicago City Opera company for the 1939 season. This announcement was made yesterday by Jason F. Whitney, president of the opera company, after the appointment had been confirmed at a noon meeting of the operating committee.

Mr. Weber will be responsible for the musical quality of the company's performances during its seven week season, Oct. 28 to Dec. 16, at the Civic Opera house. Thus he is taking over some of the duties of Paul Longone, the company's artistic director, who died in France on Aug. 3.

Mr. Weber will coöperate with Mr. Whitney, who assumed the responsibilities of general manager after Mr. Longone's death, and will, in addition, serve as conductor for several performances. He will retain his post with W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Born in Berlin of American parents 38 years ago, Henry Weber first saw the United States when he was 3 months old. Before he was 6 he had made up his mind to study music. He returned to Europe, studied for fourteen years in Vienna, graduated at the age of 20 from the Imperial Academy of Music, and made his debut as conductor in the Bremen, Germany, opera house the next year.

In Germany he came to the attention of Herbert Johnson of the Chicago Opera company and was brought here in 1924 to become, at 23, the youngest conductor of any major opera company in the world. In 1929 he left the Chicago opera for Italy, and was the first American to conduct opera in that country.

He joined the staff of W-G-N in 1934 and returned the same year to the Chicago Opera company. He has directed innumerable opera performances since then. Also he has conducted the Chicago Symphony and other orchestras in summer concerts in Ravinia and Grant parks.

ENGAGEMENTS

The engagement of Miss Florence Thomas Dingle to Laurence T. Herman is announced by her parents, Mrs. Florence Thomas Dingle of Highland Park and John H. Dingle of Chicago. Miss Dingle attended the Roycemore school, Bradford academy, and Smith college and was graduated from Northwestern university. Mr. Herman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Herman of Woodstock, Ill., is a graduate of Dartmouth college.

The wedding will take place at 4:30 o'clock on Oct. 28 in the chapel of the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park.

From Harrison, N. Y., comes word of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Converse, daughter of Mrs. Henry Coster Converse, to James Caughren Schnur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton J. Schnur of Glencoe.

They Hunted a Fox

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright: 1939: By Alice Ormond Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

Alison Young and her fiancé, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, are guests at Chenerys, the English country estate of Tom Boldre, to attend a fox hunt and ball. Wynn Marchmont, sister of Tom's wife, Pat, is engaged to Tom's brother, Derek, a veterinary. Alison overhears a love scene between Pat and Arthur Kingsclere. Tom Boldre defies death by riding his horse bareback up the slippery ancestral stairs. Chenerys is mortgaged to the hilt. Gregg, Tom's agent, urges him to accept an offer made for the estate, but Tom refuses to sell. At the hunt, from a far off hill, Alison and Colin see Tom thrown and a man bending over him. When they reach the accident they find Derek stooping over Tom's prostrate form. A farmer, Glover, happens along and helps them. Tom, revived, is surprised that Derek, rather than his neighbor, Maj. Fitts, found him. Three weeks later Tom is again thrown in the hunting field and dies soon after. Alison visits Wynn at Chenerys. Riding near the scene of Tom's first accident they find the body of farmer Glover. He'd been shot through the head. Official verdict is that Glover was killed by a shot from a passing car. Kingsclere, Derek, and Maj. Fitts all drove that way. Inspector Headcorn from Scotland Yard investigates. He finds the murder weapon. It belongs to Maj. Fitts, but was stolen the afternoon of the day Glover was shot. From Fitts' housekeeper the inspector learns that it was after both Kingsclere and Derek had called that the major missed his gun.

INSTALMENT XVIII.

SUSPICIOUS ACTIONS.

The housekeeper clapped a hand over her plump bosom. "O!" she gasped and began trembling all over.

"I can't tell you one thing more. If you hadn't already known who was here——"

"I quite understand. You're in no way to blame. Both these gentlemen are well known to you, are they?"

"Since they was little nippers. I've served both families—and there's no finer in the land." She panted, still short of breath. "It laid on that table, within easy reach of outside. I did think as how just any tramp could have taken it while the major was out of the room."

"Do many of his friends drop in informally?"

"Who don't, so to speak? The major's that hospitable like. Always a welcome and the sherry or the whisky set out, whether it's high or low. I don't mean that there Glover!" This was said with scorn. "He's never set foot in this house. It's people like Mr. Edward Gregg that thinks the world and all of him, and with reason. Mr. Boldre's agent," she explained. "To be sure he's a gentleman born."

"In and out pretty often, is he?"

"Yes, just about every day, but not to steal no pistol," she flared. "If it's him you're wondering about——"

"Not at all, Mrs. —— ?"

"Hargrave." She shut her lips tight on the word.

"Thanks. I merely ask, did you yourself see this Mr. Gregg here or about the garden that same afternoon?"

"I did not, sir, nor any one else, saving only those two gentlemen."

Over a cut from the joint and a tankard of mild and bitter the inspector improved an acquaintance begun the previous evening over darts with the landlord of the Green Man. He had hoped that the latter—a bald whippet of a man, garrulously inclined—might shed some light on Glover's recent movements, but such was not the case.

"Didn't set eyes on him all that last week. And before that I don't remember him talking private to any one. Just a minute, sir, while I serve the doctor."

Into the bar had stumped a bottle-nosed man with a huge, ragged mustache. Setting thirsty lips to the double whisky poured for him, he drank deeply and then took a roving survey of the room. He was undoubtedly the person seen in the dusk coming from the chief constable's, but why had his watery eye become fixed on Headcorn's face? The inspector returned the stare with calm interest and saw an odd thing happen. Spilling half his drink the doctor gulped the remainder, flung down a coin and hastily went out.

"No, doc's not himself," mused the landlord after a puzzled gaze and a long shake of the head. He leaned confidential elbows on Headcorn's table. "Hasn't been, you know, since Mr. Tom Boldre pegged out on him so sudden." He explored a lone tooth reflectively.

"Hunting accident, wasn't it?"

"Well, yes and no. Meaning to say, oughtn't to 'ave finished like that, just breaking a thigh bone. Heart, you know, and it's funny about that. Mr. Tom had dozens of mishaps, one or more just as bad. Seems you never can tell."

"So it was a big shock to his doctor?"

"Was it!" The landlord sunk his voice to an impressive whisper. "Comes in here," he hissed, "regularly doused as you might say. Just after, you know. I give him the bottle—see? And here's what he put down his throat." The dirty fingers measured a good tumblerful along the whisky bottle's side. "Truth, sir—and never staggered. Yes, Dr. Blount can carry it and no mistake."

"With no effect on his doctoring?"

"Well—!" The host pursed his lips. "I have heard the remark passed. I'm not saying it, though. Seems as how the 'ard riding sort of jolts it down. Wot I say is, show me a man wot won't miss a run with the 'ounds if he can 'elp it, and there won't be much amiss with him. Take Mr. Boldre, him wot's just dead . . ."

For the fifth or sixth time the inspector listened to much the same admiring discourse. There was no doubt that Tom Boldre had been universally popular—sunny tempered, fair dealing, the perfect sportsman.

"And what about his brother?"

Slowly the landlord said, "O, I've naught to say against Mr. Derek! Bit of a stranger, that's all. You can take it from me, though, he'll not come up to Mr. Tom's standard. No daredevil in him. Twice the horseman he may be, but think he'll ever ride barebacked up his own stairs on an 'igh spirited mare? Not him!"

"Did Tom Boldre do that?" asked Headcorn interestedly. "When?"

"When?" Delighted chuckles held up speech. "O, about daybreak, three weeks ago, after our last hunt ball. Bad wrist and all."

"Any particular reason?"

"O, you know! Bit gay. Some of his crowd betted him he couldn't make it. They do say young Arthur Kingsclere dropped ten quid. Anyhow, it was a rare do, wot with the sister-in-law flying at Mr. Derek like a vixen, accusing him of egging his brother on to commit suicide. They say them steps is scarred from top to bottom, but Mr. Tom wasn't hurt, and neither was the 'orse . . ."

. . . .

Alison blinked at the solid, tweed-clad form now looming above her, smiled, and sprang up, shaking from her bright head a shower of deep rose petals.

"Well, inspector! And about time you called on me. Why the stealth?"

"O, I caught a glimpse of your blue jumper through the fence, and thought I'd have a quiet word with you, that's all."

She made way for him on the bench, but something in the heavy force with which he mopped a heat-streaming brow conveyed just a faint foreboding.

"Well," she said lightly, "what is it about?"

"O, nothing much. That hunt ball, you know. You and Dr. Ladbroke attended it, didn't you? I was just thinking I'd like to hear your version of what happened afterwards. About your host's riding one of his hunters up the stairs of this house."

"Why?" she parried huskily. "What have you been told?"

Pumped dry. That was her feeling, and back in the cool of her bedroom she asked herself worriedly the reason for all those searching questions. Not only about the silly, terrifying episode of the horse. All the following day had been raked over, bit by bit, to her own intense discomfiture.

"Why? There can't have been anything wrong about Tom's death. Even if there were, what would be the connection between it and—and the little accident we saw? Tom was perfectly well by the Sunday—and stayed well, till he broke his thigh.

"Derek was putting his handkerchief back into his pocket. What else? He'd been wiping Tom's face. Darn it all, nearly three weeks between that time and the other!"

The time interval restored her balance. She had not stirred up mud to engulf her two friends, for the simple reason that there could be no mud to be stirred up. She breathed again and went down to tea.

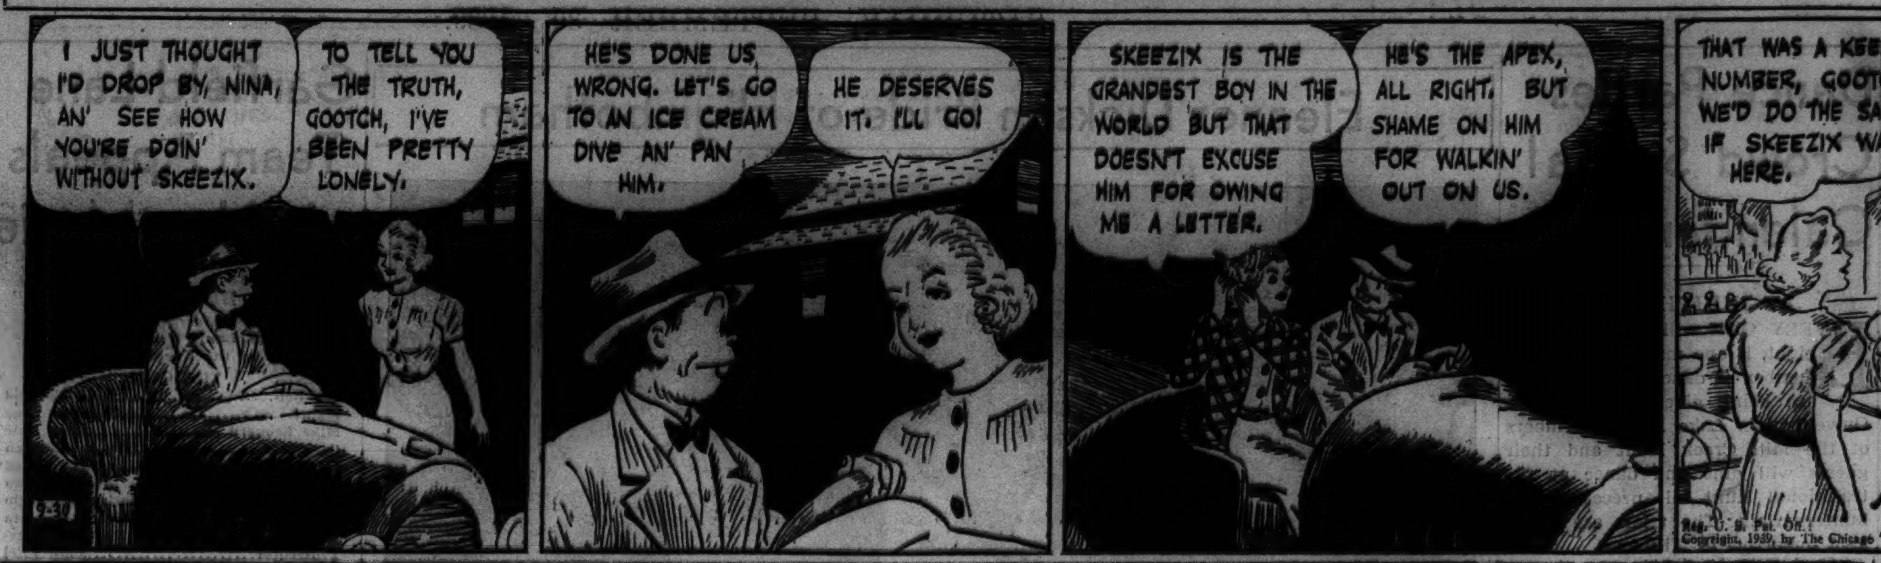
GASOLINE ALLEY—SKEEZIX'S EARS BURN



I JUST THOUGHT I'D DROP BY, NINA, AN' SEE HOW YOU'RE DOIN' WITHOUT SKEEZIX.
TO TELL YOU THE TRUTH, GOOTCH, I'VE BEEN PRETTY LONELY.
HE'S DONE US WRONG. LET'S GO TO AN ICE CREAM DIVE AN' PAN HIM.
HE DESERVES IT. I'LL GO!
SKEEZIX IS THE GRANDEST BOY IN THE WORLD BUT THAT DOESN'T EXCUSE HIM FOR OWING ME A LETTER.
HE'S THE APEX, ALL RIGHT. BUT SHAME ON HIM FOR WALKIN' OUT ON US.
THAT WAS A KEEN NUMBER, GOOTCH. WE'D DO THE SAME IF SKEEZIX WAS HERE.
SURE, NINA, COME OVER AND PICK YOUR HOTCHA AN' WE'LL HAVE ANOTHER.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: I'll Tell the World

WAIT! LOOK WHAT I JUST FOUND! A MEAL TICKET, THAT'S GOOD FOR THREE MEALS!
BUT IT DOESN'T SAY WHAT RESTAURANT IT'S GOOD FOR?
LET'S GO! I'M HUNGRY!
FIRST LET'S GO BACK TO THE ROOM!
9-30
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright, 1939, by The Chicago Tribune.
NOW IS LANDLEDDYS T'INKING WE ARE COOKING IN ROOM AGAIN!
SURE, WHAT WAS THE IDEA OF COMING BACK HERE?
WHEN WE'RE IN THE HALL YOU ANSWER ME IN A LOUD VOICE, AND I'LL SHOW YOU.
WE GOING OUT FOR DINNERS!

WHAT'S NEW IN FOODS AND EQUIPMENT:

1. A top of the stove cake pan which works beautifully for angel foods and sponge cakes. It would doubtless bake other kinds of cake, too, but I have tried it only with the sponge type. Simple of construction, easy to wash, and very efficient, it does a perfect, even job of baking. One of the best angel cakes I ever made was baked in this pan. It's sold in a loop department store. The manufacturer is a German refugee who has been in this country only a short time.

2. Candied orange and grapefruit shells filled with orange marmalade or orange-honey jelly. Delicious! And pretty! They'd make nice gifts. You eat both shell and filling, or eat the filling and put the shell in fruit cakes. The prices are attractive, and you can buy these sweets several places downtown.

3. A handsome glass whistling tea kettle, one of a line of glass cooking equipment which includes percolators, sauce pans, skillets and double boilers. I like the tea kettle especially because it is so "cute" and has such a cheerful whistle.

For more information about these products and where they may be purchased, telephone or write us. If you write, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FLUFFY BOILED RICE: There are several methods for "fluffing" rice to make the kernels stand apart instead of sticking starchily together. Here's one good one: Cook the rice by dropping it gradually into boiling salted water [one tablespoon salt and one quart water for every one-half cup raw rice] and boiling uncovered for twenty minutes, or until soft. Stir frequently with a fork. Drain in a sieve, and pour a quart of hot water over the cooked rice. Now place the sieveful of rice over boiling water [but not in it] and let it steam [covered] for five to ten minutes. The rice should be fluffy.

Another method: Spread cooked rice in a shallow pan and dry out for a short time in the oven.

If you can use soft water for cooking rice, so much the better, for it will be snowier than rice cooked in hard water. Add a tablespoon of vinegar to hard water to make the rice whiter.

To reheat boiled rice, drop into boiling salted water and cook for five minutes, then drain. Or add a little water, cover, and heat in the oven.

Elgin's Community Chest Passes Quota of $53,755

Elgin's 17th annual community chest campaign passed its quota last night when a total of $54,398 had been pledged. The deadline for a $53,755 quota had been set for Oct. 2.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:

Scented soap flakes are the current excitement in one of the shops. These are made in England, are not very expensive, and come in cellophane sacks. They're to be used for laundering silks or fine linen and, as you might guess from their name, they perfume the fabric delicately.

The scents are lovely and there are five from which to choose: Jasmin, lilac, carnation, rose and verbena. Each of these is the type of scent that is suitable for perfuming lingerie or linen

In another shop you'll find a "fresh flower comb." It's a sturdy little circular comb and on its top, above the teeth, there is a little metal gadget, rounded and with tiny teeth, which holds your flower firm.

If you've ever tried tucking a flower into your hair, you know it isn't as easy as it sounds. The flower bounces around like mad. With this comb it can't bounce and you can place the comb in a way that shows the flower to best advantage.

At last a utilitarian hair brush that doesn't look too depressingly utilitarian! Instead of the regulation and far from lovely wooden back and handle, this has a pretty frame of sturdy composition in shell pink. The bristles are strong and business-like, but the brush is good looking.

There is a little nail or hand brush that matches it exactly. The shell pink back and handle is most attractive. You can buy these separately or as a set and they're not expensive. The composition material of the frames will stand up under innumerable cleansings.

Dancing Girl in Filet Crochet

X350

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crochet work as gifts or for your own pleasure has definite decorative value in any home. This lovely dancing girl done in filet crochet is not a difficult lady to create and makes an ideal Christmas gift. The pattern contains detailed instructions, list of materials required, and the illustration of stitches as well as a large filet guide.

For instructions in crocheting the filet dancing lady, No. X-350, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 clubs	2 diamonds	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	4 spades	Double
Pass	Pass	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

"After the opening lead the hand was rather simple to play. West opened the jack of clubs, which my ace captured. I led a small spade to the ace and returned the three spot, which East ducked and my ten held. The diamond nine was the next play and West had the lead with the ace. He returned a club, which East ruffed. East sent back a heart and my ace held. I led a diamond to the king and, when West showed out, East was in the well known bag. I led the jack of diamonds through him and, when he put up the queen, ruffed it, then led the club ace and chucked a heart from dummy. East refusing to ruff, I next ruffed my heart in dummy, then dropped my losing club on the good ten of diamonds.

"With the exception of the redouble, the bidding was par. A heart lead, of course, would have ruined the contract and East made a grave error in not cashing the spade king after ruffing the second club lead, but he could not visualize my holding.

"C. H. S., Pittsburgh."

Although I cannot agree with my correspondent's opinion that the "bidding was par," I heartily admit that the bidding was magnificent when compared with East's defensive play. The remark that "East made a grave error in not cashing the spade king" almost might be taken as a model for restraint and understatement. East's defense actually was so awful, so excruciatingly frightful, that it is hard to believe that he was trying to defeat the contract.

One word about the bidding: North bid very badly. First, he should not have rebid his diamonds over three spades, but should have raised the spades to three. Next, he had nothing approaching a redouble. Also, the less said about West's vulnerable two club overcall the better.

Now for the play. The contract should have been defeated two tricks [600 points] even if the defenders had each tied a hand behind his back and closed one eye. East's failure to take out dummy's lone spade jack was the sort of play that causes sensitive partners to contemplate either homicide or suicide. East had many chances to make this play. For example, he could have gone up with the spade king on the second lead of the suit and returned a spade, thereby killing dummy except for the diamond king. Or he could have cashed the spade king after ruffing a club. Apparently he was in mortal fear of dummy's diamond suit, but why this should have been the case in view of his holding of the Q 8 6 2 is more than I can say.

Reasons Many for Children's Fear of School

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Several days of this column have been spent on the young child of 6 or 7 who seems to be physically or emotionally disturbed by school, or simply overfatigued by it.

Today we'll touch on a few other points worth your considering, if none of the home management we've been describing has been successful in achieving what we have been aiming at—that is, improving your child's eating, his sleeping, his general physical tone, and restoring him to the happy, relaxed state he was in before vacation or before he was in school at all.

Your way with your little boy or girl in the years preceding school may account partially for an inability to assimilate the new experiences that are represented by the first, or even the second year of school life. If, for instance, your child has never learned a normal amount of self-control, or if he has been allowed to be almost entirely dependent upon you for offices he could perform for himself he's apt to feel the ground swept from under his feet when he is expected to "paddle his own canoe," as one of a large group in school has to do.

The other point I want to make is that contact with the teacher is frequently necessary in helping your child, who may be unhappy or nervous or physically out of kilter as a result of going to school, especially during the first or second year. You will want to find out whether the set-up of the school is right for your individual child; whether some fault that can be remedied exists in the relationship between your child and the whole group; whether there may be some definitly fear-inspiring factor, such as a school bully or something terrifying that occurs outside of the classroom [such situations do occasionally exist], and whether the teacher is an understanding person.

"Untruthfulness—Its Causes and Cures" is a leaflet of interest to parents, teachers and nurses. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

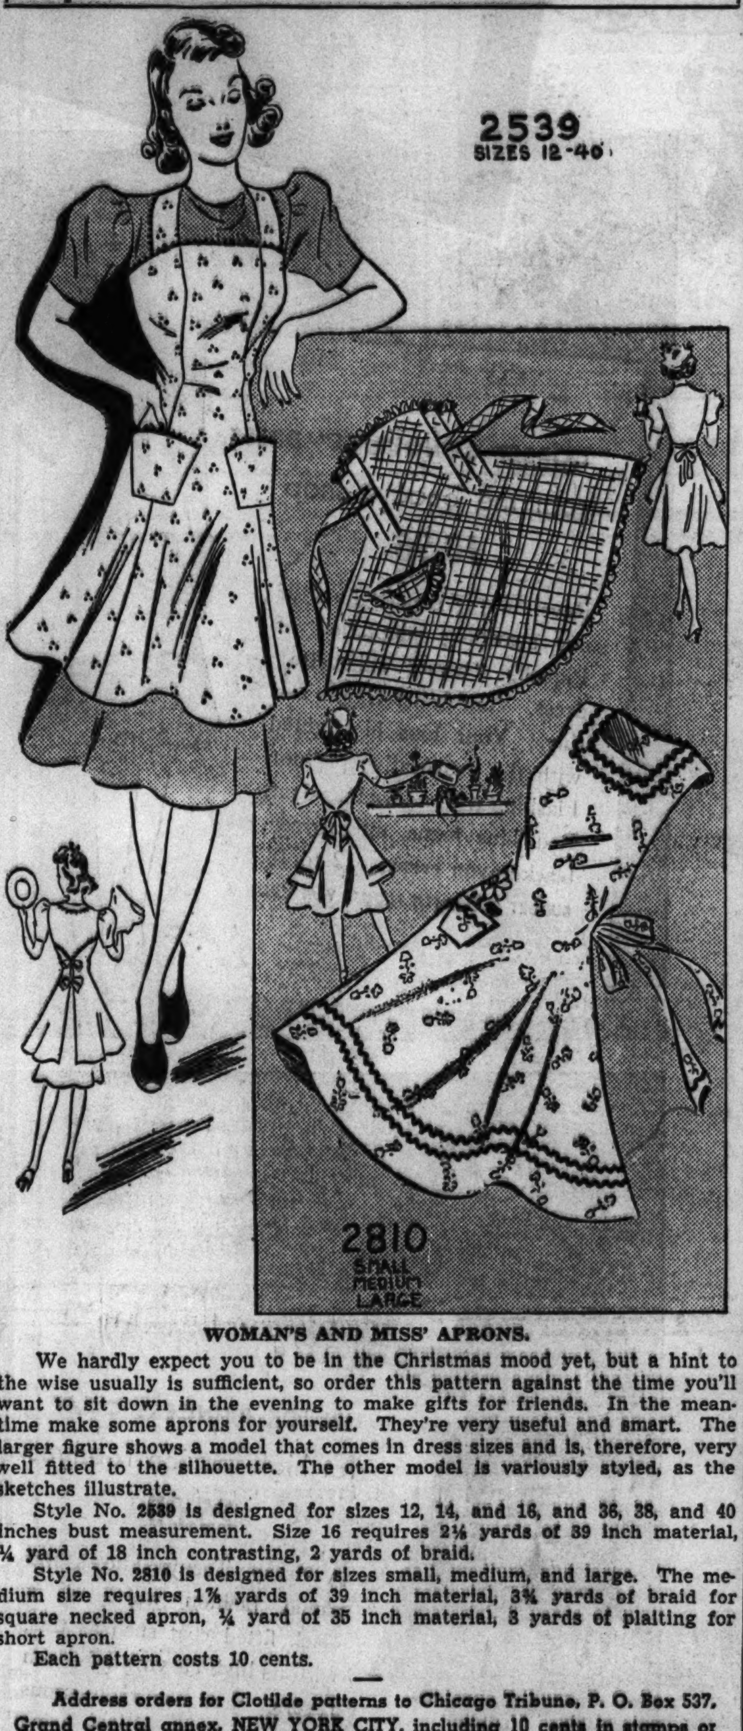
Aprons Make Welcome Gifts



WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRONS.

We hardly expect you to be in the Christmas mood yet, but a hint to the wise usually is sufficient, so order this pattern against the time you'll want to sit down in the evening to make gifts for friends. In the meantime make some aprons for yourself. They're very useful and smart. The larger figure shows a model that comes in dress sizes and is, therefore, very well fitted to the silhouette. The other model is variously styled, as the sketches illustrate.

Style No. 2539 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material, ¼ yard of 18 inch contrasting, 2 yards of braid.

Style No. 2810 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, 3¾ yards of braid for square necked apron, ¼ yard of 35 inch material, 3 yards of plaiting for short apron.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Bedroom Done in Glass Cloth at Home Show

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

The curtain of the autumn home furnishings style show goes up today, the beginning of National Furniture week. If you have not yet seen a glassroom, a beautiful bedroom with a white canopy bed and window draperies of glass fabric, bedspread of glass woven material, ornaments of crystal, and huge mirrors now is your opportunity.

The new glass textiles so closely resemble silks and brocades that it's almost impossible to realize they are fireproof, long lasting, and that most of them can be cleaned by wiping them carefully with a damp cloth. They are among the most luxurious and costly of all the 1939 inventions in their field.

Another display is an exhibit of rugs. Here you'll find every conceivable type of floor covering from handsome orientals and domestic copies to the most gorgeous of the deep pile, velvety, tone on tone modern rugs. These last can be used with 18th century furniture as well as with that of contemporary design.

Then, there's the aisle of clever arrangements of drapery and upholstery fabrics inspired by celebrities of Victorian and Edwardian times. A charming, quaint little arched back settee done in vibrant red satin is found in a glimpse of a room inspired by Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Various muted tones of blue in lustrous drapery materials are shown in another setup, named for James McNeil Whistler.

Here are items of distinction among the thousands that will be on view during National Furniture week:

A living room couch with two long pillows instead of three, the covering being crimson and off-white damask.

Discretion Is Ruling in Use of Mascara

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Someone has laughingly suggested that the early girl with the hussy reputation born of mascaraed eyelashes was just a lass years ahead of her time. She "wa'nt no hussy" but a gal who knew a thing or two about how to raise eye allure to its zenith. And we guess that's what she did, the way all the other girls rose en masse against her.

Anyway, this dolling up of the eyes, eyebrows, and eyelids is with us with nary a hussy hint longer tied to it, unless she does a horrible job of eye makeup.

Women have gone through the kindergarten stage in mascara and general eye makeup lessons. They have learned for themselves that no other type of cosmetic demands such care in handling. Being in close proximity to a feature of infinite importance to beauty, they've learned that it takes a steady hand and a discriminating taste to work the magic that lies in eye makeup.

Reliable manufacturers include directions for application of their eye products, which women should accept as the law. Nearly every maker has his own formula, and he has worked out special methods which have proved, after tests, to be the most satisfactory. Some creams require a dry brush; other pastes and cakes require a moisture addition or moistening of the brush. Follow directions.

Then your job is to apply mascara to look as if they were your own lashes unadorned. The right color for you, individually, is the trick here. There are two shades of brown, for instance. One light, one dark. Very light lashes would respond more attractively to the light brown. A good motto anent mascara coloring is: "I'll leave the black mascara to my dark-lashed sisters." Another trick is not to get too much mascara on your brush. Start with a scrupulously clean brush and use two coats, one very light, the second a bit heavier. Use the side of the brush, not the bristles, to get an even spread, and it is less likely to spatter. And brush up to get a curl into the lash.

Referee—Laverne Dilweg [Marquette]. Umpire—Ollie Stenger [North Central]. Field judge—S. V. Willson [Minnesota]. Head linesman—O. E. Dahlquist [Augustana].

The University of Chicago football team is prepared to unleash every energy at its command in trying to beat Beloit college in the 1939 opener on Stagg field this afternoon. The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

The Maroons want to display one victory already rung up when regular school begins next week. Meanwhile the game will be played before the university's freshmen, who have arrived on the campus early, and some 10,000 high school students and Boy Scouts.

Chicago expects nothing, chiefly because it was stopped cold in last year's scoreless opener by Bradley Tech, after expecting to win. If the best the Maroon players have to give isn't good enough to overcome a definitly strengthened Beloit eleven, they will be saddened, but not surprised.

Little Comfort for Maroons.

There is little comfort for the Midway squad in historical documents which show eight Chicago victories and one tie against the small Wisconsin institution. The team which Chicago conquered, 26 to 9, two years ago was 10 pounds lighter and weaker in experience than the eleven it faces today.

Man for man, the smallest outfit in the Big Ten and the power team in the Midwest conference are as evenly matched as a pair of boxing gloves. Only in the potentiality of a slightly superior line does the Midway team possess an advantage, and the difference is almost microscopic.

Chicago is counting on punting, the only department in which it is clearly improved, to ward off the Gold attack. Co-Capt. Bob Wasem, who has developed into a 75 yard booter, is merely the best of a half dozen Maroon kickers, all of whom double the distances Chicago averaged last year.

Chicago's line, markedly stronger than that of last year, is composed of five letter men, assuming that Coach Clark Shaughnessy will not keep his overweight star guard, Walter Maurovich, on the sidelines more than three minutes, and a couple of less prominent members of last year's forward wall.

N. U. PLAYS FROSH

An all-letter man lineup containing eight seniors and three juniors will represent Northwestern's varsity football squad when it takes the field against the freshmen at Dyche stadium today at 2 o'clock. There will be an admission charge of 40 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Coach Lynn Waldorf plans to employ three teams during the first half of the game. Then the freshmen will be excused and the second half will find the varsity engaging in an intrasquad contest. The freshmen are not considered far enough along in their practice to take part in a full game.

Positions at Stake.

Today's game will help decide the makeup of the Wildcat eleven for next week's opener with Oklahoma. Several starting positions, particularly in the back field, remain uncertain. The only regular who will be unable to play today is Ted Grefe, veteran end, who is out with a shoulder injury. He has been replaced by Jim Smith.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOUTH BEND, IND., Sept. 29.—The Notre Dame-Purdue game, which tomorrow opens the season for both teams, takes us back to another Notre Dame opening twenty years ago. . . . It was September, 1919, and the opponent was Kalamazoo college. . . . It marked the actual beginning of Knute Rockne's brilliant career as a coach. . . . He had succeeded Jesse C. Harper in 1918, but that was the year of the Student Army Training corps and Notre Dame, like nearly all other schools, was playing a makeshift schedule. . . . The Notre Dame-Kalamazoo game of 1919 always will be remembered by this department because it marked our debut as athletic publicity director at Notre Dame. . . . We have reported a lot of Notre Dame games since that warm September afternoon, but never have we worked harder. . . . There were no correspondents from metropolitan papers covering Notre Dame's opening game in 1919. . . . In fact, there were few, if any, assigned to any home game at Notre Dame that season. . . . It remained for the athletic publicity director to look after the detail of informing the world about the developments at old Cartier field.

The opening game in 1919 was attended by the student body and perhaps 500 off-the-campus rooters, who paid 50 cents for the privilege. . . . Tomorrow's attendance will approximate 45,000 and the price scale is $5.50, $3.30, and $2.20. . . . One of the country's largest press boxes will be crowded with representatives of the nation's leading journals and news services. . . . Three coast to coast radio chains will carry a play by play report to millions. . . . Notre Dame's new stadium has room for 56,000. . . . The capacity of the stands at old Cartier field in 1919 did not exceed 6,000. . . . The press box was a table near the 50 yard line on the west side of the gridiron with room for one reporter and a telegraph operator. . . . Elmer Layden, who will lead the Irish tomorrow, was a junior at Davenport High school. . . . Mal Elward, Purdue's head coach, only five years out of Notre Dame, was in charge of football at Grinnell.

Notre Dame defeated Kalamazoo, 14 to 0, and it whipped every other team on its schedule. . . . It repeated the achievement with much the same cast the following year. . . . Notre Dame has had other undefeated teams. . . . Maybe some of them were better than the 1919 eleven, but this department never will admit it. . . . One thing is certain—names that will live forever in football history were on the field that afternoon. . . . The referee was Walter Eckersall, one of the greatest players and most competent officials the game has developed. . . . The winning coach was Knute Rockne. . . . Notre Dame's stars were George Gipp and Bernie Kirk. . . . All are dead, but their gridiron exploits gain added lustre with the years.

Let's see what has become of other Notre Dame men who participated in the opening game of 1919. . . . Eddie Anderson is starting his first season as head coach at Iowa. . . . Frank Coughlin, right tackle, is an attorney in South Bend. . . . Hunk Anderson, right guard, is assistant coach of the Detroit Lions and a salesman for a large manufacturing company in Detroit. . . . Joe Brandy, quarter back, is the publisher of two daily papers in Ogdensburg, N. Y. . . . Slip Madigan, center, is coach at St. Mary's, Cal., and Dutch Bergman, whose 50 yard run accounted for Notre Dame's second touchdown, is coach and athletic director at the Catholic university. . . . Johnny Mohardt is a Chicago surgeon and physician. . . . Grover Malone is an engineer in the city water works, South Bend. . . . Norman Barry is a Chicago attorney. . . . Buck Shaw is coach at Santa Clara university. . . . Roger Kiley is an alderman in Chicago. . . . Dudley Pearson is a real estate broker in Milwaukee. . . . Joe O'Hara is an attorney in Glencoe, Minn.

Purdue is looking forward to one of its most successful campaigns. . . . Notre Dame, too, anticipates another strong squad. . . . The best we can hope for both teams is that they turn in as good a job as the Notre Dame boys of 1919.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 29.—The Illinois football team, facing a difficult schedule, has braced itself for rough going right from the start. With opponents such as Michigan, Northwestern, and Southern California in the offing, the Illini can see no point in playing around with softies in preliminary games. Accordingly they'll open tomorrow against Bradley Tech—a team that hasn't been beaten in its last 13 engagements.

The squad is going into its long campaign without false optimism, knowing that the season will consist of one tough assignment after another. The boys are an unassuming bunch, but observers recall that many a previous unpretentious Illinois team, thoroughly grounded by Coach Bob Zuppke in the principles of good football, has faced a powerful and colorful opponent without dismay and has turned a routine job into a sensation.

Doesn't Expect Heroics.

Zuppke will not admit that he expects heroics but it's a safe bet that he won't be a bit surprised if he sees some before the season is over. After tomorrow's game he may have a line on where those heroics, if any, are coming from.

He'll be watching Jimmy Smith, the sophomore half back who is considered one of the best offensive weapons available. This 184 pounder has shown so much ruggedness and power on the practice field that the Illini followers are sure he'll make long gains through the Bradley line tomorrow.

There is a bare possibility that Dave Miller, a sophomore half back who is one of the fastest men on the squad, may get into the game despite the fact that he still has his

YANKS TO HAVE BEDS, NO COTS, IN CINCINNATI HOTEL

Misunderstanding, Says Manager.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 29.—The New York Yankees tonight won the first world series battle, though it never will make the box scores. Reports had the American league champions slated to sleep on cots when they arrive here Oct. 7 for the third game of the series. But a protest by President Ed Barrow of the Yankees to a Cincinnati hotel manager soon established they shall have beds whenever they go.

The hotel where the Yanks are to be quartered is deluged by requests for rooms, and it was said the Yanks would just have to sleep on cots.

"Of course, we're oversubscribed," the hotel manager said tonight. "But the Yankees can rest assured that they will be provided with beds. The misunderstanding must have developed from an arrangement completed today. We have an office building in connection with the hotel and all requests for rooms received from now on will have to be consigned to cots in offices. That's all we have. Every room in every hotel in town is filled."

Can Crowd In 35,000.

The Cincinnati club, exultant over its first National league pennant in 20 years, announced that 800 additional reserved seats would be provided in Crosley field.

GET THOMPSON READY

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 29 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds have begun steaming up Junior Thompson, the 22 year old baby of their mound staff, to beat the Yankees in his World Series game. That's all the National league champions figure they will need—one victory by their freshman star—to give them the big end of the series money.

So they're working hard on the young Swede, who only a year ago was pitching for the Columbia club in the class B Sally league. Paul Derringer is slated to pitch the first game and Bucky Walters the second.

The idea behind the Thompson campaign is simple enough. The Reds, from Manager Bill McKechnie to the veteran Al Simmons, honestly think that Walters and Derringer can at least break even with the Yanks, each of them pitching twice during the series. But they feel, too, that they must have another winner, and Junior has been elected.

Derringer and Walters, as is perhaps natural with a couple of pitchers who have just won 52 games between them, aren't in the least awed at the prospect of facing the Yankees.

Walters is unacquainted with the American league champions, except for a few brief exhibition game skirmishes, but Derringer stood most of them on their heads in this year's All-Star game in Yankee stadium.

Wisconsin, Marquette Stars Ready for Battle Today

One of the interesting individual battles in the Wisconsin-Marquette opening game today in Madison will be the battle between the rival centers. Ray Apolskis, left above, will start for the Hilltoppers while Jack Murray, below, will be in the pivotal position for Wisconsin when the firing is heaviest. Apolskis and Murray are rated two of the best men in this section at their positions.

Indiana Faces Severe Test in Nebraska

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 29.—It may seem a trifle early for a football homecoming, but Indiana university's Hoosiers will hold theirs tomorrow, when they meet the University of Nebraska in Memorial stadium before an anticipated crowd of 18,000. The eccentricities of Western conference schedule making allow the Hoosiers only two games at home, the second and last being the old oaken bucket wrangle with Purdue. Between that battle and tomorrow's, Indiana will play six games on the road.

Coach Alvin Nugent McMillin, the little man known as Bo, was none too certain today about tomorrow's prospects. Three times have the Hoosiers met the Cornhuskers, losing the first two, 14 to 9 and 7 to 0, and holding the Huskers to a scoreless tie last year. All of these arguments were transacted at Nebraska. Indiana fans were quick to point out that the Hoosiers are one of the hardest teams in the country to lick in their own yard. Since Bo came to Bloomington in 1934, the Hoosiers have won ten games and tied one, while losing only three in Memorial stadium.

Bo Is No Mourner.

McMillin, if he were the type, would have plenty of basis for a

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 29. — The Badgers will be coming out tomorrow for their first public stroll of the football season, but their keeper, Coach Harry Stuhldreher, isn't at all sure as to how they might or might not react to the sight of Marquette university's Hilltoppers, old callers at Camp Randall, but nevertheless respected.

Gloom and fear, two Friday afternoon standbys in the coaching profession, are no longer included in the Stuhldreher répertoire of pregame maneuvers. Part of the 1939 technique of the fellow who once was quarter back of Notre Dame's hard riding Four Horsemen is "apprehension." He's that way not only because Marquette would consider a victory over Wisconsin a successful season but because of a menacing future. All the Badgers have ahead of them are Texas, Indiana, Northwestern, Iowa, Illinois, and Minnesota.

Badgers Lack Pep.

So far the Badgers, in plain language, haven't performed the practice feats necessary to stir the populace which in the past never had any trouble getting itself stirred up over championship thoughts even before the first kickoff of the year. The problem with the Badgers has been sluggishness. But the boys' own comments indicate they know they can do better between 2 and 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoons.

The sluggishness hasn't escaped Stuhldreher and his assistants. They have persistently tried to drive it away by goading. The lads in the cardinal tinted uniforms haven't responded. But despite the discouraging developments, Stuhldreher has stuck to the first string lineup he picked before the first practice was held. One day one or two men would look dead on their feet. The next day it would be one or two others, and so on. The conclusion is that the unusual fall heat has gotten 'em

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 29.—Notre Dame and Purdue are ready for their all-important engagement in Notre Dame stadium tomorrow afternoon, a battle which will eliminate one of these mid-western rivals for sectional and national football honors as they leave their marks for the race.

Forty thousand, perhaps more, if fair weather is tomorrow's fortune, will attend. This crowd will break the opening day attendance record established in 1930 when Southern Methodist was defeated, 20 to 14, in the first game played in the buff brick Notre Dame stadium. As the capacity of the stadium is 56,000 tickets will be available up to game time.

Attention is focused on this game, not only because of the long record of rivalry and the fact that the contesting coaches are Notre Dame graduates, but because each team lost only one game last year. Notre Dame went through eight contests undefeated, the best mark since 1930, when the last team coached by the late Knute Rockne finished with a perfect record. In the final game of the 1938 season the Irish were dropped from top national ranking by Southern California, 13 to 0.

Iowa Was the Villain.

Purdue was beaten, 7 to 0, by Minnesota last year, tied Fordham 6 to 6, but lost a share of the Western conference championship when Iowa held the Boilermakers to a scoreless tie. Even so, Purdue finished with a share of the runner-up honors.

Each team tomorrow will start veterans, the difference in personnel resting principally in the experience the second and third lineups have had. Each has its regular back field intact from the 1938 campaign and the speed, ability, and ruggedness of these men were factors in selling this game as the best of tomorrow's schedule.

Notre Dame will start Steve Sitko, greatest Irish quarter back in nearly a decade; Bob Saggau, who broke into the starting lineup last year as sophomore; Lou Zontini, whose brilliant run opened the scoring on Minnesota last fall, and the heavyweight full back, Joe Thesing.

Brock Can Play.

Ted Hennis, hard blocking Purdue quarter back; the versatile Jack Brown who passes with his right hand and kicks with his left foot; Leon DeWitte, crashing full back, and either Mike Byelene or Lou Brock will compose the Boilermaker back field. Brock can play, despite an ankle injury, and his 20 pound weight advantage over the fleet Byelene may be needed.

The Purdue squad arrived at noon today in Elkhart, which will be headquarters. In the afternoon the Boilermakers worked out briefly in the stadium, despite the intermittent drizzle which started shortly after lunch. Notre Dame's squad drilled at 4 o'clock, the usual practice hour.

Rain is feared by both coaches, Elmer Layden and Mal Elward. Each has pointed since opening practice Sept. 11 toward a fast running attack mixed with an air assault. Speed is the basic factor of each eleven and rain might be an insurmountable handicap. Unless it rains during the game, the ball handling of the backs will not suffer. Spin plays, the basis of deception, as well as forward passing are slowed if not nullified by rain.

Purdue Is Strong At End.

Purdue may have a slight advantage at end, although that is the position of Notre Dame's captain, John Kelly. In Dave Rankin, Felix Mackiewicz, Gene Britt, and Jack Krause, Purdue has an experienced, capable quartet of ends. Rankin and Mackiewicz are particularly adept at pass catching and are fast.

Tackle play may decide the battle. Dick Potter and Whitey Johnson, seniors, will open for Purdue. Tom Gallagher and Thad Harvey are Notre Dame's tackles. The Irish pair has a 10 pound weight advantage.

TWO STAKES TO END HAWTHORNE MEETING TODAY

Illinois Owned Horses, Juveniles to Run.

Two $2,500 stake races top the program at Hawthorne this afternoon, the windup of the twenty-four day meeting.

The Illinois owners handicap, designed for racing establishments owned by Illinois residents, is for 3 year olds and up, at a mile and a sixteenth with 12 horses entered. Mrs. Emil Denemark, whose Uneasy won the Illinois owners last year, will seek to repeat with Some Count today.

Juveniles Have a Race.

The Superior farm Bob's Boys has been assigned top weight of 117 pounds, while Ruth Sidell's Sir Jim James will carry 115 pounds. Others entered are: Morris Vehon's Smart Trick, C. Troutt's Rough Diamond, O. and L. Spitzer's Busy Morn, Lewin stable's Buttermilk, John Marsch's Kings Blue, Mrs. M. Evans' Shot Put, and Pershall's Brown Ben. C. E. Davison has nominated Chance Ray and Gray Jack.

The leading 2 year olds in the Chicago district will go postward in the $2,500 Hawthorne juvenile handicap, a six and one-half furlong sprint. Potranco, crack Lexbrook stable juvenile winner of several races here, and Designer, his stablemate, will be the favorites in the field of youngsters. Three horses are coupled as the Valdina farm entry. They are Valdina Nymph, Valdina Bess, and Valdina Gold.

CHALLEDON RUNS TODAY

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 29 (AP).—Challedon, W. L. Brann's three year old star, returns to racing in his native state tomorrow, with a reception committee of 11 thoroughbreds named to meet him in the Havre de Grace handicap. It will be Challedon's first start in this state since he won the Preakness at Pimlico in May and his first outing since he won the Hawthorn Gold cup two weeks ago.

Although opposed by older horses and top weighted with 122 pounds in Havre de Grace's closing day feature, Challedon was a probable 4 to 5 favorite to take the $15,000 added mile and an eighth event in stride.

Regarded as likely to give him the most opposition in the field of twelve named overnight were Belair stud's Isolater, carrying 116 pounds; Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Nedayr, 112, and W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite, 111.

Cubs to Play Once Mighty Cards Twice

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs didn't have to play the Cardinals yesterday and it worked out all right, for the Dodgers, though they split a double header, couldn't resume third place. So the Cubs watched the all-day rain and remained in third place, contemplating a double header with the defeated Cardinals this afternoon. Perhaps they did some wishing about rain and the double header, but we wouldn't know about that.

If the weather is clear this afternoon, as forecast, Manager Gabby Hartnett will send forth two of his ablest workmen, Bill Lee and Claude Passeau. One of these gents probably will be invited to open the city series in Comiskey park next Wednesday night and will have some nice exercise in anticipation of the assignment. Neither will have a shot at a 20 victory total, a goal on which both had focused in midseason. Both, however, have excellent chances to whip the Sox and will welcome the preview opportunity.

Because yesterday's rained out game was a scheduled ladies' festival, the beautiful ones will be privileged to see today's double header for one tax ticket and their free credentials. The first game will start at 1 o'clock.

The series and the season will wind up with a single game tomorrow between the Cubs and Cardinals.

SOX PLAY TWO TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 29.—The White Sox, surprised that they had been asked down here to play three single games, today found things working out as they thought they would in the first place, but with rain the cause. The Sox and Browns will play a double header tomorrow and wind up the season with a single game Sunday. Thornton Lee and Ted Lyons will pitch for the Sox tomorrow.

JOHNSTOWN TO RACE TODAY IF BELMONT IS DRY

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—Johnstown, William Woodward's winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont stakes, will go to the post tomorrow in the $7,500 Lawrence Realization race at Belmont park. Five other thoroughbreds are in the overnight field for the 1⅝ mile event.

Johnstown, however, will not start in the race if the track is heavy. It will be Johnstown's first start since he was beaten in the Arlington Classic. Other horses in the race are Hash, Catapult, Chip In, and Get Off.

TENNESSEE BEATS NORTH CAROLINA STATE, 13 TO 0

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—The Tennessee Volunteers, aided by Capt. Sam Bartholomew's eighty-one yard return of the opening kickoff, scored twice today against North Carolina State college in the first period, then found the going tough before they won, 13 to 0.

George Cafego, on his own 36 yard line flipped a sixteen yard forward pass to Foxx. He and Bartholomew then teamed to gain seventeen on a lateral. Cafego then raced eleven yards to the 20 yard line. Foxx, Cafego, and Coffman worked out a first down at the 8, and Cafego passed to Bob Andridge for touchdown. Cafego added the point from placement.

INDIANS CLOSE IN ON THIRD PLACE; WIN TWO GAMES

Beat Tigers Twice; Lead Sox by 1½ Games.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians strengthened their hold on third place in the American league race today by taking a double header from the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 3, and 3 to 0. The second game was called at the end of five innings because of darkness. The result wiped out the Tigers' last chance of climbing out of fifth place and increased the Indians' third place lead over the White Sox to a game and a half.

CRONIN SIGNS TO PILOT RED SOX FOR FIVE YEARS

Boston, Mass., Sept. 29 (AP).—Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, tonight announced the reëngagement of Joe Cronin as player-manager for another five year term. He also said he had signed Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, and Jim Tabor for the 1940 season.

Yawkey refused to mention Cronin's salary, but it is believed to be about $27,000 a year.

"I am more than satisfied with Joe Cronin's managerial record and I am sure the Boston baseball public agrees with me," Yawkey said.

LIONS' INJURY TALES IGNORED BY CARDINALS

Chicago Expects to See 'Em All Tomorrow.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Reports of apprehension in the Detroit Lion camp because of injuries to four leading back field men were ignored by the Cardinals yesterday as the Chicagoans prepared to meet the Lions in a National league game in Soldiers' field tomorrow night.

The Cardinals viewed the reports as part of Coach Gloomy Gus Henderson's strategy. Come kickoff time tomorrow night, the Cardinals expect to see John Pingel, Fred Vanzo, and Bill Shepherd in their regular places in the Detroit back field. When Shepherd tires they expect to see Jim McDonald in his place. This quartet is said by Detroit dispatches to have been bruised and sprained in the Brooklyn game last week. The dispatches go on to say that none is expected to be of much value to the Lions in their struggle to remain unbeaten in the National league race.

Ends Series for Season.

Detroit's appearance here will wind up the Cardinal series with the Lions this year, and Coach Ernie Nevers and his squad are eager to attain a .500 rating in the standings by avenging a 21 to 13 trimming in Detroit earlier in the season.

Detroit achieved its victory by running, scoring on Monk Moscrip's sixty-seven yard run with a fumble and Lloyd Cardwell's seventy yard sprint around end on a reverse play. The Cardwell run was made possible by the inexperience of several Cardinals and the lack of tackling skill on the part of the entire team.

Adams Given Release.

One of the men who could have held Cardwell's run to a fifteen yard gain, but failed, has been released. He is Henry Adams, former University of Pittsburgh center. Tackling has improved with daily drills and two games since the Detroit contest. The defense, consequently, has improved also.

Detroit, however, probably will test the Cardinals in another respect. Against Brooklyn, when it scored its second consecutive victory last Sunday, it unveiled a passing attack that proved highly productive. Pingel is Detroit's leading marksman.

The Cardinals, though, have more offense themselves, now that Marshall Goldberg has become thoroughly familiar with the signals; Bert Johnson has found his place in the back field, and George Faust has recovered from injuries sustained at Detroit.

Badgers Face Marquette in Opener Today

down, but the weather man has promised to correct that for tomorrow. Chilly blows from the northwest are promised.

At least a piece of Stuhldreher's immediate apprehension is due to the fact that four men he would like to employ at one time or another tomorrow will not be able to answer the call. Jack Doyle, a very close second to Jack Murray, an excellent center, is out temporarily with an injury. Fred Ladewig, fourth on the list of centers, is in the same fix. So are Cliff Phillip, reserve end, and Howie Kaewer, a reserve tackle. But the regulars remain intact physically and this happy condition helps to erase the painful thought that seven valuable stalwarts have vanished into the working world since last fall.

Even with all the various angles of apprehension the Badger coach, after mentioning his troubles, admits he has hopes. He figures the squad is going to develop up to what he anticipated. Even with all its sluggishness it has revealed a tendency toward important team play and has given indications of a desire to be aggressive. And the coach sort of throws all his apprehension out of bounds when he admits that, potentially, his present gang can run faster, kick better, and pass even more effectively than his squad of 1938. As soon as that is proved the downtown merchants will have their football decorations back in the show windows.

Paddy Driscoll is bringing out a crew of Hilltoppers he figures might, because of their experience, give the Badgers the unexpected. But the Badgers probably will be too tough for Marquette's running game to become effective and agile enough to slap down whatever their foes might attempt through the air. In the thirteen previous meetings with Wisconsin the Hilltop varsity has won only twice. It gave the Badgers a thorough going over both in 1935 and '36, but was crushed in 1937 and '38.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN FALLS, 6-2, BEFORE U. C. L. A. ELEVEN

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 29 (AP).—Texas Christian university, which held a claim on the collegiate national football championship in 1938, was beaten by the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins, 6 to 2, tonight before 55,000.

A brilliant third period touchdown drive and a gallant goal line stand in the last quarter brought U. C. L. A. victory over a team that had not been beaten in 14 consecutive games.

La Salle-Peru Beats Wright on Blocked Punt, 7 to 0

Farragut and Roosevelt Win League Games

Farragut of the west section and Roosevelt of the north division triumphed in the Chicago Public High School league's opening football games yesterday. Roosevelt routed Waller, 27 to 0, in Winnemac park in the afternoon and last night Farragut defeated Marshall, 24 to 6, in Mills stadium.

Half Back Noack produced Farragut's first touchdown against Marshall on a 2 yard plunge in the opening quarter. Full Back Zitcheak scored two touchdowns for Farragut, one on a short plunge in the second period and the other in the third period when he went through tackle from the Marshall 2 yard line.

Marshall made its only touchdown in the last quarter, Half Back Roth scoring on a 35 yard run.

Roosevelt wasted no time scoring its first touchdown against Waller, Ed Loyka plunging over from the 2 yard line to climax a fifty yard march. A similar drive in the second period reached the Waller 3 yard line, from where Warren Schabinger crashed over for a touchdown.

In the same quarter Clarence Rudy intercepted a forward pass on the Waller 30 yard line and was brought down on the 20. Loyka then slipped off tackle and raced across the Waller goal line. Dave Steffey took his turn in scoring in the final period, running thirty-one yards for a touchdown.

ILLINOIS BEATS PURDUE, 13-0, IN B TEAM GAME

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 29 [Special].—The Illinois B football team capitalized on two Purdue mistakes to score a 13 to 0 victory in a drizzling rain tonight. With the first half nearly over, Harry Siebold, Illini guard, recovered a Boilermaker fumble on the Purdue 5 yard line. On the next play Bob O'Brien, sophomore half back, threw a pass to Bob Campbell, who scored and added the extra point from placement.

O'Brien accounted for the other touchdown with an 8 yard sprint around right end late in the third period.

heart rending blues number. But Bo is not the crying kind. A mere recital of the facts in the case explains why he has no reason for optimism in viewing a tough schedule made tougher by this opener with Nebraska.

The loss of Capt. Paul Graham, who played defensive full back and blocking quarter last year, and of Left Tackle Bob Haak were of no great help to this year's cause, but Bo went ahead and was just coming to the conclusion that he might have the makings of a pretty fair back field when he was struck with right half backitis. First there was 185-pound Cobb Lewis, whom Bo had figured as the most valuable hand in the ball carrying foursome. An appendectomy put Cobb out of whack for the season.

Maddox Is Forced Out.

Cleo Maddox was moved up to right half and promptly injured an elbow, with the result that he probably will not play until the Wisconsin game. The next right half back to be stricken was Tuffy Brooks, Dayton, O., sophomore. An infected foot sent him to the bench, leaving McMillin with one right half—Harold Zimmer.

Zimmer probably will start tomorrow, plans being made to set up a heavy guard around his room tonight, lest he fall under the jinx. McMillin was given one cheering thought by the recovery of Brooks, who will be able to replace Zimmer at right half. Only one senior is in the tentative starting lineup. He is Capt. Jim Logan, left guard from Indianapolis.

Coach Biff Jones and the Nebraska squad of 35 players arrived in midafternoon and adjourned to Memorial stadium for a closed workout.

South Dakota Opens New Era at Iowa Today

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 29 [Special].—The University of Iowa eleven will meet South Dakota university tomorrow in a game which marks the beginning of the Hawkeyes' golden anniversary in football and the debut of Dr. Eddie Anderson as coach.

Attesting to Anderson's popularity with Iowa fans is the fact that 20,000 persons are expected to watch the Hawkeyes attempt to win their first game in Iowa stadium since Oct. 9, 1937.

Illinois Looks at Bradley and Sees a Battle

knee in a brace because of an injury incurred two weeks ago. Zuppke is particularly anxious to see what this youngster can do under fire because the team will need all the punch it can get in the back field.

Astroth Shows Improvement.

Another unknown quantity at present is Laverne Astroth, who has drawn the starting assignment at righ half back. This 160 pounder has shown considerable improvement recently and will get a chance to show his real merit tomorrow. Two juniors, Ralph Ehni at quarter and George Rettinger at full back, will complete the Illini back field.

Capt. Mel Brewer, now a senior, has returned to his old place at guard from the back field. It is believed that he will show to better advantage in the line, for during his sophomore year he was considered the best guard Illinois had seen for many a season.

First Meeting Since 1934.

This will be the first meeting between Bradley and Illinois since 1934. On that occasion, the Illini won, 40 to 7, but no such overwhelming score is expected tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be veterans' day at the university. Members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, disabled soldiers, reserve officers and ladies' auxiliaries will be guests at the game. David Kinley, president emeritus, will deliver an address between halves.

SUNDAY HUNTERS ARE WARNED NOT TO SHOOT DUCKS

BY BOB BECKER.

Hunters going to the northern Illinois lake country tomorrow for the 1939 opening of the mudhen season were given a last minute warning yesterday by state and federal officials. The message sent out to the thousands of shooters who are expected to bombard the birds tomorrow was, "Leave the ducks alone. Shoot mudhens only." To back up the warning the Biological survey has moved a large staff of federal wardens into the northern Illinois lake country.

The season opening tomorrow permits the shooting of mudhens only. Ducks may not be taken in Illinois until Oct. 22. That the federal wardens mean business tomorrow is shown by the fact that John Martin, federal warden at Peoria, has moved boats and motors to the Fox lake country so his men may cruise around all day checking the bags of hunters. The state department of conservation also will have a big force of wardens in northern Illinois tomorrow morning.

Thomas J. Lynch, director of the Illinois department of conservation, said yesterday that a continuance of the special Oct. 1 mudhen season for northern Illinois depends entirely on the behavior and sportsmanship of the hunters. If a checkup discloses that hunters are killing ducks between Oct. 1 and Oct. 22, the government will have but one remedy in addition to the arrest of the violators—eliminating the special early mudhen season for Illinois.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP). — United States government loans took over bond market leadership today by stretching recent gains by minor fractions to more than a point. Corporate loans were mixed. Rails fell back generally under fresh profit selling.

Lessening of open market buying of federal bonds by the reserve system apparently had the effect of bringing back into the market many buyers, including some large banks. Principal gains in treasuries were in the 3⅛s, 1952-'49; 4s of 1954-'44; 2½s of 1952-'50, and 3s of 1955-'51.

Peace rumors seemed to have no bad effect on any group in the foreign department excepting Brisbane 5s which dropped 12 points on thin transactions. Canada 3¼s of '61 climbed 6 and New South Wales 5s jumped 12. One to three higher were Rome 6½s, Japan 6½s, and Australia 4½s.

Chicago Stocks.

Many of the usual volume leaders on the Chicago Stock exchange were neglected during yesterday's trading, which brought a generally lower price range. An exception was W. F. Hall Printing, which advanced 1⅛ points to 15 coincidentally with stockholders' approval of new financing plans.

Armour, the most active issue on the list, declined ⅛ point to 6⅝, canceling much of the gain accumulated in the buying wave which followed the declaration of war in Europe. Commonwealth Edison was unchanged at 28⅞. Volume of trading was 30,000 shares.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago Title & Trust stock was bid 1 point lower in yesterday's trading. Other stocks were unchanged. Prices follow:

COTTON

American cotton markets were somewhat easier in the early trading yesterday on hedging pressure and foreign selling, but a rally came later on buying by mills and in sympathy with securities. Closing trades were .08 cent higher to .01 cent a pound lower. October showed the most strength.

Reports from Washington indicated that the department of agriculture will announce the loan price on the 1939 cotton crop within a week or 10 days. A price of about 8.30 cents a pound is anticipated. Rumors were current that England had opened negotiations with Egypt regarding the purchase of a large amount of cotton to be held as a wartime reserve.

Spot cotton closed .02 to .05 cent higher with New York, 9.29 cents; New Orleans, 9.21 cents; Galveston, 9.06 cents and Houston at 9.05 cents a pound. Prices follow:

ELECTRIC LINE PLANS 100 MILE AN HOUR TRAINS

North Shore to Buy Two Streamliners.

Col. A. A. Sprague.

Plans for the purchase of two 100 mile an hour streamlined electric trains—subject to approval by the United States district court and the Illinois commerce commission — were announced yesterday by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, the North Shore. It was indicated that the use of streamlined trains by steam road competitors makes the purchase imperative. Numerous steam roads also announce substantial equipment purchase programs.

Col. A. A. Sprague, receiver of the North Shore, yesterday notified the various committees representing the road's securities of the plan to buy the trains from the St. Louis Car company, low bidder for $299,000.

Trains Will be Unique.

The new trains, which will run between Chicago and Milwaukee and intermediate points, will be unique in American railroad operation. Although each train will consist of four cars because of articulated construction, they will in reality be single units of 156 feet 9 inches total length. The front and rear units will be approximately 44 feet 8 inches in length and the two center units 33 feet 8 inches.

Power will be supplied by eight motors delivering a total of 1,000 horse power and the specifications call for an operating speed with safety "of at least 100 miles an hour." The trains will be built of high tensile steel alloys and lightweight materials which will make possible a substantial reduction in weight without sacrifice of strength. Each train will weigh 167,600 pounds, contrasted with the 315,000 pound weight of present three car trains.

Tavern Car Included.

The first two and the rear units will be coaches and the fourth unit will be a tavern car. The interior finish of all cars will be of metal. A new type of lighting will be used in which fixtures, especially designed to aid reading, will be placed above each seat.

Door entrances will be new. The doors will be located in the middle of the first, second and fourth units, instead of as now at the ends of the cars. Coach seats will be of tubular steel upholstered in mohair. The tavern car in addition to the bar will have tables, upholstered arm chairs and sofas.

All the cars will be air conditioned and will be heated by electricity. Smoking compartments will have automatic exhaust ventilators to keep them clear of smoke.

Cars Will Be Insulated.

Floors and sides will be insulated against heat, sound and vibration, and the trucks will be insulated with rubber to break the metallic contact with the rails.

Sprague estimates use of these trains will result in a savings in operating costs of $26,000 a year in comparison with the cost of operating comparable present equipment. He estimates they should attract about $150,000 of new revenue a year.

Sprague says since June 1, 1939, earnings have shown improvement over preceding periods as a result of consolidations in operations and other economies. Financing of the new trains is to be through $100,000 cash and the remainder in receiver's certificates.

The road is to present a petition to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on Tuesday asking authority to buy the trains.

Other Big Equipment Orders.

Other railroad equipment orders already placed were estimated to involve an expenditure of more than $150,000,000.

The Illinois Central announced it had placed orders for 10,600 tons of rail costing about $500,000. The business, which is in addition to an order for 2,500 tons of rail placed two weeks ago, was divided among the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, the Inland Steel company, and the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company. The two last named companies will produce the rail at their Chicago plants.

The Norfolk and Western railway ordered about 25,000 tons of rail worth about $1,000,000 from the Bethlehem Steel company and Carnegie-Illinois. The Frisco railway was authorized by federal court to spend $682,032 on new rail and accessories.

Pennsylvania Sells Bonds.

The Pennsylvania railroad awarded $3,865,000 of 2¾ per cent equipment trust certificates to Salomon Brothers & Hutzler of New York on a bid of 99.1187 per cent. Proceeds will be used toward financing the construction of 2,500 freight cars and 20 electric locomotives costing $11,820,000, a portion of the $17,000,000 equipment and property improvement program recently announced.

Loft, Inc., Reorganization Meeting Set for Monday

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—The meeting of the board of directors of Loft, Inc., scheduled to be held today for consideration of the company's plan of reorganization, was adjourned until Monday afternoon.

Louisville Acts to Have Utility Run Privately

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—The American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., one of the largest private water utility companies in the country, has been selected to take over the management of the Louisville, Ky., municipally owned water works, it was disclosed today.

A committee of Louisville citizens made a thoroughgoing study of the municipal water system and reported to Mayor Joseph D. Scholtz that the city is not obtaining a proper return from the water system. The committee declared that "excessive operating expenses and an unbalanced rate schedule," were responsible for this condition.

Says Saving is Possible.

American Water Works and Electric, during the course of the committee's investigation, was invited to make a preliminary study of the municipal water works, known as the Louisville Water company, and found that "very substantial savings could be effected" in the operation of the system under private management.

The committee study found the water works system had "conservative valuation" of at least $20,000,000 in excess of the $250,000 net bonded indebtedness outstanding against it. "It is only reasonable that it [Louisville] should receive a 5 per cent to 6 per cent return from its $20,000,000 water company—that is, $1,000,000 to $1,200,000—instead of the present 2½ per cent return, or $51,000 per annum," the report asserted.

Promises Higher Income.

Earl S. Thompson, president of American Water Works in a letter submitted to the committee a few weeks ago said that his company was sufficiently confident that under the private management service of American Water Works, substantial savings could be effected in the operating expenses, with an increase in the amount of money which would be available for the sinking fund of the city.

Thompson proposed that American Water Works be paid the first $65,000 of any increase in the net operating income of the municipal water works over its 1938 net operating income and an additional sum equivalent to 25 per cent of the amount of such increased net income in excess of $65,000 a year.

In turn, he said, American Water Works would be willing to guarantee an increase in the net income of the municipal system of at least $100,000 over and above the management fee.

WESTERN STATES WILL TRY TO END TRADE BARRIERS

Denver, Colo., Sept. 29 (AP).—Ten western states will begin actual attempts to remove interstate trade barriers at a conference in Santa Fe, N. M., next February. Announcement of the Santa Fe meeting came after delegates from the states, attending their second conference here, went on record favoring retention of the present "ports of entry" system.

The group also approved resolutions calling for:

1. Enactment of uniform state laws for "reasonable regulation and licensing of itinerant merchants and truckers engaged in intrastate and interstate commerce."
2. Repeal of state laws "enacted to prevent the free flow of commerce between the states of agricultural and food products under the guise of quarantines which are not enacted for the public health and protection against infestation."
3. Frank admission by the participating states of "the present impossibility of agreement and adoption of uniform regulations as to the size and weight of trucks engaged in interstate commerce."

FORMER SEC AID, BROKER GUILTY OF STOCK FRAUD

New York, Sept. 29 [Special].—John J. McKee, former Securities and Exchange commission investigator, and Moe Platt, former curb exchange broker, were sentenced to two years in prison and fined $2,500 each today after a federal jury found them guilty of conspiracy. The jury deliberated 20 minutes.

Platt was accused of operating a stock manipulation scheme, with McKee tipping him off on SEC activities. The specific charge was conspiracy to defraud the government out of the impartial services of one of its officers.

Two Others Sentenced.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP).—John M. Etheridge of Fresno, Cal., must serve a federal prison term of a year and a month for conspiracy to violate the Securities Exchange act in the alleged sale of fraudulent stocks. Jerome L. Richardson, former Criminal court judge of Riverside, Cal., was fined $500 on the same charge.

TEXAS TO CLOSE OIL WELLS FOR 11 DAYS IN OCTOBER

Austin, Tex., Sept. 29 (AP).—Eleven days of shutdowns for all Texas oilfields in October were announced today by Jerry Sadler, member of the railroad commission.

In addition to stopping production on all Saturdays and Sundays, there will be shutdowns on the first Monday and the last Friday of the month.

Sadler said the average daily production for all the state in October would be 1,360,563 barrels, or 84,237 barrels less than the estimate of market demand made by the federal bureau of mines, and approximately 40,000 barrels less than the average production in September.

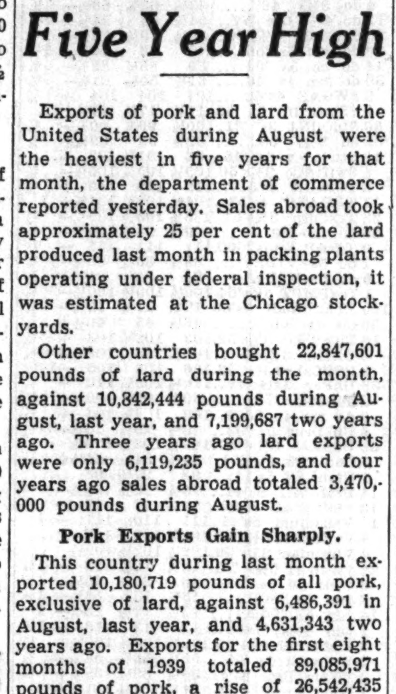
Pork and Lard Exports Reach Five Year High

Exports of pork and lard from the United States during August were the heaviest in five years for that month, the department of commerce reported yesterday. Sales abroad took approximately 25 per cent of the lard produced last month in packing plants operating under federal inspection, it was estimated at the Chicago stockyards.

Other countries bought 22,847,601 pounds of lard during the month, against 10,842,444 pounds during August, last year, and 7,199,687 two years ago. Three years ago lard exports were only 6,119,235 pounds, and four years ago sales abroad totaled 3,470,000 pounds during August.

Pork Exports Gain Sharply.

This country during last month exported 10,180,719 pounds of all pork, exclusive of lard, against 6,486,391 in August, last year, and 4,631,343 two years ago. Exports for the first eight months of 1939 totaled 89,085,971 pounds of pork, a rise of 26,542,435 pounds over the eight months of 1938, and 48,814,957 pounds more than the eight months' exports in 1937.



This chart compares United States exports of pork and lard in August of the last six years.

Lard exports for the eight months were 188,863,834 pounds this year and 129,534,828 last year. Two years ago they were down to 67,491,289.

The attached table shows exports for six years [figures in thousands of pounds, last three ciphers omitted]:

	—August.—		—Eight Months.—
	Pork.	Lard.	Pork.	Lard.
1939	10,181	22,848	89,086	188,864
1938	6,486	10,842	62,544	129,535
1937	4,631	7,200	40,271	67,491
1936	6,105	6,119	48,508	74,621
1935	6,785	3,470	67,547	77,152
1934	15,965	29,755	108,520	339,833

Sales Decline Seasonally.

Although a new August high for recent years was made, sales of pork and lard showed a seasonal decline from the July exports, which totaled 16,883,883 pounds of pork and 25,338,962 pounds of lard. There is almost always a decline in exports of pork products from July to August.

Beef exports were largest for August in three years, at 1,400,684 pounds. This compared with 1,081,656 a year ago. The eight months' sales at 8,779,047 pounds compared with 8,498,024 a year ago.

Pork imports declined from 4,864,145 pounds in July to 4,588,867 pounds in August. This compared with 4,045,007 pounds in August, last year, and 6,773,856 pounds two years ago. The eight months' pork imports at 36,457,382 pounds were smallest in three years.

Beef imports at 8,153,696 pounds compared with 5,818,488 in August, last year. The eight months' totals were 59,876,150 pounds this year and 54,128,831 a year ago.

STORES' SALES RUN 5.4 PER CENT ABOVE YEAR AGO

Department store sales in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district increased 5.4 per cent above 1938 levels during the week ended Sept. 23, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. In the preceding week sales dropped 5.2 per cent below 1938. In the four weeks ended Sept. 23 sales increased 1.1 per cent above 1938.

The 7th district gain was not reflected in sales in Chicago, however, as the city's department store trade decreased 0.1 per cent for the week and 2.9 per cent for the four weeks below the corresponding periods of 1938.

National department store sales for the week were 3 per cent higher than a year ago. The average gain for the four weeks also was 3 per cent.

AIRPLANE EXPORTS SET PEAK IN AUGUST; TOTAL IS $12,136,845

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 [Special].—A record for United States exports of aeronautic equipment was reached in August when shipments totaled $12,136,845, the department of commerce reported today. This was 14 per cent in dollar value above the previous record month of June, 1939, 34 per cent above July this year, and 126 per cent above August, 1938. The neutrality law has since shut off such shipments.

Principal items in August exports were 138 airplanes valued at $5,967,025 and $3,804,365 worth of aircraft parts and accessories. Other items were 221 engines, valued at $1,844,180; engine parts and accessories, $335,507; instruments and parts, $151,870, and parachutes and parts, $33,898.

The United Kingdom, which purchased aeronautic products to the value of $5,221,926, was the leading buyer, followed by France with a total of $4,801,260, and by Canada, Netherlands India, the Philippine Islands, and Japan in that order.

The total for eight months this year was $70,186,620 which was 3 per cent above the total of $68,227,689 for eight months of 1938.

IMPORTS OF GOLD ARE REDUCED BY DANGERS OF WAR

Gold shipments to the United States were reduced last week because of war dangers, the commerce department reported yesterday. A total of $36,966,590 of the metal reached American shores in the week ended Sept. 22, compared with $116,006,980 in the preceding week.

According to the commerce department, Canada continued the leading shipper of gold to this country. The dominion's shipments totaled $29,742,429. In the preceding week Canada, which replaced England as the leading shipper, had shipments of $79,857,408 out of a total of $116,006,980.

Silver imports during the same week totaled $1,298,250. This included $655,122 from Mexico, and $215,674 from Canada.

For the third consecutive day the price of silver at New York was reduced. Handy & Harman, bullion dealers, who make the market, posted a reduction of ¼ cent an ounce to 35 cents. This price, which followed a reduction at London for bar silver, coincided with the treasury department's offering price for foreign mined silver.

Output of Auto Plants Best for Week Since 1929

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29 [Special].—Automobile output this week reached the highest level for a comparative September week since 1929 with a total of 62,755 cars and trucks, according to estimates of Ward's automotive reports today. The current total compares with 53,950 assemblies last week and 25,405 in the same week of 1938. The output of leading companies compares as follows:

	This wk.	Last wk.	Yr. ago.
General Motors	17,550	16,176	8,819
Chrysler	21,975	21,100	8,700
Ford	9,240	2,950	615

Peace Rumors Ease Prices of Commodities

Commodities were under selling pressure yesterday due to reports of possible peace proposals in Europe. Rubber, hides, wool, and tin were outstanding losers. Declines in other staples were generally limited to small fractions.

Rubber futures at New York sank .10 to .40 cent a pound and cash rubber dropped .20 cent a pound to sell at 20 cents. Hides gave up .32 to .33 cent a pound although the cash commodity held unchanged. Cash tin dropped 1 cent to 60 cents a pound and futures slumped ¼ to 2½ cents.

Wool Futures Decline.

Wool futures sagged 1.9 to 2½ cents a pound, and cash wool, declining 3 cents to $1.27, recorded its first substantial loss since the war began. Yesterday's price was 4 cents under the peak reached about a week ago. but was still 40½ cents above the Aug. 31 quotation.

Smaller losses were chalked up for Santos coffee, both sugar contracts, cottonseed oil, lead, tin, zinc, and copper futures.

Export demand for refined copper was reported heavy, and belligerent nations were included in the list of buyers and prospective buyers. Chief interest centered on small purchases by France, which seemingly indicated that France has not yet been able to buy copper in Britain. Recently it was reported in the trade that the British empire copper supply would fill Britain's war needs and permit export of some copper to France.

Other Nations Buy.

Other nations in the American copper market for supplies were Russia, Japan, the Scandinavian countries, and Brazil. Sales were reported made to these interests at prices ranging from 11½ to 12½ cents a pound, which compares with the quotation of 12 cents still posted by major refiners for domestic buyers.

Sales Thursday were reported at more than 4,000 tons, bringing the total for the month to date to within about 8,000 tons of the all-time peak established in July. There are two remaining business days in September for sales to be reported.

Paper manufacturers reported big demand for nearly all kinds of paper since the war started had caused prices to advance sharply. Kraft paper prices are 23 per cent higher than a month ago, and many manufacturers are refusing to quote prices at all.

Predicts Vacuum Cleaner Sales Worth 65 Millions

New York, Sept. 29 [Special]. — Women will spend $65,000,000 for vacuum cleaners this year, according to Richard J. Simmons of the Birtman Electric company, Chicago. Simmons, president of the Vacuum Cleaner Manufacturers' association, told the annual meeting of the group here today that nearly 900,000 cleaners were sold in the first eight months of 1939, and that the total will probably be above 1,000,000 before the year is out.

Wheat and Corn Close Cent Lower Despite Late Rally

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .82⅛	$ .83⅛	$ .63¾
Corn	.49⅝	.50⅝	.48¼
Oats	.31⅞	.33	.25⅜
Rye	.53¼	.53⅞	.43½
Soy beans......	.80¼	.81¼	.75⅝

Wheat and corn prices at one time yesterday declined about 2 cents to new low levels since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe. December wheat sold at 81⅛ cents and corn at 48¾ cents before sufficient buying developed to check the decline.

A strong rally occurred later, but the close was at losses of 1 to 1¼ cents on wheat and 1 cent on corn. December wheat at the low was 8⅛ cents under the high price established early in the month and December corn was down 11¾ cents.

Peace Reports Influence Market.

Reports that Germany and Russia had initiated a peace movement in Europe, combined with showers in parts of central and eastern Kansas and Nebraska, were the depressing influences in the wheat market.

July wheat led the decline in the Chicago and Kansas City markets, although reports indicated that the rainfall in many sections was too light to be of material benefit to the new winter wheat crop.

A break of about 3 cents in Winnipeg wheat futures attracted considerable attention from traders in American markets during the early part of the session. Buying attributed to exporters caused a rapid recovery in the Canadian market and losses at the close were only ⅜ to ½ cent.

Britain Takes Canadian Wheat.

Large quantities of Canadian cash wheat are reported now being shipped to Europe. A fleet of 15 steamers from Canadian ports was said to have arrived at English ports last week. The fleet was convoyed by destroyers.

Exporters reported that Europe showed a little interest in cash corn, but no sales could be confirmed. About 500,000 bushels were said to have been sold to Scandinavia and 250,000 bushels to Belgium on Thursday.

STOCKS DRIVEN INTO A RETREAT BY PEACE SCARE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 29.—Nervous selling came into the stock market today induced by what observers termed the "peace scare" inherent in the German-Russian statement. The expectation in financial circles is that peace overtures will come over the week-end.

Under the weight of orders accumulated over night and bunched into blocks of 1,000 to 500 shares, prices broke fractions to around 3 points at the opening. After the urgent selling had been take care of prices spent the remainder of the session hovering at levels just above their lows.

Some Rely on Long War.

Reports from Europe that England and France would reject any peace plan and were determined to continue fighting served to prevent a further decline, observers said. They said that traders who expect large war profits to accrue to United States companies as a result of a long European war found further encouragement in the threat of German-Russian collaboration in war if England and France refused their peace terms.

United States Steel and Bethlehem Steel each lost more than 2 points at the opening, but then recovered partly and closed 1⅞ and 1⅝ points lower, respectively. Both Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube lost ¾ point.

Motor Shares Are Strong.

Aided by the report of record automobile production motor shares gave an independently strong account of themselves. Both General Motors and Chrysler closed fractionally higher on good buying.

Douglas was hard hit in the aviations, slumping 2 points. Others, including Glenn Martin, Consolidated Aircraft, United Aircraft, and Sperry corporation, dropped fractions to about a point. North American Aviation was active on the downside.

Rails shares also ran into a flurry of selling at the start, but early losses were pared to fractions in the majority of cases. Rail equipments declined in sympathy.

Power and light shares also sagged but recessions were relatively small. In the chemicals, Allied Chemical and du Pont lost 2 and 1½ points, respectively.

WRIGLEY VOTES 50 CENTS EXTRA ON ITS SHARES

Directors of the William Wrigley Jr. company yesterday declared a special extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, in addition to three monthly dividends of 25 cents each. The extra dividend is payable Nov. 1, and the monthly dividends are payable Nov. 1, Dec. 1, and Jan. 2, respectively. The declarations bring total dividend payments for 1939 to $3.75, the same as was paid last year.

MILWAUKEE LINE GROUP ASKS NEW HEARING ON PLAN

The protective committee for stockholders of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad yesterday filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission in Washington, asking that the hearing on reorganization of the road be reopened for new testimony.

The committee held that the plan formulated by the commission in 1938 was promulgated at one of the lowest points of the depression, and that since then revenues have increased. The road's net income for the first six months of the year, according to the petition, was $695,446, compared with a loss of $82,717 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Argentine Railways Place $500,000 Order in America

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Argentine State railways tonight announced the purchase of nearly $500,000 in railway tank cars from the United States. Informed circles interpreted this to be an indication the United States may be asked to furnish equipment because of Germany's failure to fulfill a big barter deal. The State railways said 200 tank cars and parts, and some steel parts of locomotives were bought from the American Car and Foundry company.

Directs Chicago Drive

LEVERETT S. LYON.

Select Lyon for Greater Chicago Plan

Appointment of Leverett S. Lyon as chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, effective Oct. 20, was announced yesterday by Oscar G. Mayer, association president. Lyon, a native of Illinois, has been executive vice president of the Brookings institution, Washington, D. C., since 1932, and is an authority on commodity distribution.

Lyon will be given a free hand in directing the association's Greater Chicago Plan to stimulate trade and pay rolls of the city's industries, Mayer said. He will have at his disposal a fund of nearly $500,000 subscribed by Chicago companies in support of the association's program.

Haynes Retains Post.

James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the association since 1928, will continue in that position and will remain in charge of the association's service activities, according to Mayer's announcement.

At the Brookings institution, a nonpolitical organization devoted to the development of national policies and graduate training in social sciences, Lyon worked closely with Harold G. Moulton, president.

Lyon was born in Will county in 1885 and was educated at Beloit college, Chicago Kent College of Law, and the University of Chicago. He taught at Joliet Township High school from 1910 to 1916 and was admitted to the Illinois bar in the latter year. He was a member of the University of Chicago economics faculty from 1916 to 1923 and for two years was dean of the school of commerce and finance of Washington university, St. Louis.

Held Other Positions.

He was United States delegate to the International Congress on Business Education at Amsterdam, in 1929, and at London four years later. In the summer of 1934 Lyon was deputy assistant administrator for fair trade practice policy of the national recovery administration.

Lyon is a frequent contributor to professional and other journals and the author of texts on economics and advertising. He is married and has two sons.

CREDITORS SUE VAN SWERINGEN REALTY CONCERN

Cleveland, O., Sept. 29 (AP).—An assignee for creditors of the Vaness company, former top holding company for the Van Sweringen rail and realty empire, sued the Terminal and Shaker Heights Realty company today charging that the Midamerica corporation was organized to the detriment of the Vaness company.

The Terminal and Shaker Heights Realty company is successor to Midamerica. Midamerica was formed Sept. 28, 1935, to buy key assets of Vaness at a public auction sale in New York after Vaness had defaulted on an $18,250,000 loan from J. P. Morgan & Co., the suit charged.

The assignee, Warren L. Morris of Cleveland, declared Vaness was 80 per cent controlled by the late O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, and that the brothers "while occupying the positions of trust with Vaness, induced George Ball and George A. Tomlinson to enter in agreement with them to form Midamerica for the express purpose of bidding for and acquiring" the stocks at public sale.

Values Stanolind Pipe Line Property Above 47 Millions

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29 (AP).—The interstate commerce commission placed a tentative final valuation of $47,150,000 today, for rate making purposes, on the common carrier properties of the Stanolind Pipe Line company. The firm, part of the system of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, owns pipe lines in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Wyoming, Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana.

Business Books

"The History of an Advertising Agency; N. W. Ayer & Son at Work," by Ralph M. Hower. [Harvard University Press. $4.]

Dr. Hower, assistant professor of business history in the Harvard graduate school of business administration, has written the biography of one of the oldest advertising agencies, N. W. Ayer & Son.

Because the purpose of the agency could be understood best against the background of the system of private enterprise Dr. Hower traces its history in the various industries and businesses with which it has dealt.

The book is an aggressive defense of modern advertising and business. Dr. Hower concludes that advertising is necessary to a free industrial society.

FEDERAL RULE OF 1940 SUGAR CROP DROPPED

Quota Order Caused Much Confusion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today clarified the sugar situation by explaining that there are no restrictions on sugar acreage for the 1940 crop.

This settled for the time being the question of acreage allotments for sugar and wheat, two vital commodities greatly in demand under war time conditions. Wallace earlier announced that the 1940 wheat crop would be restricted to 62 million acres, an increase of 7 million over the 1939 allotment. Officials insist that there have been no demands for increased acreage, at least as far as the winter planting is concerned.

Caused Much Confusion.

Much confusion had resulted among sugar planters as a result of President Roosevelt's proclamation of Sept. 11, in which he suspended temporarily the marketing quotas for sugar, under Title 2 of the sugar act of 1937. Some interpreted the action as not affecting the crop restrictions imposed under Title 3 of the act. Others believed that production was so closely related to the marketing restrictions that acreage allotments were virtually suspended with the proclamation.

Of this situation, Wallace said: "With the suspension of sugar quotas under the sugar act of 1937, all restrictions upon the marketings of sugar have been removed. All producers of sugar cane and sugar beets who meet the conditions of payment under the sugar act of 1937 will be paid in full for the 1939 program.

Explains Payment Conditions.

"However, the conditions for payment on the 1939 crop cannot be met by the destruction of sugar cane or sugar beets, and payments will be withheld in cases where sugar cane or sugar beets are destroyed for purposes of compliance, or for any other purposes.

"In view of the suspension of quotas, no program or payments under the provisions of Title 3 of the sugar act is in effect or contemplated at this time for the 1940 crop in any producing area."

Officials explained that producers will get their benefit payments at the basic rate of 60 cents per hundred pounds, raw value, for commercially recoverable sugar produced under their proportionate shares of the acreage. Any surplus produced must be sold, used for feeding, or other purposes but not destroyed for the sole purpose of meeting requirements for benefit payments. In the past planters have grown in excess of their allotments but plowed under the excess crop when the acreage allotment was determined.

Affects Sugar Cane.

This was particularly true of sugar cane land where planting had to be done in the fall, sometimes before acreage allotments for the next crop were determined by the department of agriculture. The acreage allotments for the 1939 crops were 1,030,000 acres for sugar beets, compared with 990,000 acres in 1938, and 250,000 acres for sugar cane, which was a 25 per cent reduction from the 1938 allotment.

The cane growing area is confined to Louisiana and Florida. Sugar beets are grown in California, Colorado, Montana, Nebraska, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Oregon, the Dakotas, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Texas, Idaho, Kansas, Minnesota, Nevada, and New Mexico.

There had been increasing pressure from the cane growing areas for more acreage, to be taken from the quotas for imports. Some of the western states, particularly California, Montana, and Oregon, have wanted more acreage for beets.

Advises Some Restrictions.

Senator Allen J. Ellender [D., La.], a leading advocate of domestic sugar protection against foreign production, said today that even with restrictions off he has advised planters in his state to restrict their crops to 60 per cent of the available cane land, as was requested in 1938. He said he believed that 90 per cent of them would follow the suggestion in order to avoid overexpansion of production.

Sugar consumption in the United States was estimated at 6,755,000 tons for 1939. To meet this demand the administration, under its sugar dictatorship established marketing quotas, of which 1,991,000 tons were to come from domestic production and the remaining 4,764,000 tons from offshore areas, including American territories and foreign sources. Cuba was allowed to export 1,932,000 tons to the United States under a privileged duty of 90 cents per 100 pounds. This was automatically raised to $1.50 with suspension of the quotas.

Plowed Under Their Surpluses.

While sugar poured in from outside sources, domestic planters were forced to plow under their surpluses to meet benefit requirements.

Concerning the wheat situation, officials insist that farmers will hold close to their allotments for 1940, despite the temptation to plant more in view of war time demands. They denied receiving requests for increased acreage. N. E. Dodd, director of the Agricultural Adjustment administration's western division, has just returned from an inspection tour of the west. He reported that farmers generally were going to plant the land that they had prepared to plant before war broke out in Europe. Of

OFFICE FORCES ARE EXPANDED BY TRADE RISE

Factory Jobs Increase, Wages Are Boosted.

Several manufacturing corporations expanded their factory and office forces yesterday to meet the demands of the industrial recovery which has become pronounced in recent weeks.

The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation announced at its headquarters in Pittsburgh that "because of the extra work involved in the present increased volume of business," salaried employés would be placed on a six day week at full pay, effective at once. An undisclosed number of employés at offices in Chicago and nineteen other districts will be affected.

Get 5 Per Cent Pay Boost.

A wage increase of 5 per cent for 2,600 employés of Johnson & Johnson, surgical supply company, was announced at New Brunswick, N. J. Included among those benefitting from the wage boost, which is effective Oct. 24, will be four hundred Chicago employés of the company.

The United Zinc Smelting company announced its plant at Moundsville, W. Va., idle since last June, will be reopened within three weeks as a result of heavy demands from metal consumers. About 200 workers will be recalled.

Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company will add a third shift at its Toledo, O., plant on Monday and hire 350 additional workers, it was announced. About 900 are now at work at the plant.

Steel Mills Busier.

Trade reports indicated steel activity is still rising in Pittsburgh, Youngstown, and Birmingham districts. Pittsburgh production next week is scheduled to rise several points to more than 80 per cent of capacity for the first time since 1937.

Every blast furnace in the Birmingham area is in production, the first time since immediately after the world war. The district's rate has climbed to 86 per cent of capacity.

CHANGE IN RULES ON FORWARDING FREIGHT ASKED

The Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday appealed to the Interstate Commerce commission to reverse two recent decisions applying to freight forwarding service in less than carload shipments by motor truck. The decisions, which are to go into effect Oct. 10, will greatly curtail the service of the forwarders, cause delays in deliveries, and increase freight bills of shippers, according to the association.

By coördinating rail carload service between large commercial centers with the services of several thousand truck lines, the freight forwarders within recent years have developed a system which now extends to 30,000 smaller cities and towns in the country, the association said.

The commission ruled, however, that although the forwarders were common carriers they were not subject to regulation under the interstate commerce act, and treated them as shippers. Under this decision, joint and proportional rates which had been maintained with truck lines were ordered discontinued.

FEDERAL SYSTEM OF GRADING SOY BEANS PLANNED

J. E. Barr, director of the soy bean inspection bureau of the department of agriculture, announced in Chicago yesterday that definite instructions regarding the grading of green, or immature, soy beans would be issued soon to regional inspectors.

Barr conferred with H. H. Whitesides, Illinois bureau representative, following reports that soy bean producers are facing lower prices for their chop because of the prevalence this year of the immature beans.

Meanwhile, chemical tests downstate indicated that the state's bumper crop of 40 million bushels contained a normal oil contect. A chemical analysis of the crop was asked recently by grain men after a price discount was imposed by government inspectors on most of the crop because of the high percentage of green beans.

Egg Futures Prices Rise, but Butter Ends Lower

Egg futures advanced .30 to .40 cent a dozen on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday as shorts covered commitments and houses with eastern connections bought heavily. Turnover was 5,844,000 dozen. Butter closed .15 to .30 cent a pound lower.

Vernon D. Beatty. [Moffett Photo.]

Vernon D. Beatty will take over the position of advertising manager of Swift & Co. next Monday, it was announced yesterday by George J. Stewart, vice president. Beatty, who joined the company as assistant advertising manager in 1934, has handled all of Swift's advertising on ham and bacon, shortening, lard, and vegetable products. A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., he entered newspaper work in Chicago after attending the University of Chicago. He succeeds Leo Nejelski, who retired to join the Pepsodent company. C. H. Wolfe, sales promotion head since 1937, will become assistant advertising manager.

Oliver C. Spurling will retire today from the Western Electric company after 30 years in charge of design and construction of the firm's factories here and abroad. He joined Western Electric in 1893, and was in charge of construction at the Hawthorne works here after his return from Europe in 1905. He will be succeeded by Henry L. Ward, who has been with the company since 1911.

DU PONT'S BIG STOCK INCREASE PLAN APPROVED

Hall Printing Finance Program Adopted.

Stockholders of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. at a special meeting in Wilmington, Del., yesterday authorized an increase in the $4.50 preferred stock from the present authorized issue of 500,000 shares to 3,000 shares. The redemption price of the stock is to be lifted from $115 to $120 a share.

Will Retire Debentures.

The increased preferred stock will be used in connection with the big chemical and munitions company's plan to retire its outstanding debenture stock under terms which directors are expected to fix at a meeting Oct. 9. About $109,294,800 of the $100 par debenture stock is outstanding.

The new preferred stock will be offered in exchange for the debenture stock on the basis of not less than one nor more than one and one-fourth shares of the preferred for each share of the debenture stock. Because the debenture stock is entitled to $6 a share in dividends annually and the preferred to $4.50, the move will effect economies for the company.

Hall Printing Plan Approved.

In Chicago, stockholders of the W. F. Hall Printing company approved a plan of refinancing under which $3,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds will be sold to an insurance company and $1,500,000 borrowed from banks at 2½ per cent interest. With the proceeds of this financing and other cash the company will retire on Nov. 1 $5,254,000 of 6 per cent bonds due May 1, 1947. The plan was approved by the required two-thirds majority vote of stockholders after the company's failure to obtain sufficient proxies at previous meetings.

SUGAR ACREAGE CONTROL ON 1940 CROP ABANDONED

Quota Order Had Caused Much Confusion.

Officials asserted that farmers have the general understanding that there is a large supply of wheat, both in the United States and in the world. Wallace declared, after the war began, that there is nothing in the situation to warant any change in the 1940 wheat program. He said domestic wheat supplies totaled nearly a billion bushels and world supplies of 5.3 billion bushels set a new record.

May Be Different in Spring.

Although farmers are reported to be impressed by these enormous figures, there is conjecture over what they may do when time for spring planting comes around. Continuing war and a favorable price structure at that time would most certainly tempt them to plant more than the government planned.

The AAA has already planned to reduce its 1940 subsidy on wheat by 6 to 10 cents a bushel because of the increase in acreage from 55 to 62 millions. The 1940 payments for wheat grown within the allotments will range from 18 to 22 cents a bushel.

Quotas for 1940.

FURTHER SLUMP IN HOGS WIPES OUT "WAR GAINS"

Hog prices continued to slide yesterday. Practically all of the "war gains" since Sept. 1 have been lost. Prices yesterday stood lowest since Sept. 1 and were not much above the level of quotations that prevailed that day. The average price of hogs at $6.90, off 15 cents for the day, was only 81 per cent of the average on Sept. 6, and 113 per cent of the price on Sept. 1.

Losses for the day amounted to mostly 10 cents in stock over 200 pounds and sows. Lighter hogs closed 15 to 25 cents lower.

ILLINOIS FIRST TO INTERVENE IN COAL HEARINGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Illinois today became the first state to intervene in the hearings on minimum coal prices proposed by the bituminous coal division of the interior department as the board of examiners accepted the state's petition of intervention.

The petition was filed yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Harry R. Booth upon instructions from Attorney General John E. Cassidy. Numerous complaints by consumers, producers, and other interests in Illinois that the proposed rates were unreasonable and discriminatory caused Gov. Henry Horner to request an investigation. The result was the decision to intervene to safeguard Illinois interests.

Booth was asked by the examiners today if the state intended to take any specific part in the hearings and associate with any particular group. He replied that he would represent the public at large. It is understood that the state plans to observe the proceedings and later may support certain pleas, or merely file a brief on its position.

The hearing was recessed today until Wednesday.

TENNESSEE'S WORK.

What does Tennessee corporation produce?—W. M.

Answer: Tennessee corporation produces sulphuric acid, copper, and iron sinter, which is an iron dross, or waste. Sulphuric acid is the major product and the fertilizer industry is its chief consumer. The rayon, chemical, steel and textile trades also are consumers of this product. Iron sinter is used by the steel and iron industry. Copper is marketed as electrolytic copper.

NO DEFAULT.

Has the United States ever defaulted on any of its debt?—L. P.

Answer: The government of the United States of America has never defaulted in the payment of interest or principal on any of its debt. Some of the southern states, however, have defaulted. A few states borrowed from Europe during the civil war. When the Union won the war, these southern states refused to make payments to their European creditors.

WHAT IS IT?

A great deal is said about "holding companies," but little about what really constitutes a holding company. What is a holding company?

Answer: The Public Utility act of 1935 defines a holding company as a company which owns 10 per cent or more of the voting control of another company.

SINKING FUND.

Investment houses, when selling bonds, often stress the safety factor involved in the bond's having a "sinking fund" provision. What is this "sinking fund" and why is it a protection for the average bondholder?—H. D.

Answer: When a company regularly sets aside a certain sum of money in order to provide for payment of a bond issue at maturity, the fund into which this money is placed is called a "sinking fund." Normally sinking fund moneys are used to purchase annually bonds of the outstanding issue for which the sinking fund is required.

When some of the bonds are retired annually, the equity behind the remaining outstanding bonds is increased. This is beneficial to the individual bondholder.

SCRIP DIVIDENDS.

Answer: A scrip dividend is a dividend paid in paper notes, which presumably may be exchanged for cash at a later date. Dividends in scrip are usually declared when the company simply cannot afford to pay in cash. Scrip dividends normally are not considered a satisfactory form of payment.
